BASEBALL

Prospects Bright for Athletics.

Athletics are now under good headway. There is not going to be as much interest taken in football this year as there was last, although there will be several inter-class games. A schedule will be made so that each class team will get to play each of the other teams at least once. Baseball and basket ball and track events are the only things in which we are allowed to compete with other colleges, and therefore they need special attention.

Friday afternoon there was a lively game of baseball played on the athletic field by the varsity men of last year and the scrubs. The purpose of the game was to round the old men into shape and see what new material there might be, so as to get an early start next spring.

The game was exciting from start to finish and although it ended in a tie, the result might have been different had the game lasted nine innings. The scrubs got into the game from the start, and when the smoke of the first inning had cleared away they were credited with four runs. However, after that the varsity men settled down and allowed the scrubs only two more runs. Had the game gone nine innings the varsity no doubt would have won, as the scrubs showed signs of weakening, while the varsity appeared stronger in every way.

There was a good crowd out to see the game and for a while the enthusiasm ran high. There is no doubt that when school closes next year the record of the basket ball, baseball, and track teams will by far excel the record of last year.

Brown's pitching featured for the scrubs, while the varsity men played in their usual style. The score is as follows:

Varsity.

OPENING EXERCISES

Many Speeches Mark Opening of New Session.

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, Millsaps College started out on its twenty-first session. The opening exercises began at 11 o'clock with students and many visitors present. After a song by the student body, Rev. C. H. Ellis, pastor of the Methodist Church at Terry, Miss., was called upon for the opening prayer.

After the prayer by Bro. Ellis, Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Jackson district, read a passage of scripture and made a short talk in which he exhorted the boys to get wisdom and understanding. Rev. Jones is well-known on the Millsaps campus and is quite popular among the boys.

Dr. Watkins then made his first appearance before the student body and the public as president of Millsaps College. He made a short and interesting address in which he welcomed the boys to Millsaps. He promised to outline his plan of action later as occasion required. Dr. Watkins also spoke in appreciative terms of the cordial relation that exists between Millsaps College and the city of Jackson. He, himself, is very popular in Jackson and it is hoped that his presence at the head of the college will serve as the medium which will draw the city and the college into still closer relationship. Dr. Watkins has made a decided hit with the student body. He has manifested a deep interest in every phase of college life and has shown that he has a deep interest in the welfare of every student in college.

After the close of Dr. Watkins' address, Dr. J. M. Sullivan, senior member of the faculty and vice-president of the college, made a strong address in which he spoke of the growing popularity of the college. He said this is particularly noticeable in the northern part of the state, where he spent most of the summer in the interest of the college. Speaking of the work in the college, he said it stood for a broad, liberal spirit and for thoroughness in its work.

Prof. J. R. Lin, a new member of the faculty, next made a short talk. He told of the reputation which Millsaps has abroad, a reputation for thoroughness and for character. Prof. Lin is a firm believer in the opinion that the South is the land of promise and he deduces from this that Southern institutions must become the leaders of the Nation.

Prof. Noble, head master of Millsaps Preparatory School, made a short address in which he gave a short history of the school and told of its importance as a part of Millsaps College.

Prof. E. L. Bailey, superintendent of the city schools and formerly member of the Millsaps faculty, then made an eloquent address in which he praised Major Millsaps and his high purpose in life, praised Millsaps College and its incoming president. He also said he was proud of the great number of students that his school sends up to Millsaps and of the great number of efficient teachers that the college furnishes him.

On the whole the opening exercises were most auspicious and thoroughly enjoyed by each and every one of the many visitors who gathered the chapel with their presence on that day.

The varsity baseball men who are back this year are: Galloway, Morse, Gaddis, Cassibry, Ward, Jones, Hathorn, Coudrey, and Jackson.

These men will have a hard fight to hold their regular places, because there are some new boys here who come to us with mighty good reputations.

Taylor, who is large enough to catch any pitcher, looks very good. Brown, who can put most anything on a ball, will probably turn out to be a valuable man.

Rucker, Fant, Russel, Backstrum, McLure, and Moore, who played on the infield, all have good arms and handle themselves like old leaguers.

Barrett, Frazier, Hendrix, and Kirkpatrick, who played the outfield, seemed to be experienced men and the men who get the places over them, if they do, are going to have a hard fight. There are probably other boys on the campus who are good ball players, but who have not yet had a chance to play.

COLLEGE NIGHT A GREAT SUCCESS.

Friday night, Sept. 20, was the occasion of "College Night." For the past three years this has been one of the most enjoyable and beneficial occasions of the session. It was begun three years ago under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. It was under the direction of and through the interest of Dr. Kern that it was started here, and it has been through his unflagging interest that it has always been made a great success.

The program, usually, for this occasion is short speeches by leading students, music, college yells, and songs. Frank T. Scott, one of the leading seniors in school, as master of ceremonies, introduced the speakers in a pleasing style, and strong speeches were presented representing different phases of college life.

The first speaker was H. H. Boswell, who spoke on the question of "Athletics." Boswell is an excellent speaker, having won the Mississippi Chautauqua medal last summer at Crystal Springs. He has been a close follower of athletics at Millsaps, being baseball manager and president of the Athletic Association last year. He made a strong plea for the different games at the college and urged each man to try for a place on one of the teams.

J. T. Weems came as next speaker on the subject of the "Honor Council." He explained the workings of this organization. In a masterly style he showed the good influence of this body on the life of the school and the sense of honor of the student body. He closed with an impressive appeal to phases of college life.

B. F. Foster gave an interesting talk on the work of the Preachers' League, told of what they had done and hoped to do.

President Watkins gave an interesting discussion of all phases of college life which was much enjoyed.

After this refreshments were served in the Y. M. C. A. Hall,

RESOLUTIONS.

The recent death of Omar Reynolds, a former Millsaps student, brings sadness to the entire student body. As this sadness is most deeply felt among his classmates, be it

Resolved, By the Senior Class of Millsaps College:

1. That we express our sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss of their son and brother, our class-mate.
2. That we shall ever remember his true, noble life as lived among us and the faithful work which he did in the Y. M. C. A., the literary society and college work in general.
3. That we know that we have lost one of the strongest members of our class.
4. That God may console those who are bereaved.
5. That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Purple and White and that a copy be sent to his people.

Permit us to say further that notwithstanding the fact that we are much grieved over his loss yet we submit to the will of God, and trust that those even nearer to him may have the same spirit.

We bless thee sweet will of God
And all thy ways adore,
And every day we live
We seem to love thee more and more.

2

Ill that he blesses is our good
And unblessed good is ill,
All is right that seems most wrong
If it be his own sweet will.

J. D. WROTEN,
F. T. SCOTT,
J. T. WEEMS,

Committee.

The sad news of Reynolds' death was a shock to us all and the Purple and White joins the student body in extending its sympathy to his friends and relatives.

every man to take defeat rather than dishonor.

S. G. Noble spoke for the Preparatory School. No mishap occurred to mar the pleasure of his speech this year, and in his usual humorous style he gave an impressive address.

J. D. Wroten spoke of the work of the Y. M. C. A., and showed that it covered and supported all where an enjoyable time was spent.

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Boswell Orates.

The first meeting of the Lamar Literary Society was called to order Friday night by President Kirkland, and then led in prayer by the chaplain, Olin Ray. F. H.

Boswell then delivered his speech on "The Call of Miss.," with which he won the Crystal Springs Chautauqua medal last summer, and his speech was greatly enjoyed by all present.

R. E. Selby welcomed the new members to the society and explained the purpose of the society.

Then the society went into an informal session of voluntary remarks, during which many excellent addresses were made by Tom Bailey of the law department, Scott, Jolly, Weems and others of the old members. A large number of new men were initiated as members of the society. C. H. Blawett and James McClure, Jr., were elected as monthly orators.

Y. M. C. A.

Foster Addresses Association on "The First Inning."

On Friday night, September 27, the Y. M. C. A. met for the first time this session. The president, D. J. Savage, conducted the opening song and prayer service and closed by introducing the speaker of the occasion, B. F. Foster. This gentleman is well known and highly respected in college circles, especially those of the Y. M. C. A., of which he is and has been a faithful member and efficient officer.

Foster began by reading a part of the first chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesians. He spoke of the importance of the first part of a man's college course. It is a general truth but one especially applicable to college life that a good beginning must necessarily have a great influence on the entire course. There is nothing unnatural in this. The man who begins his course in college without due regard to his duties does two things: he forms habits of idleness which will be hard to overcome in future years and also fails to lay a foundation in school work that will make the work of the future easier.

The speaker called attention to the fact that in college life a man was absolutely free. The student is free to a great extent to choose his course in school. Certainly he is free to say whether or not that course shall be one of profit to him or just merely a record of wasted opportunities. He who refuses to battle with the harder things, no matter in what sphere of life they may be found, can never hope to develop that strength which the successful man must have. Another choice is that of companions. This is not so important a question at Millsaps as elsewhere for, as the speaker said, our school has more gentlemen in respect to her size than any other school of prominence.

The duty of every schoolboy, so Foster said, was more than to himself and the college while he is here. One of his greatest duties is to the people of his home and home community. Unless we can go back and make our influence felt among those whose sacrifices have been for us, then our education profits us but little.

The speaker closed by appealing to every loyal Millsaps man to put on the whole armor of Christianity and fight the battle of faith and duty in the future as we have not done in the past.

After the conclusion of this address, the house was thrown open for the election of certain officers in place of those who did not return. Mr. R. E. Selby was chosen as secretary and Mr. W. S. Burns as treasurer. President Watkins made at this point the announcement of the untimely death of Mr. Reynolds, a former officer of the Association, after which he dismissed the meeting.

Boys, have your Tailoring done by T. B. Doxey, 228 W. Capitol St., and save the special discount which he gives to College boys.

Edward H. Green in a Dramatic Role.

In every crisis a man rises, fitted as it were by nature, for the particular work in question. Seldom has this axiom of experience been more completely verified than by a recent court-room scene. From a modest, retiring young gentleman to a master of dramatic art is a long way, so far in fact that it is spanned only in a lifetime and then, only by Destiny—groomed spirits. Yet a young law-student of Millsaps College recently metamorphosed from the former state to the latter within the twinkling of an eye. Little wonder, then, that Wednesday's papers heralded the following story to the world: "E. H. Green, a young law student, donned the clothes of the deceased and thus enabled the court to see and understand the nature of the wounds by which the deceased met his death."

Mr. Green's grace and manly figure thus became a very important factor in the determination of the issue before the court. Standing there as calm and unperturbed as Moses at reveille, he seemed wholly unconscious of the dramatic role he played! His manner was almost, if not quite, sufficient to make his first official appearance in court as tragic as the annual rendition in the freshman contest of the death-bed scene of Benedict Arnold. May we see more of this young artist!

Books, like distilled spirits, grow better with age.—(Chisholm.)

Millsaps has many sons of whom she is justly proud. One of these is Judge James A. Teat, B. A., B. L., '00, who on the 21st of September assumed the duties of circuit judge of the 5th judicial district. The Purple and White extends its warmest congratulations to Judge Teat.

Genuine heartfelt regret was expressed by all the students on opening day when it was learned that our friend and benefactor, Major Millsaps, would not be with us at the opening exercises. We are glad to learn that he has recently returned to the city after a very pleasant absence in which he has enjoyed excellent health and we hope to see him on the campus at an early date.

The students of Millsaps College were very much grieved to hear of the death of Rev. W. B. Hull, the father of our former president. No man ever labored more conscientiously or more successfully for any cause than did Dr. Hull for Millsaps during his presidency, and we wish to assure him that although he is not with us now, that he has in this his hour of sorrow our heartfelt sympathy, as he has at all times our esteem and best wishes.

OUR PRESIDENT.

The students of Millsaps College have just cause for rejoicing over the election of Dr. Watkins as our president. To us he comes by no means as a stranger, but as one whom we have long known and loved. He has been identified with and a part of the college from the time when the idea of Millsaps College was first conceived. From his position as a member of the joint commission that was elected to formulate plans for the establishment of the school he became upon the organization of the board of trustees one of the leading spirits of that body. To this there is added the fact that for the last twelve years he has served in the capacity of vice-president of the board and in the absence of both Presidents Galloway and Murrah, respectively, he has frequently presided over the meetings and deliberations of that body.

It is useless to say that his visits to the college have been so frequent and his relations so intimate that he has not only made himself fully conversant with every department of our school but, as few other men have ever done, has become the friend of every student of Millsaps College, both past and present.

Dr. Watkins has long been recognized as one of the foremost ministers of the land and has most ably filled the best appointments in his section. Not only has he been a minister of wide note but he has, with eminent distinction, filled important posts in almost every department of the church service. His election over the number of brilliant applicants who sought the presidential chair is itself a fitting testimonial of his merit and worth. This recognition of ability and distinguished qualities of leadership by the board of trustees has been amply justified by the most commendable manner in which he has assumed control of and managed the affairs of the college through one of the most promising and flattering openings and organizations in the school's history. We have no hesitancy in saying that if any one were inclined to ask whether or not he has already justified the ample expectations of those who rated him highest, that the student body would join the Purple and White with hearty accord in answering with a reverberant Yes.

He has completely won the hearts of the student body, who look upon him as a man—in all that the word implies. One whom we can love, honor and obey—one whom we fear not to approach as our friend. To us, he is a man of brilliant intellect, of large and fluent vocabulary, an orator of no mean ability, a worker of invincible zeal and energy, a man of so great versatility that he is equally at home whether in the pulpit, in the class room, on the athletic field or in the home of a student, withal a clean, upright Christian gentleman endowed with catholic zeal for the education and upbuilding of humanity and with dominant tact and regnant common sense in all things that assures success.

It is apparent to every one that he has back of him not only the entire student body but the enthusiastic support and good-will of every member of the faculty, and we most heartily pledge him the loyal support of the Purple and White, assuring him that we are with him in every movement that tends toward the betterment and advancement of our already great institution.

Some one has said that the achievements of a man's past when he approaches the meridian become the promise of his later attainments. We can but cherish the hope that the future progress of our president will not be in some promotion to some other place, but in the enlarged opportunities and unending growth of Millsaps College.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

The enrollment in the law class of both this and last year clearly demonstrates that this department is no longer a thing to be pitied. This year's enrollment will surpass that of any previous session. Already twenty-two students have signified a desire to expose themselves to clients by joining the class, and it is expected that recruits sufficient to bring the number to thirty-five will soon be in the ranks.

At a recent meeting of the class, the following officers were duly elected: President, Thos. L. Bailey; Vice-President, Jas. A. Blount; Secretary, Dabney; Treasurer, Fulton Thompson. All officers were duly installed, except Treasurer Thompson, whose bond will be made by one of America's leading bonding companies.

The Moot court will be organized at an early date. Several matters of very great importance are now pending. Mr. Carter has employed counsel and will push his suit against the owner of certain vicious dogs that are wont to exercise him rather vigorously from time to time. Along with other facts, Carter will aver that on more than one occasion he has been compelled to run off from his hat.

Prof. Savage is not keeping study hall for us this year. It seems to take all of his energy trying to teach some of the Preps Caesar.

MASS MEETING.

Enthusiastic Athletic Rally.

The first mass meeting of the session was held in the college chapel on Monday night, Sept. 23. Practically every student in the college was present to hear of the prospects for athletics and great enthusiasm was manifested, a fact which portends a great interest in every phase of athletics during the session.

Prof. E. Y. Burton, the leading spirit in athletics at Millsaps, stated that the purpose of the meeting was purely a business one. He said that the Athletic Association must have money if it did anything toward getting out successful teams. He showed how that at other institutions the students are forced to contribute to athletics when they matriculate, while at Millsaps all contributions are purely voluntary. He urged the students to rally to the support of athletics by paying two dollars and becoming members of the Athletic Association.

After Prof. Burton's talk, Messrs. Thomas L. Bailey and Jim Blount, alumni of the college and at present members of the Millsaps law class, made short talks. Both of these highly respected and learned gentlemen expressed the opinion that good teams are the only things which can so bring Millsaps to the front that she will be recognized as the leading institution of the State. Both believe that Millsaps is the greatest institution of its kind in the South and the only thing required to make it be recognized as such is something to bring it prominently before the eyes of the public.

THE GALLOWAY "OF AGE."

The Galloway Literary Society of Millsaps College was called to order at 8:45 p. m. Friday evening by President Harmon for its first meeting of this scholastic year. President Harmon delivered the opening address and the house was lead in prayer by Ben Foster. Excellent addresses were delivered by Dr. Sullivan of the faculty, Secretary Broomfield and Mr. Blount of the law department. Crockett delivered an excellent oration, which was followed by an address by J. D. Wroten in which were set forth the principles for which the grand old society stands.

This was indeed a memorable meeting of the society, for seventeen new members vowed allegiance to her constitution at this session. A spirit of enthusiasm pervades the society and it is with bright prospects and noble aspirations that we enter into the work of this year, with every member doing his duty, and we expect to make this year the grandest in the history of the society. Twenty-one years ago the Galloway began her career, and it is with great pride that we note the work which she has done during her past history. Six times her men have captured the medal at the M. I. O. A. Therefore it is with no little degree of pride that we enter upon the duties of this year having as our ideal to gain first place in the contests this year.

This society meets every Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Visitors are given a hearty welcome.

College Night was a grand success. We feel sure the speeches were enjoyed by all, especially the one delivered by Prof. Noble entitled "Mary's Little Lamb."

Bill Ferguson, of last year's Freshman Class, is now in the real estate business with his father in Hattiesburg. He sends us words of encouragement.

Supt. Bailey of the Jackson schools, has kept his promise and sent us a good man in Leon Hendricks. We are glad to welcome Hendricks among us.

"Shorty" Adams (in conversation with Willingham): "I am disgusted with the whole thing."

Willingham: "You must have gotten a good look at yourself."

S. R. Boykin, of last year's sophomore class, passed through the city last week en route to the University of Mississippi, where he intends to take up the study of medicine.

We are indeed glad to have Patterson back with us this year. It will be remembered that he was compelled to leave school the latter part of last session on account of illness.

Mr. Blount (in opening address to the Galloway Society): "When I was here in school we played tricks on the Professor."

Dr. Sullivan (in audience): "Yes, you are the very rascal that got my buggy."

T. L. Bailey (Bill) of the class of '09 is back with us taking law this year. We always welcome back such men as Bill, for men like him are the ones that are making records for their alma mater.

SOCIAL.

Kappa Alpha Smoker.

The Kappa Alpha Fraternity entertained their friends at a delightful smoker on Saturday night, Sept. 28, 1912, in their beautiful and attractive chapter house. To those who have enjoyed the hospitality of this fraternity these social functions are a source of much pleasure and it needs only the announcement that the K. As. are to entertain to assure a delightful evening. This affair, coming as it does before the reminiscences of vacation days have been chased away by hard study, cheers up the old men and often proves the foundation of many new valued friendships.

Fruit and punch were served and the evening passed so quickly that neither guests or hosts could realize that their jolly smoker was over.

GREETINGS.

For the fourth time the Purple and White extends its heartiest greetings to the students and friends of Millsaps College. We rejoice with the old students in the associations of the past and in the joys of again assembling beneath the protecting wings of our beloved alma mater. We rejoice to welcome the new men to our fold, for our hopes for the future lie in the addition of fresh young blood. For the old men we wish another year of growth, progress and development. For the new, we have all good wishes for the speedy development of that broad, liberal and generous college spirit and pride that bespeaks acquaintance with all phases of college life. To both alike we extend our heartfelt wishes for a most pleasant and profitable year.

Cognizant of the exalted position which our paper has assumed among the college publications through its former editors we, the new staff, beseech a helping hand and cordial support from every member of the college. With your help we hope to make our paper an unbiased history of our college year, free from all factionalism. We hope to make it truly representative of all that is highest and best in Millsaps College, portraying those things which are so manifest in ranking Millsaps College among the first colleges of the land.

Pi Kappa Alpha Smoker.

The house of the Pi Kappa Alphas, always an attractive place, was unusually so Saturday night when the boys of this fraternity entertained their friends at an enjoyable smoker. This being an annual affair, it is always looked forward to by the young men with much pleasure, and this entertainment of 1912 proved especially delightful. Many jokes and tales of vacation escapades were related, while they smoked and enjoyed the fruit and punch served by their hosts. Hours spent in such a delightful manner of course passed quickly, and it was with regret that this jolly party broke up, each guest carrying away with him pleasant memories of a most enjoyable evening.

Announcement.

Beginning with next number we will begin the "Origin of Species." It will be a sort of early history of the life and experiences of different members of the law class.

No. 2.

DR. D. C. HULL.

A Review of His Administration.

Millsaps students, and especially the old ones, will be glad to learn that Dr. D. C. Hull, our president for the last two years and who resigned last year to take charge of the public schools of Meridian, is delighted with his work there. He has gone into the work with the vim and determination that is so characteristic of the man and the people of Meridian are better satisfied than they have been since ten years ago when Dr. Hull left them.

It would perhaps not be amiss in this connection to enumerate some of the important achievements of Dr. Hull during the short time that he was with us. In the first place through his personal popularity throughout the state and his energy in the work of building up the college, he increased the attendance 11 per cent in his first year and in his second 12 per cent over the first year's attendance. He also brought the college into closer relationship with the preachers of the two conferences which was proved by the attendance of a greater number of ministerial students and ministers' sons.

One of the most important achievements of his administration was the separation of the college department and the preparatory department. This had been a crying need for sometime and Dr. Hull accomplished a great thing for Millsaps when he made out of the regular preparatory department Millsaps Preparatory School. The success of the change has proved its wisdom.

Another great movement forward that Millsaps made under Dr. Hull was its development along athletic lines. Not only did it secure intercollegiate athletics in everything except football, but it built one of the best athletic fields in the South and a track celebrated over the state for its completeness.

ATHLETICS

Football in the Air—Class Teams Fast Rounding Into Shape—Foot Ball! Foot Ball!

Football is the cry that is coming from every corner of the campus. It has been decided to lay base ball aside for the present and enter into foot ball with all our heart, soul and strength.

All the teams have been organized and with about a week's practice will be ready to play. All this week the teams have been making good progress towards getting team work and there are some now who work like a machine.

The Freshmen have gotten out a good team and look somewhat like winners.

The Sophomores have a team that is going to make a hard fight for the cup.

The Junior-Senior team is composed of old heads and even though they do have perfect team work, they are by no means going to walk away with the cup.

It is generally conceded that the Preps have a winning team. It is true that they have the heaviest team, but when you attempt to match weight against brains it will soon be found that there is a great difference, and in most every case in favor of experience and brains. The games will probably start next week and as they are going to be close and exciting large crowds are expected.

BASEBALL.

Regulars Spank Scrubs.

Ever since the Scrubs tied the Varsity they have been boosting their team, and were not satisfied until one day last week when the Varsity met them on the Athletic field and administered to them a crushing defeat. The game was a one sided affair from start to finish and although the Scrubs took their defeat good naturedly it taught them a good lesson.

The game opened up with Brown on the firing line for the Scrubs, and Peaster for the Regulars. The Regulars started out at a rapid rate, which they kept up during the entire game, while the Scrubs were always at the mercy of Peaster.

The result of the game was not a surprise to all the broad minded fans but only to those who can see only one side of a thing. This was the second time that the boys have been out, and considering the fact that they have not practiced any they showed up exceedingly well. Several of the new boys played a much better game than they did in the first game and that is a proof that with constant practice they will make good ball players. Many thanks are due Mr. Harry Peaster for his services as coach. He knows baseball thoroughly and we are sure that some of the players will greatly improve their baseball ability by taking advantage of the points he has shown them.

There were other changes and improvements of a less public nature, but none the less of great benefit to the college.

The students of Millsaps College wish for Dr. Hull much success and they will watch his future career with solicitous interest.

PROF. LIN.

A Valuable Addition to the Faculty.

As the session progresses the student body and the faculty realize more and more that there was no mistake made in the election of Prof. J. Reese Lin to the chair of History and Economics. Prof. Lin is a native of Georgia and a graduate of Emory College of that state. He has studied extensively at Vanderbilt University and at Cornell. He has had wide experience as an instructor. Eight years of his life have been devoted to educational work in Mississippi, having been Superintendent of the Wesson schools for two years and Superintendent of the Natchez schools for six years.

Not only is Prof. Lin well qualified for his work, but he knows college life and college boys, an important adjunct to any teacher's qualifications. He talks interestingly of his own college career and shows he knows the way of the college boy.

Prof. Lin's record is as follows: A. B. Emory College; Fellow in Vanderbilt University, 1894-96, M. A., Vanderbilt University; Superintendent Wesson Public Schools 1899-1901; Supt. Natchez Public Schools 1901-1907; Supt. Alexandria (La.) schools 1907-1909; Professor Philosophy and Education, Central College (Mo.) 1909-10; Sage Fellow in Cornell University, 1910-1912; Instructor in Civics and History, University of Mississippi, summer terms of 1902-3-4; Instructor in English Literature and Psychology, Tulane University, summer term of 1909; student in summer terms of Columbia University, 1908-1910.

Y. M. C. A.

Ray Addresses Association.

The association met for the second time on Friday night and began the meeting with a song service. Mr. Foster conducted the opening exercises and introduced the speaker, Olin Ray, stating that the Y. M. C. A. was indebted to him for consenting to speak at the last moment.

Mr. Ray read a passage in the Bible exhorting men to press forward toward the ideal. He said that there was a tendency among college men to lay aside their religious life to devote their time to school work and the activities of college life. Such need not and should not be the case. The records of men not only of this school but of all schools has shown that the deeper consecration of a man's life usually comes during the years that he spends in school. Some one has said that a man will in nearly every case be through his life what he is when he leaves college. If this be true, and it is true, how can we afford to miss the opportunities of allying ourselves with the forces of Christianity and developing ourselves spiritually as well as mentally?

The speaker in connection with this, called attention to the fact that there is no middle course in spiritual things. The man who is not for the better development of himself and others is against it. The swimmer must go upstream or down. He must battle with the current or drift with the tide. This is true in every sphere of the material world, but especially is it true of the spiritual world. The business man, the man who fights the battles of the practical world must keep steadily onward if he would meet with that financial success which he desires. His lack of success might be imperceptible however, and his downfall gradual, but from the moment a Christian loses his grasp upon the things of Christianity his spiritual downfall is sudden and sure.

The speaker discussed at length the influence of an ideal upon a man's life. Someone has said that we are not what we are but what we wish to be. Certain it is that he who marches onward and upward with his eyes fixed upon a high ideal, whether or not it can be attained, will never falter or fail in the battle of life. It is seldom possible for us to attain our ideals but it is possible for us to approach them and profit by the inspiration that comes to us by looking upon higher things. Nor would we attain our ideals if we could, for then we could do nothing but lament, like Alexander, the absence of other worlds to conquer. But it is our duty and should be our purpose to press forward toward the ideal as it was in Christ.

After the conclusion of Mr. Ray's address, the chairman introduced Dr. Kern, to discuss for a few moments the question of Bible study. Rather briefly he outlined the work of the Bible study classes last year. He told of the number of men who joined in little groups, reading a chapter each day and meeting once each week for a discussion of these seven chapters. Dr. Kern told of the benefit to be derived from a study of the Bible, benefits which I hope are known to most of us. The men were asked to pledge themselves to spend ten minutes each day in reading the Bible. A great many of those present signed cards promising to do this.

The association appreciates the attendance of the last two meetings and earnestly invites every man in college, whether a member or not, to come out and meet together in the one place where we may meet with a common purpose and with perfect harmony.

TENNIS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

Officers Elected.

At a call meeting Thursday afternoon the organization of the Tennis Association was perfected and plans for the year discussed. Dr. M. W. Swartz who for several years past has been secretary and treasurer of the association as well as one of the leading members of that body tendered his resignation as an officer, whereupon Prof. J. M. Burton, one of the best and most enthusiastic players on the campus was unanimously elected to the position. Prof. Burton has taken an active interest in the association since coming to Millsaps and will no doubt make it a most efficient official. Sam Lampton was then chosen as president of the association for the ensuing year. His executive ability has been amply displayed on numerous occasions and the association is to be congratulated on securing his services as president.

After an informal discussion of plans for the year and the tennis outlook in general, the house was adjourned. Those who wish to join the association can do so by applying to Prof. J. M. Burton.

Lamars Have Interesting Program Election Night.

The Lamars were kept exceedingly busy last Friday night, carrying out one of the strongest programs in the history of the society, initiating new men into their ranks and pulling off the annual election of officers and speakers.

The first thing on the slate was an oration by C. H. Blewett who stepped forth and expounded in a most eloquent and impressive manner.

So well did Blewett acquit himself that he was rewarded with the important position of Mid-Session Orator.

The debate which followed was a most enthusiastic discussion of that question which for several months past has proved a most interesting and spicy subject for men throughout the United States. It was "Resolved, that it would be better for the United States for Roosevelt to be elected president in preference to Taft." Weems and Talbot ably presented the claims of the affirmative side while Jolly and Scott eulogized Taft at the same time taking some strong shots at their opponent's speeches and candidate. Messrs. Sterling, Gathings and Tucker acting in the capacity of judges rendered the decision in favor of the affirmative.

After the debate came what is probably the most important event of the year—the annual election. Never has there been an election pulled off with more ease and good feeling than this one.

A complete list of the election returns is as follows:

Anniversarian—H. H. Boswell.
Anniversary Orator—F. T. Scott.

Hendrix Debater—J. T. Weems.
A. & M. Debater—R. E. Selby.
Mississippi College Debater—J. B. Kirkland.

Mid-Session Debaters—C. A. Williams, J. M. Talbot.
Mid-Session Orator—C. H. Blewett.

Commencement Debaters—Olin Ray, R. I. Jolly.

President First Term—W. B. Montgomery.

Vice President—J. C. Honeycutt.

Secretary—Bob Sterling.

Treasurer—G. W. Harrison.

Censor—W. E. Hobbs.

Corresponding Secretary—F. T. Scott.

Critic—H. H. Boswell.

Chaplain—J. T. Weems.

President Anniversary—F. H. McGee.

Doorkeeper—J. B. Kirkland.

The above officers and speakers are especially well fitted for the various positions which they hold and will reflect honor and glory on the society. Boswell, the anniversary needs no introduction as an orator to college circles. His being unanimously elected to this the highest honor in the gift of the society is itself assurance that he will creditably fill the position.

Frank Scott is also an excellent speaker and will fill the position of anniversary orator with distinction and credit both to himself and the society.

Weems is recognized by all the members of the society as the one man best fitted to bring back a decision over Hendrix College, while the Triangular Debates will no doubt be safe entrusted to such eminent debaters as Kirkland and Selby.

The other debaters and officers are all strong, able men and we do not fear but that at the end of the session the Lamars will have nothing but joy over having entrusted the good name and fame of the society into their keeping.

OUR DEBATERS.

We believe that the plans suggested by Dr. Watkins and other members of the faculty for changing the method of selecting the men who should represent us in the different intercollegiate debates, a most laudable and commendable one, provided several seemingly adverse conditions can be coped with in a successful manner, and we join with them in the hope that the societies will give it a thorough and careful consideration.

As we understand it, the suggestion was that every man in school, regardless of class distinctions or society affiliations, who desires to do so may take part in a competitive debate, instituted for the purpose of selecting six men to represent the college in these contests.

This seems to us to be in most respects the logical manner to select the very best men possible as our representatives. However, as we have suggested before, we believe that there are certain conditions to be dealt with before the plan can become in all respects an ideal one. The first of these is that it has been the custom for each of the societies to furnish a debater for each college and each society has defrayed its share of the expenses. If the condition should arise that a majority or all of the debaters should be chosen from one society it would be hardly fair to ask the others to help defray expenses and too much of a burden on the one society to put up all of them.

Again, there would come up the question as to whether or not the most capable debaters would enter into the contests. The men who are the best speakers and debaters in school are generally among the busiest ones and while one of these might be prevailed upon to accept a position as representative debater of the college he might consider that he had not the time to prepare an extra debate and one too where he would be forced to compete for the position, with the possibility of losing out altogether.

On the other hand, a lively, hard fought preliminary contest would be an excellent training for the final event and we believe that if the above conditions can be successfully dealt with the adoption of the new plan will be a progressive movement that will prove a very satisfactory method of choosing the debaters.

FOOTBALL.

It is but fitting that at this season of the year the attention of the student body in general should be turned to football. In spite of this fact and in spite of the fact also that there has been much said concerning this great college game, very little has been done at Millsaps this year towards organizing the usual class teams.

A careful analysis of the football situation would disclose the fact that this condition is probably due to one or more of three causes—the first is the fact that we are not permitted to participate in inter-collegiate football—and on account of this there is not as much incentive to work for a football team as there is in the other phases of athletics. This drawback is partly overcome, however, by the fact that a varsity team is always chosen from the various class teams and it is considered as much honor to be placed in this list of varsity men as it would be if they contested against other schools.

The second handicap is the fact that up until last week there has been no football manager, but with the election on last Thursday, the difficulty along this line is settled.

The last reason is that on account of the excellent baseball coach who has been with us during the last week or so, more attention has been paid to baseball than football. Baseball practice has now been abandoned and the other objections overcome, so there is absolutely nothing in the way of having a good, spicy series of inter class games of football. Let every man who can do so come out and try for a team and those who feel indisposed to do this come out and encourage your class team by rooting for them and cheering them on to victory.

Savage Chosen President.

One of the most important events of the past week was the election of officers by the Junior Class. These near seniors always assume a very dignified and important air when there is any business to be performed, consequently it was with very scholarly and dignified mien that they assembled to elect the following officers to control the affairs of the Junior Class for the year 1912-13.

President—D. J. Savage.
Vice-President—T. M. Cooper.
Secretary—D. W. Howe.
Treasurer—H. L. Lassiter.
Historian—Miss Stella McGee.
Poet—Miss B. G. Steen.
Liar—H. L. Lassiter.
Sport—J. B. Cain.
Honor Council—S. L. Crockett.

No one doubts the efficiency of these officers and it has been predicted by many that these honors are only the earnest of more numerous ones to come to these Juniors during their college career.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Vacant Offices Filled.

The election of the officers of the athletic association last Thursday night was an affair teeming with interest and enthusiasm. The lines were tightly drawn and the work of trained and experienced politicians very much in evidence. The result was the addition of a goodly number of members to the ranks of the association and the election of a highly efficient corp of officers consisting of the following:

President—F. T. Scott.
Vice President—S. L. Crockett.
Football Manager—Jack T. Gaddis.
Assistant Baseball Manager—K. M. Broom.

Scott is well known on the campus and his ability as an executive officer is questioned by no one. Crockett is likewise a good man and will come up to all expectations. Gaddis is an enthusiastic athletic man, having made both the baseball and the football teams last year. Broom will make Boswell a good assistant and is a good man to line up for manager next year.

After a campaign notable for its bitterness and villification Messrs. Russell and Butler, respectively, have been elected to the offices of Sheriff and Circuit Clerk. There is talk of a contest but it is hardly probable, for Judge Nason, a modern Boss Tweed, is in charge of the election machinery.

John Paul Waugh in a Smashup.

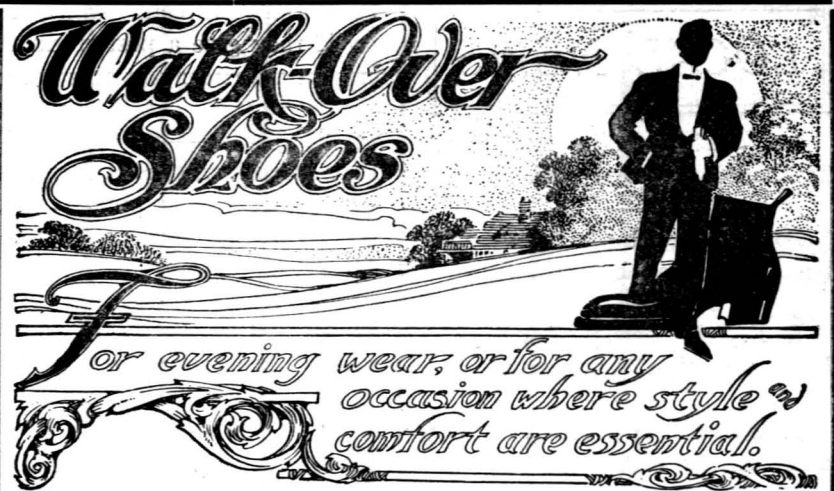

The friends of Mr. John Paul Waugh in this city and on Wall street were very much alarmed Sunday when it was announced that Mr. Waugh had been injured in a R. R. wreck. Mr. Waugh boarded east bound P. & Q. train No. 3 at the union station in this city on Sunday evening and was scarcely seated before he came near losing his life. As is the custom, the railroad company was adding a sleeper here and it was run into the train with so much violence that the force of the jolt threw the local coal baron and iron king to the floor seriously jolting and internally injuring him. He was immediately conveyed to his apartment at the Verdant Tree Hotel by Drayman, Peg DeLoach.

Mr. Waugh has filed suit against the R. R. Company for the sum of $50,000.00. In his declaration it is averred that he has suffered great physical pain and mental anguish, and that he, also, failed to conclude a very advantageous deal involving $150,000.00 because of his inability to continue the journey to Birmingham for which city he was bound at the time of the accident. The R. R. will endeavor to show that Mr. Waugh was without a ticket and therefore a trespasser and is not entitled to recover. The plaintiff is represented by Messrs. Green, Donald and Adam and the defendant by Messrs. Logue, Dabney and Scarborough.

The Moot Court has been organized and will meet in the Lamar Literary Society Hall on next Monday night. The case before the court is the suit of J. P. Waugh against the P. & Q. R. R. Co., for $50,000.00, being the amount of damages claimed by Waugh because of injuries received in a recent wreck on said road.

Everybody is talking about "strike-out" Brown's pitching. He is making good in other ways too.

After the initiation of several new members, the society entered into the election. The political machine seemed to be well oiled and when once started was hard to stop. This machine was not a steam-roller either. Every man, with two exceptions, was elected by acclamation.

The three coveted places on the ticket were Anniversarian, Anniversary Orator and first term
President. A senior, J. D. Wroten was elected anniversarian. He is in every way qualified for the place, having won both the Freshman and Sophomore contests and was Anniversary Orator last year.
The choice for Anniversary Orator fell to a junior, S. L. Crockett.
Crockett not only won the Freshman contest but last year won the Sophomore contest and the debaters medal at the Millsaps-
A. & M. debate at Moorhead. A dignified junior in the person of D. J. Savage was elected first term president. Mr. Savage is not a stranger to the duties of this office, having gracefully presided over the society several times last year while serving as vice president. The other offices, too numerous to mention, were filled by men peculiarly fitted for their respective places.

The harmony and good feeling prevailing throughout the meeting speaks well for the future of the society.

ers were chosen:

DR. BORUM SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

Last Friday night the Y. M. C. A. was addressed by Dr. W. A. Borum, pastor of the First Baptist church. Dr. Borum spoke in his usual happy style and assured the boys that it gave him much pleasure to be at Millsaps. This we can easily believe from the interest he has taken in our work in the past and the number of times he has consented to speak to us. Indeed, Dr. Borum is no stranger to the student body who have always found in him a warm friend.

Dr. Borum stressed the idea of service and spoke of the three planes of Christian living. We must choose on what plane we would live. The first plane is that of the man who is a church member and can say he is a Christian but had rather not talk on the subject. This man's religion does him little good, certainly he does not enjoy it. He considers it more of an aid to keep him out of hell than to help him lead a useful life. On the second plane is the man who is fully conscious of his salvation. He recognises the Fatherhood of God and seeks to make his life conform to the divine will. The third plane is that of the man who is filled with the spirit of God. This last plane cannot be reached except by prayer and waiting before God. Dr. Borum showed to reach these planes of Christian usefulness a student did not have to sacrifice his part in college activities but that the Christian student was the leader in all phases of college life.

Professor Lin of the Millsaps faculty will address the association next Friday night. His subject has not been announced but rest assured that it will be something good.

BASKET BALL

WINNING TEAM A CERTAINTY Personnel of the Team

The interest taken in basket ball here on the part of a goodly number of the fellows is attracting the attention of the athletic managers and coaches.

A coach has been secured in the person of Mr. Fletcher. He has gained the confidence of all and from the side lines, one would be able to select a marked degree of improvement in the way the "fellows" handle the ball.

Coach Fletcher is an all round athlete. Many of the Millsaps fellows remember well that it was this lad who took the honors on the track at Gulfport two years ago. He is an able man and we feel no little degree of confidence that he will soon develop a winning team, second to none in the state.

Manager Kirkland has the interest of the team at heart, and is planning an excellent schedule for the coming season.

Nolan Harmon, one of last year's Varsity men, is showing up well and promises to make good at forward.

Robert Harmon, another of last year's Varsity, is showing up well as the other forward. Both of these youngsters are fleet of foot and deadshots at the goal.

Burns, last year's "star" guard is back at his old post and is playing in his usual form. He covers the court well and is a sure shot at goal.

Bell, also a last year's man, is showing up well in practice. He is going to make some one hustle for a place on this year's team.

Cook hails from Crystal Springs, where he was a guard on the High School team which won the championship of the state in 1911.

Frazier is the only man who will make the team without opposition. So far he has had no opponent for center. He knows the game from one to twenty-seven, inclusive, and the man who makes center over him will have to eat yeast three times a day.

Henry, R. T., is an excellent guard and in case of an emergency can play center. "High Henry" is a last year's man and knows the game. We are watching him for it would not surprise us if he should make the Varsity.

Henry, E. E., is a new man with us but is by no means a new man in the game. He handles the ball well and is quite a good goaler.

Broomfield is showing that he has the qualities of a good basket ball man. His coolness in the game makes him of great value. Coach Fletcher has his eye on him.

The presence of Cain, the "Greek Shark," is noted with interest during practice. He is slow but sure and we are inclined to believe that should he be able to gain about 75 pounds he would make the Varsity.

Lauderdale, Moore and Ray are trying out and it would not be any great surprise should some good men come from among these.

The boys wish to thank Dr. E. Y. Burton for his untiring efforts towards athletics, and to show their appreciation they are coming out in large numbers to try and make the teams the best that can be gotten out.

SELF-HELP AT MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

By Alfred Allan Kern.

In a recent address before the National Educational Association the President of a Western university denounced our universities as the loafing places of luxury and as winter resorts for the sons of the wealthy. Doubtless, he was, to a certain extent at least, correct in his statements. Contemperate, however, with his denunciation of the growing luxury and licentiousness of our educational institutions come the reports of the self-help bureaus in our various colleges, which present a more hopeful picture of another side of college life and show that democracy is also on the increase in American universities.

Thus, the daughter of President Butler, of Columbia University, was among the freshman waiters at Barnard College during the past session. An investigation at Oberlin disclosed the fact that one-fourth of all the women in the college were either partially or wholly self-supporting, and that another ten per cent were earning money toward their education. From the Yale bureau of self-help comes the statement that five hundred students in the university are either wholly or in part working their way through college. The ways and means employed by these enterprising five hundred students are almost as many and as varied as the students themselves; they range all the way from acting as professional pallbearers for the New Haven funerals at two dollars a funeral ("planting stiff," as it is called in Yale self-help circles) to winning scholarships and acting as assistants in the laboratories.

It is furthermore a hopeful sign for American democracy that the men who work their way through college are in no sense looked down upon by their classmates. There are certain occupations which increase rather than lessen a man's chances for the class presidency or for similar honors. Not many years ago the degree of Bachelor of Ugliness, the highest honor in the gift of the student body of Vanderbilt, was bestowed upon a student who had worked his way through the university from his freshman year. The Federated School and Sectional Club of Yale has been making a special effort to secure future students who are willing to earn their way through college because they have discovered that many of the graduates who have brought most honor to their Alma Mater have been recruited from among this class of young men.

Apropos of this movement in our colleges, I have thought that the results obtained by the census which was taken by the self-help bureau of Millsaps College might prove of interest and of aid to the readers of the Advocate—of interest in that they can therein see what is being done to help needy students in one of the Church's own colleges, and of aid in that other colleges may perhaps get therefrom a suggestion which will increase the efficiency of their own self-help bureaus.

Last May each student was given a blank slip on which he was asked to report the amount he had earned during the session and the ways in which he had earned it. Out of the one hundred and fifty-nine students who reported there were sixty-nine one way or another earned money during the college year. A condensed report of the census is given below, showing occupation, amount earned, and number engaged.

that preaching, clerking in the city stores, and writing insurance were the most lucrative occupations, and that the first two, together with attending to stock, delivering papers, acting as agents for laundries, and pressing clothes, were the most popular "professions."

An examination of the grades in the secretary's book showed, furthermore, that the scholarship of those who were working their way through college was superior to that of the students who did no outside work. Thus, to give but one test, the sixty-nine workers made seventy-eight grades between ninety and one hundred, while the ninety non-workers made only seventy-four such grades. Had the percentage of failures among the students been computed, it would have resulted in an even more favorable showing for the self-help men, and this, notwithstanding the fact that the co-eds, who are as a rule better students than the men, were for the most part classed among the non-workers. Certainly there is no ground for believing that outside work as a whole interferes with scholarship.

It should be added that the self-help bureau at Millsaps deserves but slight credit for the showing here made; it is due almost entirely to individual initiative and demonstrates clearly the fine possibilities in this field of work for the self-help bureau of the Y. M. C. A. With a better organized bureau, such as we hope to have next year, the total amount earned would be increased at least thirty per cent and the whole movement placed upon a more secure and settled working basis.

pleased to have with us on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, Mr. J. N. Montgomery, traveling secretary of the Association from Alabama. Mr. Montgomery was the guest of Dr. Kern while here. He made acquaintance with a large number of the students and did much toward creating an interest in Y. M. C. A. work.

On Tuesday morning at chapel he spoke to the student body on the subject of forming character. He appealed to the boys, taking as the basis of his remarks the words of the Bible, to do those things and only those things which stand for the development of the highest

Christian character. At four o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Montgomery met with the cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. together with all members of the Bible study committee. Methods were discussed and plans talked over for making this the best year in Y. M. C. A. work especially in study of the Bible as the great message to college men. Mr. Montgomery was with us again on Wednesday morning and conducted chapel services.

But by far the greatest message was the one on Tuesday night, when he spoke to quite a number of the young men in the Y. M. C. A. hall on Bible study. The speaker brought to us more clearly the needs of the student for knowledge of the Bible. At the conclusion of his remarks several pledged themselves to give ten minutes each day to a study of this great book.

We are very glad to have had Mr. Montgomery with us and hope that he will come again.

THE SELF-HELP BUREAU.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an article written by Dr. Kern for the Christian Advocate in which he reviews the work of the self-help bureau of this and other colleges. The figures set forth by Dr. Kern are surprising. They show that during last session nearly half of the students of Millsaps made an average of approximately one hundred dollars ($100.00) each. When we consider that this amount is over one-half of the necessary expenses of a session, the result is even more surprising. We believe that if the fact of such possibilities for working one's way through college were known throughout the state, there would be a great increase in the enrollment in the near future.

The self-help bureau at Millsaps differs from those of many other institutions in that it is under the direct management of the Y. M. C. A. This organization is behind every good movement in college, and we do not hesitate to say that the self-help department is among the ones most worthy to be pushed. The authorities of the Y. M. C. A. have appointed J. B. Kirkland, manager, and Knox Brown, assistant manager for this year. Students who want work, sign the self-help blanks, indicating what work is preferred. The managers distribute these blanks around town both in the business sections and at the residences. People wanting work done communicate with the managers and he assigns somebody to the job. A goodly number of students have already signed up for this year and it is expected that a good many more will do so.

The students are not the only ones who profit by the efforts of the bureau. It has also been of great advantage to the business men of the city in getting ready service. Nearly every merchant needs an extra man on Saturday, and having the self-help bureau to draw from, relieves him from the necessity of picking up a street loafer. When he has bills to be collected, he likes to entrust them to a young man working his way through college. The men of the city speak in appreciative terms of the work of the bureau.

While the bureau has done most valuable work in the past, it is to be hoped that it will increase in its efforts in the future. The state is filled with young men who are yearning for the possibilities that an higher education will give them, but who are too poor to go to college without financial aid. Once let these men know that there is an organization at Millsaps which proposes to help them through school, and they will flock here in numbers unheard of before.

KAPPA SIGMA SMOKER.

(Intended for Last Issue.)

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, the members of the Kappa Sigma fraternity threw open the doors of their spacious colonial home, Galloway Hall, to welcome their friends to a delightful smoker. Of all the enjoyable affairs of the year, no other holds quite the place in the hearts of the boys as this annual smoker and on Wednesday night they found more pleasure awaiting them. While listening to the sweet music of the orchestra, the young men recalled other delightful evenings and relater tales of college pranks and summer pleasures.

The enjoyment of the evening was greatly enhanced by the presence of a number of the faculty, and some of the old Kappa Sigma's who still love the frat and enjoy the smokers as much as in their college days. The hours passed quickly and it was with regret that the guests bid their hosts goodbye after enjoying the charming hospitality which the K. S.'s know so well how to extend.

THE PHI DELTA SMOKER.

(Intended for Last Issue.)

The Phi Delta fraternity entertained their friends on Saturday evening, Oct. 6, at one of the most enjoyable smokers of the year. Their elegant and attractive rooms were filled with a jolly crowd of boys, who made the hours merry with jokes, songs and talks of marvelous adventure. Smoking was greatly enjoyed and each guest was served with punch and an abundance of fruit. Nothing could be more delightful than for these boys, who see each other every day in the class room and on the campus, to gather here and in this pleasant manner spend such a jolly evening.

It was at a late hour that the Phi Deltas and their friends said good night; each guest declaring that this smoker was one of the most delightful he had attended.

GALLOWAYS DECIDE IMPORTANT QUESTION.

The Galloway Literary Society met last Friday night under most auspicious and favorable conditions—all the factionalism and strife occasioned by the great political battle waged in society hall at the previous meeting had died down—leaving in its place a united and determined feeling on the part of all the members to make this the best year of the society.

After the installation of the officers-elect, M. Johnson, the orator of the occasion, was called forth and in response delivered an excellent oration which was enjoyed by every member of the society.

The debate was one of special interest, not only to the Galloways, but to all the students of Millsaps as well—touching as it does one of the most important discussions brought before the student body at the present time. It furnished a field for many striding and effective speeches on each side. The question was, "Resolved, that Millsaps should abandon football and devote her time to other sports." The affirmative was represented by R. W. Jones and N. Harmon, while the negative was represented by T. C. Willingham and W. D. Barrett. After much time spent in earnest consideration and deliberation over the question it was decided in favor of the negative. "Bigfoot" Jones claims that there was bribery connected with the decision, but no one has any very grave fear of an impeachment of the judges growing out of the charges.

RESOLUTIONS.

The recent bereavement of Mr. E. S. Brooks, on account of the death of his father, brings sadness to his many friends. Therefore be it

Resolved, by the Prentiss Literary Society:

1. That we express our sympathy to him and the bereaved family.
2. That we pray God may bless them in their bereavement.
3. That we regret Mr. Brook's absence from our school.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Purple and White and that a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

PRENTISS SOCIETY.

Lively Question Debated.
(Intended for Last Issue.)

Prentiss Literary Society met Friday night, October 4. The house was called to order by President Golding. After the opening prayer, led by Odum, the roll was called, and thirty-six members answered present.

The names of two new men, Mr. Yerger and Mr. Bending, were handed in, and they were initiated into the Society.

The literary exercises were unusually good. H. S. Wheeler read an instructive essay on the life of Abraham Lincoln. W. K. Williams, the declaimer for the evening, proved that he still has some of those medal winning qualities which were so manifest last June.

The question for debate was: "Resolved, that foreign immigration is detrimental to our nation." Messrs. Odum, Waller and Musslewhite discussed the affirmative side, and Messrs. Joyce, Barrett and Wooten defended the negative. The judges decided in favor of the negative.

A committee on resolutions was appointed by the president to express the sympathy of the Society to Mr. E. S. Brooks in the loss of his father.

I. C. Garraway was elected essayist for one month hence, and W. P. Perkins was elected door-keeper as successor to Mr. Brooks.

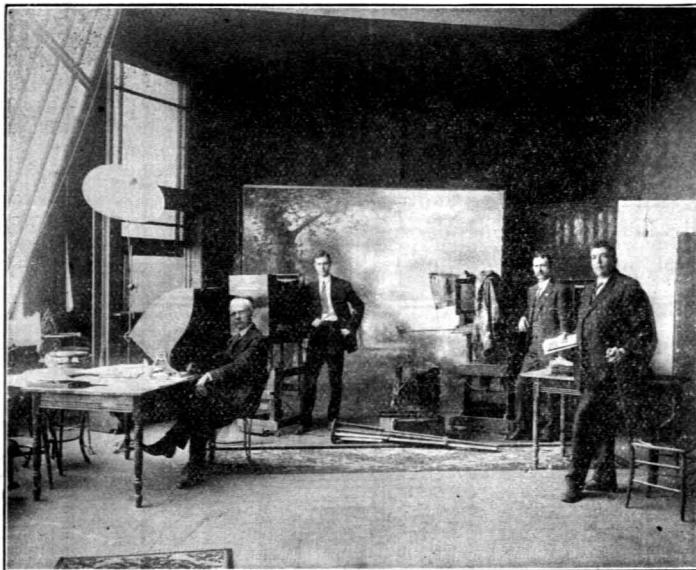

We were glad to have with us Friday night some of our honorary members—the coeds. We want them to come again for they are always welcome.

PRENTISS LITERARY SOCIETY.

On Friday evening at eight o'clock the regular meeting of the Prentiss Literary Society was called to order by President Golden. Gregg delivered an excellent reading upon James A. Garfield. The question for debate was, "Resolved, that whiskey is more injurious to a nation than war." The speakers who represented the affirmative were Whitson, Green and Mansell. Those on the negative were Davis, Odom and Barrett. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

Who is Monitor of the Century section this year? Let us suggest that since this is such a large section, there be two monitors appointed and instructed to report all absentees to the President.

PREP LOCALS.

The entire student body of the Millsaps Preparatory School, extends its deepest sympathy to E. S. Brooks, on account of the recent death of his father.

Mr. I. D. Hicks, a former student of the Prep School, made us a short visit Sunday. He was enroute to Atlanta, Ga., where he is to enter the Southern School of Pharmacy.

The Prep football team is progressing rapidly. The outlook is exceedingly cheerful and we are expecting a winning team.

Pride goeth before destruction. Watch out, or the Prep's weight may destroy some of the college brains.

Freshman to Prep: "Say, Sport, which are you trying for on the team, right or left formation?"

Someone wanted to know why the college refused to scrimmage the Preps. Perhaps they used some of their superfluous brains.

SOPHOMORES ELECT OFFICERS.

Following in the footsteps of the Seniors and Juniors the members of the Sophomore class got together last week and with some politics all their own managed to pull off the annual election of class officers. Be it said to their credit that they had profited somewhat by the experiences of the past year and pulled through the affair without any very serious hitches or hinderances of any kind.

The officers selected are as follows:

- R. H. Harmon, president.
- K. M. Broom, vice president
- C. Bullock secretary,
- G. W. Harrison, treasurer.
- Miss Green, historian.
- J. W. Chisolm, liar.
- J. Gaddis, sport.
- J. Condrey, honor council.

quent orations, logical arguments, and prophetic visions. Some of the best speakers of the society spoke and the one prophet of the society prophesied. Altogether the meeting was one of much profit to the speakers and of much pleasure to the listeners.

The declaimer of the evening, Case, spoke very eloquently on the lives of great men in general and of Lafayette in particular. At times the eloquence of Case was so great that the imaginative listener could see the great French patriot as he stood at the head of the American army with his powdered locks waving before the wind. Case is no stranger to the Lamars as he was one of the most loyal members of last year.

Next came the orator, James McClure. The very name is eloquent. This young man, with his graceful bearing and his slow and forceful delivery made a lasting impression on every member of the society, and his terse, short, emphatic sentences, replete with practical thoughts and common sense, burned themselves into the minds of the listeners. McClure is one of our new men and bids fair to make himself an influence felt in the society before the session closes.

After the orations came the regular order of debate. The question, "Resolved, that the Hague has failed to cope successfully with the peace problem," was argued ably by Weems, Hillman and McGee for the affirmative, and Harrison for the negative. The decision was rendered by the judges in favor of the affirmative. Well deserved mention might be made of all the debators, but especial mention should be made of Mr. Hillman, a new member of the Law Class. He handled his subject as only the great lawyer that he is destined to make might handle his case. We will always be glad to hear Hillman at any time on any subject.

Mention should be made here of McGee, our old stand-by, and our only prophet. His knowledge of geology and astronomy is such that his prophecies equal and possibly excel those of Elisha and Elijah. Lack of space forbids us to mention his prophetic utterances, but suffice it to say, that everybody might well watch the programs for the appearance of Mr. McGee's name and come out to hear him.

FOOTBALL.

Fresh-Sophs Downed Preps, Score 20-0—Gaddis and Cassibry Star in Snappy Game—Gates and Holder Play Well for Preps.

The first game of football was played last Thursday between the Freshmen-Sophomores and Prep teams. Both teams were in good form and although the game was rather one-sided, it was very interesting. The Preps were confident of victory because they have much the heavier team, and have been practicing for a longer period.

The Freshmen-Sophomores however, were not afraid in the least and when the game was called it took them just four minutes to make the first touch down. After the first half the Preps became aware of the fact that weight is not what counts in football.

The score after the first half was 20 to 0, and although the Freshmen-Sophomores could have scored in the last part of the game the feeling they have for the Preps kept them from doing so. The detail of the game is as follows:

The Fresh-Soph kick off and Golden returns the ball two yards; the Preps then fail to make the distance and the ball goes over. McLain gains six yards; Hathorn goes around the end for twenty yards; Cassibry sweeps around left end for touch down. The Fresh-Sophs kick off and the ball is returned five yards. Then there was playing pro and con and when the first quarter was over the ball was on the 20 yd. line in Fresh-Soph possession. Second quarter, Cassibry fifteen yards; Gaddis then goes through the line for a touch down; kicks goal. Preps kick off and Hilzem returns eight yards. Gaddis then goes around the end for eight yards. Gaddis goes through the line for two yards. Holder recovers forward pass and runs fifteen yards. Wilber gains three yards. Gates ploughs through line for nine yards. Hol-

Annual Boom Inaugurated

Senior Class Assumes Responsibility and Elects Competent Staff—Scott, Editor—Weems, Chairman of Business Corps—Work Will Begin at Once and Annual Will Come Out Early.

The knockers will please put up their hammers, the pessimists kindly pessimate no more, let the kill-joys order a quart, the Class of '13 will uphold its record as a class which does things. It has assumed the responsibility of an Annual, therefore a successful production is assured.

The committee appointed by President Lampton to confer with Dr. Kern in regard to an annual met with him on last Thursday and after due consideration the following staff was nominated. At a meeting of the Class on Friday it was elected in toto:

F. T. Scott, Editor-in-Chief.

G. H. Moore, Literary Editor.

Miss Hortense Smith, Art Editor.

J. A. Blount, Law Editor.

J. D. Wroten, Club Editor.

S. L. Crockett, Statistic Editor.

J. W. Weems, S. B. Lampton, F. H. McGee, Business Managers.

"Red" Golden, Prep Editor.

Joe Spinks, Prep. Business Manager.

It can be said without fear of contradiction that a better man than Frank Scott could not have been selected to head the staff. Since the time of his entrance as a Prep he has been known as a man who does things, a willing and competent worker. Scott is very fortunate in having associated with him as literary editor and associate editor, George Moore—Moore is considered one of the brainiest and best read men who ever attended Millsaps and will add much to the excellence of the forthcoming annual. As every one knows, nothing adds so much to a publication as good illustrations, and if Miss Smith is not an artist of renown herself, her personality and winning ways are sufficient to make any artist work his fingers off for the good of her department.

Blount is an old head, and capable, as is shown by his work on many previous annuals.

Dorsey Wroten, a "joiner" himself, is equal to the task of portraying Club Life in Millsaps.

That Crockett is worthy is evident from the fact that, an under class man, he is given a place among the gods.

So far as getting out the Bobashela is concerned, no one has so much responsibility as the business managers. This year this important position has been given to a board of three, with J. T. Weems as Chairman, assisted by Lampton and McGee. These men will divide the work between them and each has the privilege of selecting an assistant. The annual will be out by May 1.

These men will get out a good annual, but they must have your support, especially financial. Will you do your part?

Y. M. C. A.

Prof. Lin Discusses the Character of Daniel.

An Interesting Session Attended by Large Audience.

On last Friday night the Association was much gratified at having Professor Lin as the speaker for the evening. It was his first time to appear before the Y. M. C. A., not having been here before this year, but already he has acquired a reputation for admirable character, forceful speaking, and a thorough knowledge of the Bible. Therefore quite a large number of students, faculty members, and visitors were collected in the Y. M. C. hall to hear Professor Lin.

He began by calling attention to the very evident fact that in church attendance there is always a majority of women. Passing by some reasons assigned as the cause of this, the speaker said that there was one thing which he considered as the primary cause of the predominance of women in religion, namely, that the feminine virtues of religion had been stressed too much, that attention was not called to the fact that Christ had been the strength of ages and dominated and shaped the lives of men whom we have considered the strongest of the strong. We have looked upon Christ as the Lily of the Valley and have forgotten that he was also the Lion of the tribe of Judah. The religion of such a man can be none other than a man's religion.

In coming to the special man under discussion, Professor Lin stated that Daniel was a man to be admired for the combination of strength, purity, and gentleness, that went to make up his life. Briefly, but with force and emphasis on significant facts, the speaker discussed the successive events in the life of Daniel from the time when as a boy he was taken as a captive to the great City of Babylon. There he entered into the life of the court at one of the most luxurious and splendid capitals of the ancient world. In the same way and yet to a much greater extent, Daniel was confronted by the same problem that comes to the school-boy when he enters college: the temptation to waste his time in frivolty and idleness and change the words learned in a Christian home for those of a more thoughtless world about him. But Daniel had purposed in his heart that these things should not change the course of his life. The speaker laid special emphasis on this fact that it was no accident in the case of Daniel but that behind his great achievements there was a firm and steadfast purpose, the necessary foundation for a successful life.

The course of Daniel's life was followed up through the days when he became one of the first men of the nation. Daniel won his way into the hearts of the people by his gentle and lovable qualities. A man need not be weak to be a gentleman. No character in ancient history was stronger than that of Daniel and yet no one was loved better by his people. The king showed his love by being unable to sleep on the night that Daniel spent in the lions' den.

The great qualities of Daniel which ought to be admired and followed by the young men of today are his moral purpose, his mental strength and diligence in the work laid out for him to do. The life of Daniel was a well rounded life, a life so perfectly balanced in its mental, moral, and physical aspects that nothing could shake its purpose, its course, or its final destiny.

Altogether it was a strong and pleasing presentation of a good subject. The students were much pleased by Professor Lin's style and hope to have him speak to us again.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Weems presented the subject of Bible study as a part of the Association work.

PREP LOCALS.

Bro. Savage in Caesar Class: "Let's have better order in class. If you expect me to treat you as ladies and gentlemen, you must treat me the same way."

The nerve of some people! A Freshman actually approached a Prep and proposed that they go to town together. Some one should take it upon themselves to inform the sadly neglected individuals in regard to the pride and dignity of His Highness, the Prep.

Of course we had to suffer defeat in order to encourage the variety to further activity.—The Prep football team.

Watch out fellows, the old story of "I have a relative in town," is getting weak in the eyes of the faculty.

The fair is at hand. Of course we shall all attend and let people know that we are Preps.

THE '13 BOBASHELA.

No one who is at all familiar with the work which has been accomplished on the annual during the past week has any hesitancy in predicting for Millsaps the most successful annual in her history—both from a financial and a literary standpoint. The business like manner in which the Senior Class has conducted the preliminary arrangements, the excellent staff which has been selected, the financial support which has been assured and the hearty co-operation which is being tendered it on every hand—all go to make up what are considered the most favorable auspices under which the Bobashela Boom has ever been launched and portend for Chief Scott and his associates the production of an annual of unexcelled merit and worth.

An annual is a thing in which a school may justly take pride, for it is a reflection, as it were, of the year's work and happenings—a thing by which others may come to know something of the pleasures and doings of the inner collegiate circle—a thing that will in after years enable the student to call back the sweet memories, associations and friendships of a happy college career. It is encumbered upon every man then, in order that he may be a part of this important college publication that he do his part in aiding the staff in getting together the material for the Annual. The business manager has signified his intention of getting the Annual out sooner than it has ever been done before—that is not later than May 1. In order for him to do this you must have your picture made on time, pay your levies promptly, subscribe for an Annual and help the staff in every possible manner.

EXIT FAIR; ENTER GRIND.

Well, the fair with all its distractions, with all its fascinations, is over. We have all been down and have had a good time. We have taken in everything from the farm exhibit to the various attractions on the pike. We have listened to the speal of the fakir as he appealed to our credulity, and, in many instances, have proved gullible. We have gone down with our pockets jingling with silvery coins and returned despondently rattling our keys. We have been down sometimes perhaps, when we ought not to have gone, when we used a great deal of our time watching out for the Profs. But, taking it all in all, we have had a good time. We all have our regrets, but we also have our happy recollections.

It is, however, over now, fellows, and with it we should let go everything that has stood between us and our school duties. We should get down to earnest, conscientious work. Between now and the Christmas holidays there are eight weeks. In these eight weeks, the best work of the session can be done. There will be nothing to disturb us. During this time we ought to review our back work so thoroughly and get up our present recitations so well that we will store our minds with a bulwark of knowledge that no set of examination questions will be able to overcome. We owe this duty to ourselves, to our college, and to our parents.

The effect of the fair on the student body and especially on the new boys is always a matter of great concern to the faculty and to others who are interested. There are so many distractions, so many things connected and associated with it that are misleading in their tendency that it is easy for a boy to get started wrong during the week that it is in progress. If there is one among us who feels that he has strayed from the right path during this week, let him resolve that the ill effects shall not be permanent. Let him resolve to profit by his experience and be able to tell his new college friend of next session to beware. Above all, fellows, let the exit of the fair be the signal to get down to work.

CORRUPT POLITICS IN MILLSAPS.

Woman's Suffrage Plays Prominent Part.

Any one on the campus last Wednesday afternoon would have thought that the Bull Moose were in convention. The howls of the Western cowboy intermingled with screeches and squeals of the lady suffragettes permeated the most remote parts of the campus. Officer Hitch peacefully sleeping in rear of Brown's Livery stable was awakened by the uproar and after sending in a hurry call for a double force of reserves hastened towards the seat of combat to quell the riot. But on his arrival he found that the Freshmen had merely gone into executive session for the purpose of electing officers. Hon. W. E. Hobbs called the meeting to order and was elected temporary chairman. Messrs. Carraway, Duncan and Hendricks were then placed in nomination for president. At the end of the first ballot the count stood:

Number present 36; number votes cast 56. Carraway, 32; Hendricks, 12; Duncan, 12. Hon. T. Roos. Carraway was declared elected.

At the close of the election of vice-president it was evident the suffragettes held the upper hand and that no one but those of pul-chretidinous superiority would be selected. Mr. J. N. McNeil was chosen vice president overwhelmingly. The majority party then decided that the Divine Right of Woman should be upheld, consequently the following Co-suffragettes were elected:

Miss Buck, secretary.

Miss Ella K. Steen, historian.

Miss Shurlds, poet.

Having in mind the Biblical statement that "All Men Are Liars," it was with some difficulty that the High Exalted Grandfather of this mighty order was selected, but after due consideration T. M. Rubble, Esq., was unanimously chosen.

Mr. Barrett was elected Honor Councilman over Mr. Jamie Thompson by a vote of 48 to 43.

The complete list is:

L. T. Carraway, President.

J. N. McNeil, Vice President.

Miss Buck, Secretary.

Miss Ella K. Stean, Historian.

Miss Shurlds, Poet.

Mr. Rubble, Liar.

W. D. Barrett, Honor Councilman.

Co-ed to Backstrum: "You are pretty much of a celebrity."

Backstrum (elated) "A what?"

Co-ed (frantically endeavoring to explain) "O, something like a wild animal."

Dr. Watkins: (In Psychology class) "Mr. Morse, what is timbre?"

Mr. Morse: (very knowingly) "Lumber, Doctor."

Dr. Watkins: "I mean timbre from a psychological standpoint."

Mr. Morse: "The material then from which psychology is made."

LAMAR LITERARY SOCIETY.

Enthusiastic Meeting — Patterson Declaims and Hillman Delivers Oration.

A lively interest is being taken this year by the Lamars in society work. This is evident by the record of last Friday night. Every man on the program was present. Several new men were on the program and they made an excellent showing. The declaimer of the evening, Patterson, made an excellent speech. He is a man who will make a good record on the platform and who will bring honors to the society. After the declaimer, the orator, E. L. Hillman, in a pleasant and forceful style, delivered an excellent oration.

The question for debate was "Resolved, the Negro Should Have a College Education." The first speaker on the affirmative was Blewett. He handled the subject in his usual masterly way, making a strong and pathetic appeal in behalf of the negro. Selby came next for the negative and in his customary way put the enemy to flight. Next came W. W. Hillman, who spoke in a very forceful manner. Following Hillman, Boswell spoke in behalf of the negative. He handled the subject in a logical and matter of fact way and greatly aided his side. Kirkland next spoke for the affirmative and acquitted himself well. The last speaker, Gathings, was at his best and gave a good speech which determined the final decision in favor of the negative.

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.

Declare that Governor Shall Not Have Pardoning Power.

The regular meeting of the Galloway Literary Society took place Friday evening in the society's hall. An unusually lively and interesting debate was on the program for the evening. The question was "Resolved, That the Governor Should Not Have the Pardoning Power." The affirmative was ably represented by Messrs. Bullock, Crocket and Keister while the negative was equally as well represented by Messrs. J. B. Cain, Lauderdale and Reagan. The question, which is of vital interest to the State of Mississippi, and which is now so prominent before the public, was decided in favor of the affirmative.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Lamar Society re-

PRENTISS SOCIETY.

Preps Decided in Favor of Compulsory Education.

Friday, Oct. 18, the house was called to order by the President, and led in prayer by the Chaplain. After the roll call, three new members, Messrs. Holder, Ventress, and McGehee, were initiated into the Society.

The literary exercises were then taken up. The essayist being absent, the declaimer, "Red" Golding, was the first speaker. He delivered an excellent oration.

The question for the evening: "Resolved, that the United States Should Adopt Compulsory Education," was well debated. The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Johnson, Alford and Holmes, while on the negative side were Bending, Waller and Perkins. The judges rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative. Scott from the Lamars was then given the floor and after a few words of encouragement to the members, stated the main reason of his visit.

The Bobashela Staff Committee, had decided, he said, to have two representatives from the Prep department, an editor and a business manager, as these officers were to come from the Society, the house was then opened for nominations. Golding was elected without opposition as editor. But there seemed to be different ideas as to who should be business manager. B. B. Gates and Joe Spinks were nominated, and when the count was taken, Spinks was declared elected.

There being no further business to come before the Society it was adjourned.

Law Department

At the last meeting of the High Moot Court, the case of J. P. Waugh vs. the P. & Q. R. R. Co., came up for consideration and after a wonderful battle between opposing counsel the case was submitted to the jury. A verdict was rendered in behalf of the plaintiff and $75,000 fixed as the amount of damages.

Judge Fulton Thompson presided as special Judge. His decisions were noteworthy because of their lucidity and power. Judge Thompson will no doubt at some future date wear the Ermine of this country's Highest Court.

The counsel for both sides of the case were all particular stars. As they thundered the canons of law at the court and jury, men marvelled. Very brilliant indeed was the address of Attorney Sharborough. This eloquent address was, in full, as follows: Gentlemen of the jury, you have as much sense as these here lawyers and I thank you for your close attention." With an expansive Hooliganesque bow he submitted the case.

The address of each lawyer in the case was good but any report of the case without mention of E. H. Green's plaintive cry for Roderick, would be hopelessly incomplete.

The case of J. M. Talbert vs. Mack George for libellous statements as to his character was thrown out of court because of a lack of consideration.

James A. Blount, who stands as a sort of Fiduciary of Cupid, visited Charleston the first of the week. Ostensibly business was the reason for his visit but really, it was to see "Miss Freckles."

CLARK'S ORATION

Speech Delivered by G. C. Clark at N. I. O. A. Contest Last May

THE NEXT VICTORY OF THE ANGLO SAXON

Great deeds call for noble men. Only those men in whose veins runs the red blood of a virile race can blaze the path for the world's onward march. Every race has had its allotted work, and the proud race of the Anglo-Saxon is no exception.

Follow me for a moment while we review the history of the Anglo-Saxon on the battlefield,—a history not marked by age but crowned with progress from its beginning to the present time.

King Alfred, the West Saxon, sounded the bugle blast that called the men of his own blood together and began the most marvellous history of the greatest people that the world has ever known. The conflict which ensued was not only a conflict between Dane and Saxon, but between Thor and Christ. A challenge came from the warrior god to the Prince of Peace. The struggle began, Christianity conquered, and England became a nation.

Now since she has taken her place among the nations of the earth she must battle for existence. The bugle called again, and the yeomen of England faced the aristocracy of mighty Spain. When the black clouds of war cleared away and the bright sun arose over the "white cliffs of Albion," it was revealed to the anxious watchers not only that the Armada was destroyed and Spain humbled, but that England was the mistress of the deep.

Time passed, and England grew, but soon the world must witness another combat. The scene had shifted across the Atlantic to the Plains of Abraham; and the struggle was to determine the strength of the English people in the Western world. The French, haughty, proud, and brave, were out-witted by the chivalrous Wolfe; and on that glad morning when he met his fate, well could he say, "I die in peace," for his work was finished and another continent acknowledged the power of the blue-eyed race.

But not in war alone has this mighty people set its seal on the pages of history. The greatest constructive mind in the history of statesmanship, a mind that thought in terms of continents and nations, bent its energies to the building of a powerful Anglo-Saxon empire, and from his desk in London, William Pitt, the Great Commoner, directed the destinies of England, America, India, and the domain of the sea. His fondest dream was a mighty empire girdling the world with the principles of Anglo-Saxon freedom.

But it was not to be. God had willed that the empire whose building was the master-piece of this far-seeing statesman, who ranks with Alexander, Caesar, and Peter the Great, this one undivided country, should now be separated, and for ages the two resulting world powers should walk in diverse paths, now at peace, now at war, until today they stand shoulder to shoulder in the great movement that looks to the banishment of war from international politics.

Thus the powerful English-speaking people that delight to honor the common heroes of two nations, the people whose hearts thrill at the names of Shakespeare and Henry V, of Milton and Cromwell, this people have carried to the highest point of perfection war and the politics of war. But to-day we stand at a point where war belongs to the past. Orly yesterday this great evil was permissible, today it is absolutely wrong.

A crowning victory over this wrong is the next great deed assigned to the two vast nations that today face each other across the ever-narrowing waters of an ocean that unites for peaceful pursuits rather than divides into war-like camps. Already there is a voice crying in the wilderness of war and waste, "Prepare ye the way for the next victory of the Anglo-Saxon—the establishment of universal peace." Nor shall we be discouraged if progress toward this ideal seems slow:

"Heaven is not gained by a single bound,

We build the ladder by which we rise

From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,

And mount to its summit round by round."

It is a vast and mighty chasm across which we look from the evil of war to the righteousness of peace, and the goal seems far away, but—"Not in vain the distant beacons.

Forward, forward, let us range,
Let the great world spin forever
Down the ringing grooves of change."

But war and the love of war are strongly entrenched in the minds and hearts of men. Nation still rises against nation because we have not yet agreed upon a better method of settling disputes and because the animal side of our nature can yet be aroused by the so-called protectors of our nation, who are, in fact, human vampires sucking the life-blood of toiling millions. When seventy-two cents of every dollar spent by the American government goes to support army and navy, or to pension those made helpless by past wars, it comes over us with appalling force, that whether in peace or in war, it is the humble array of toiling humanity that must win the victory or go down in defeat and death. The glory and the applause, the tumult and the shouting are for the military hero, while the crushing burden of unholy war falls on the man whose labor supports the nation.

We hasten then to shed our brother's blood because the warrior has been the ideal of the orator and MILLSAPS CLASS '12.

Last Year's Senior Class Fast Rounding into Judges, Physicians and Business Men.

A college has no advertisement of equal value to that of the prominence which her Alumni take after graduation. That Millsaps is well advertised can be shown, taking only a single instance, by the positions that last year's class,—mere fledglings,—have taken in the great world of "get-up and hustle." From the energy which they have shown in getting down to work "right now" and the prominence of the positions which they hold at present, although less than one year removed from the wings of their Alma Mater, it can be expected that before long the Class of '12 will number among its Alumni bank and college presidents, M. D.'s, Ph. D.'s, L. L. D.'s and D. D.'s.

A few are still continuing their studies in this and other institutes that they may be still better prepared to tackle the world and support a wife.

Farve Adams, that genial and happy-go-lucky person, is now a theological student at Vanderbilt. Some day, it is prophesied, a book will appear: "Baseball in Biblical Times," by Bishop M. F. Adams, author of "The Good Jokes Related by Job to M. F. Adams."

Of course, Walter Henderson, "Louisiana's mocking-bird," could not let Farve be separated from him so he joined him at Vanderbilt, from whence in the distant future, he expects to emerge as a full-fledged "saw-bones" and "pill-roller."

Prospective Supreme Judges are plentiful. Fulton Thompson, E. H. Green and U. F. Logue have formed a temporary partnership for the purpose of instructing Judge Whitfield in the rudiments of law, and it is certain that if they have advised him on all the points of law and equity, the knowledge of which they have shown in the various sessions of the Moot Court, the poet. In song and story we see war from its sunny side alone. We see the battle-scarred hero, the glorious triumph, the palms of victory. We do not see the agonizing soldier writhing in death, his last painful gasp a protest against the sacrifice of a human life on the altar of personal ambition. We do not see the mother as she stands in the door-way watching with ever fainter hope for the return of the one support of her declining years. We hear not the sob of the maiden in her first sorrow, nor do we see the silvered head of the old man brought down in grief to the grave. Our excited imagination is stirred only by beating drums, flaunting flags, and shouts of victory. Too long have our writers taught us that it is our highest honor to lay down our lives on the field of battle. In sober truth it should be as great a disgrace for a civilized man to waste his God-given life of opportunity in a legalized war as in a lawless duel. It was this same mistaken sense of honor that sent Alexander Hamilton to the fatal field and laid low the mightiest intellect of American state-craft at the feet of a political renegade. And thus are men, made in the image of God, slain like beasts of the field by creatures often lower than these same beasts. Thousands of noble, capable men, whose brain and brawn could have blessed a whole world, have fallen like cattle, a sacrifice to this false conception of honor, when the stroke of a pen, guided by the hand of a statesman, could have adjusted all troubles without the clash of arms.

When once the enlightened mind of the race that has made modern

England and America shall grasp the appalling cost of war in men and money we shall lay aside these outworn ideas of glory and honor,—

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals or forts."

If an infinitesimal part of what has been expended in preparing the mighty engines of war had been devoted to the development of reason and the diffusion of Christ-like principles, all the terror, devastation and demoralization of this evil would today be mere records for the industry of the antiquarian.

Let us frankly admit that it is over the blood-stained battlefields of the past that the twin nations of Anglo-Saxon stock have marched to power and glory, but today they stand in the forefront of civilization because they have a noble and sublime mission to perform—a mission to be a light to them that sit in the darkness of war and death, to lead them out into the light of universal peace.

We, the sons of Anglo-Saxon warriors, must teach the world that what is just and right between man and man is just and right between nation and nation, that the God whose chosen title is the Prince of Peace has established but one code of morals. No longer shall we teach and practice a double code, no longer shall we call that right in war which is wrong in peace. Rather shall we from school room, pulpit, and home, teach the young men who make the America of to-morrow that the true reliance of a "great, free, powerful, and independent nation" must be the irresistible force—not of arms—but of law and justice.

Today the great offspring of sturdy sires, England and America, stand in a moral and physical pre-eminence, secure from attack, fated for leadership, with traditions of conquest that betoken still greater victories. God has given our people strength and power to conquer a world, but He has willed that this conquest should be one of peace. That day has come when the "far-flung battle line" shall yield to the suggestive influence of a holy zeal for higher manhood. Thus shall our honored race still lead the advance in cementing together the nations of the earth into a new "Parliament of man," where every people shall retain individual characteristics, but shall delight to obey a common law of justice and peace.

This time of peace, the vision of the poet and the dream of the philosopher, shall be at hand when the warring nations accept those two principles which are now dominating the life of the Anglo-Saxon and which are destined to make of this battle-seamed earth a glorious home,—those radiant truths, the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. The little streams and rivulets of kindly sympathy and fraternal justice flowing out from the lives of consecrated workers for international peace are gathering into a mighty river that leads on to the great ocean of universal brotherhood.

Then shall the poet no longer look for inspiration to the jagged battle-axe or the reeking field of carnage. Then shall he sing as his greatest hero the man who inspired by duty to suffering humanity gains a glorious tomb in combating disease and death in the crowded hovels of the poor, or the man who, in the face of famine and flood, reclaims a barren desert to be an earthly paradise.

And shall not you and I join hands with others of our noble race to hasten this triumphant day? Let us endeavor at our appointed posts of duty, to start a ripple on the ocean of public opinion that will gather mass and power until all the people of the earth shall strike hands in a common purpose, no longer to destroy but henceforth to help—not to war but to arbitrate. Let us nobly stand back of those great leaders of the two greatest nations, who as torch bearers of a mighty movement signal to each other across the once stormy Atlantic. And though mistaken views of public policy have marred and perhaps defeated the first great universal arbitration treaty, it is not in the sturdy manhood of our fighting race to be conquered. Delayed but not defeated, this first of the great peace pacts of the regenerated world shall be ratified. Then will be established in the brighter years to come a Supreme Court of Humanity from which there can be no appeal and to which all nations shall bow with willing submission.

On that glad day when such a court shall be established and the praises of liberated man shall blend in celestial harmony with the music of the spheres, then shall all the nations of this re-born world arise and in thunderous tones exclaim, "God bless the Anglo-Saxon!"

Found in a Freshman's notebook.—"Dear Papa: Please send me a donation. I am having the time of my life. I have been beating these old show fellows out of the nicest cigars, and, just think, Papa, I came very near winning a quarter twice. Please forward check at once."

What a gleam of genuine pleasure it was to see the beaming countenance of our old property manager, Cook Selby, on the campus during the Fair! Cook is a Co-ed at Whitworth this session and from all reports, is doing good work.

Well, we wonder why certain members of the faculty went thro' the "squeezer?"

A well rounded college career may be said to be divided into three phases—that of the mental, physical and spiritual development.

Probably most people consider that the principal purpose of the college is the development of the mind, yet when we stop to think, we realize that a well developed mind is of little value to a student unless he has at the same time a sound and well developed body. A further analysis reveals the fact that spiritual development is likewise an essential requirement of a well rounded individual. What nobler and yet simpler conception can the human mind conceive of than the sturdy character building which is continually going hand in hand with the noble development of the mind.

The Athletic Association is a potent factor in promoting those activities that go to make a man's body strong and healthful—the class room routine and the literary societies have as their ideal the perfection of a man's mental capacities. But greater than all of these is the college Y. M. C. A., for it includes them all. Having as its motto, "Body, mind, and spirit," it is the embodiment of all that is best and noblest. It is the promoter of every good and noble movement in college. Its weekly meetings, conducted by students or friends of the Association, are a source of inspiration to higher and better living and furnish a religious atmosphere that surrounds the college at all times.

A man's entrance to college marks a critical moment in the development of these questions for which the Y. M. C. A. stands. Then, as at no other time, is a man susceptible to the various influences and associations that go to make up his environments. This being the case it is well for him to throw around himself all the protection he can against evil influences. Nothing he can do will be of more benefit in this respect than a speedy affiliation with the Y. M. C. A. Every man in School has had an opportunity of joining the Association, and if you haven't done so, let us urge you to ally yourself with this great band at the earliest possible moment.

CLARK'S SPEECH.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a complete reproduction of the speech which our representative, G. C. Clark, delivered at the Mississippi Inter-collegiate Oratorical Association, at Meridian, Miss., last May. As all of those who were present know, Clark had a great speech and made a most creditable showing on this occasion, although he was awarded second place by the judges, many, while accepting with absolute confidence the wisdom of the decision, believe that the judges would have done equally well had they given Clark first place. To say the least the students of Millsaps College are proud of the effort Clark made and The Purple and White takes great pleasure in reproducing the speech.

The Basketball squad is hard at work, and if present indications count for anything a winning team is assured. Manager Kirkland is arranging an excellent schedule that will be printed when completed.

The Freshmen have been busy this week writing compositions on "What We Saw at the Fair." We understand that most of them centered their attention on the "squeezer."

"Why, I've just oiled the cylinder."

BISHOP THIRKIELD'S ADDRESS.

Talk on Manhood—"Find Thyself" the Slogan.

Great Ovarions Given Major Millsaps and Dr. Watkins.

The students and faculty enjoyed a great treat at the chapel exercises on last Tuesday morning in the shape of a lecture by Bishop W. P. Thirkield.

Bishop Thirkield is a great speaker. He has a superb flow of language and his manner of speaking is so attractive that he has no trouble in holding his audience. On this morning he spoke for over an hour and when he stopped everyone seemed to be sorry that he was through.

After delivering a short eulogy on the life and character of Bishop Galloway, telling how glad he was to speak in a chapel graced by a picture of such a man, he launched into a discussion of a real man. He thinks that the highest aim of an education is to make a man. Manhood is in achievement, not in heredity, or environment. Of course these things may help one to make a true man, but unless one works, unless he is a doer of things, no sort of conditions or circumstances can make him a real man.

The Bishop thinks that one of the most important things toward a successful career is for a person to find himself and to develop a personality. He should know what he is like, and if that doesn't suit, he should strive to be like something else.

Another important thing is self-control. The Bishop said that many people have an erroneous idea as to what self-control is. The act of self-control is not throttling but directing. He likes the man of passion, but he likes to see the passion restrained. He has no use for the man with no temper, but he likes to see him keep it in bounds.

He congratulated the students in being able to get their education at a Christian college. It is easier to live a Christian life in a religious atmosphere than in a non-religious one, and a great many colleges that are not under the auspices of a Christian Church are essentially non-religious.

A person to be a man, must have a purpose. Bishop Thirkield thinks that the man without a purpose is beyond redemption. He stalks around over the earth in an humble way as if to apologize for being alive. He is in the way because he hasn't a strong enough purpose to give him enough energy to get out of it.

Toward the latter part of his speech, while reviewing the life of James A. Garfield, Bishop Thirkield sprang a surprise which brought forth a great ovation for Major Millsaps who was present on the stage. The early history of the founder of Millsaps College is not widely known. Therefore, when the Bishop reviewed this history, telling how he went through college on fifty cents a week, and how he finally ended up with a diploma from Harvard, reserving always the name to the last, there went up a shout from the audience, the like of which was never heard in Millsaps chapel before. When the enthusiasm of the students had spent itself, the Bishop pulled out his handkerchief, and waved it above his head. His example was followed by the students, and another shout went up that shook the windows of the chapel like a furious storm.

In ending, Bishop Thirkield paid a high tribute to our President, Dr. Watkins. This brought forth another volley of applause from the students.

that they have a very short while longer to tarry with him.

Feeling that the University Law Faculty is not the equal of Millsaps in mental aptness, Fred Smith, on account of his vocal stamina, has condescended to instruct the U. of M. Law Faculty in the legal branches, but thinks it will take, even him, at best two years to do it.

Daniel Ananias Bufkin is located in the capital city and says that he is talking a million dollars of life insurance and expects to write at least a thousand dollars worth. In his leisure moments he is worshipping at the shrine of Minerva. (Dr. Swartz, take note.)

In various parts of the world, in fact from Lucedale to Louisville, the five brilliant products of the Millsaps brand are teaching the young idea how to—what is it—they teach the young idea to do? No matter, you have likely heard the expression before. Jim Broom, with 6.0 assistants and 240.00 students reports that every idea shoots with an air gun, just like he does. The report is being circulated that Prof. Harrell expects to visit Prof. Broom in a few days in order to investigate an unusual physical phenomenon—the air is all hot.

SACRED CONCERT.

Y. M. C. A. Has a Special Music Program for To-night.

The meeting at the Y. M. C. A. to-night will be a departure from the usual method of conducting the meetings in that instead of having a single speaker there will be several. The topic for discussion will be "Prayer," and the various phases of the subject will be presented by some of the most forceful speakers on the college campus and in the Preparatory School. The meeting will be presided over by Mr. J. T. Weems.

In addition to the speeches there will be a special music program composed of the best sacred numbers in the Victor Catalogue; many of these are by the best sacred singers in the country, whom it will be a genuine treat to hear. The program is as follows:

Ave Maria (Gounod)—Elizabeth Wheeler.

I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say—Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler.

Crossing the Bar (Tennyson)—Frank Stanley.

Balm of Gilead—The Fisk Jubilee Quartet.

HONOR COUNCIL COMPLETED

Wroten and Foster Elected as Floaters.

On Tuesday night of last week the student body assembled en masse in the College auditorium for the purpose of electing two men to represent the student body at large on the Honor Council. Men had already been elected from the different classes, and these two floaters were to complete the council.

The meeting was called to order

Enthusiastic Alumni Meeting

Jackson Men Organize Alumni Association.—Felix Gunter Chosen President—Promotion of Athletic Interests Main Issue.

Quite a number of the most prominent men of Jackson met last Friday afternoon at the law office of J. A. Baker, for the purpose of organizing a Millsaps Alumni Association of Jackson. The Association will consist of former students of Millsaps in Jackson and throughout the State. Its purpose is to devise ways and means of arousing the interest of all former students in the affairs of the College, especially in athletics, and to assist in every way possible in bringing the College prominently before the public.

One of the principle features of the organization was the election of officers which resulted as follows: Felix Gunter, President; L. M. Gaddis, First Vice-President; Geo. B. Power, Second Vice-President; John W. Saunders, Secretary and Treasurer, and Tom L. Bailey, Asstant Secretary and Treasurer. These men are all prominent and successful business or professional men, and no movement over which they have control can fail. In addition to the above officers an executive board whose duties will be of a general advisory character, will be appointed by the President in the near future. Committees were also appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws, and to look after the preliminary arrangements. The Alumni are awaking to the fact that they can help the College very materially by taking an enthusiastic interest in the Association and they are manifesting this interest by their works. Another meeting of the Association will be called during the coming week and a large and enthusiastic session is predicted.

by Prof. J. M. Burton. Having stated the object of the meeting, he announced that nominations would be heard for the place. The first elected was B. F. Foster. Since his entrance at Millsaps during the session of 1910-11, Foster has had the entire confidence of the students and faculty. It can be safely said that no one could have been selected in whose fairness and impartiality the students would have placed greater confidence.

The next elected was J. D. Wroten. Wroten is one of the most prominent members of the Senior class, and also one of the most popular ones. Every one who knows him knows him to be a man of sterling integrity and fairness of judgment.

After the election was over, Prof. Burton read a resolution adopted by the faculty, the substance of which was that the faculty desires that the decisions of the Honor Council be considered final. That is, there is to be no appeal to the faculty from a decision of the Council.

The Council as completed consists of Barrett, Condrey, Crocket, and Weems, and McGee, from the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes, respectively; and of Foster and Wroten as floaters. Looking this body of men over, it can be safely said that a body of fairer judges could not possibly have been selected. It is the ardent desire of the writer that they will not have a single case to come before them during the session; but if, unfortunately, such should be the case, there can be no doubt that the person accused will have a fair and impartial trial.

Special Edition Rushed to Convey
This News to a Waiting Public.—Freshmen Involved.

About 11:30, Thursday night, as a belated reporter of this paper was crossing the campus his attention was attracted by a number of masked persons entering the main building of this college. Of course, being strictly on the job, he followed at a distance. The conspirators entered the Lamar Hall, and as they had only one candle for light, Sherlocko, the Reporter, was able to view the proceedings from a safe distance. One of the conspirators, evidently a Sophomore from the outspoken manner in which he took charge of things, presided. Another, a Junior, from the cut of his clothes, acted as Secretary. At first, the newspaper man was unable to catch the gist of things, but when he heard the following resolutions read, he knew what had happened. They are published below for the benefit of the public. This paper will, no doubt, be accused of underhanded methods, but the public must have the news:

To All Concerned:

Inasmuch as the Freshman Class of this Institution, on account of their numbers and physical proportions, evidently consider themselves the equal, if not the superior, of the upper classmen of said Institution; Therefore,

Be it therefore ordained: That all Freshmen shall have their hair trimmed after the fashion commonly called "clipping."

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Weems Stars as Orator.—Battle of Words Waged Between Debaters.

The Lamar Literary Society held a very interesting meeting last Friday night. On account of the absence of President Montgomery, Vice-President Honeycutt presided.

There was some misunderstanding concerning the proper program, due to the fact that the regular meeting of the week before was not held. Lusk was excused as declaimer on account of this confusion. Weems delivered an excellent oration on "The Higher Vision," which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience. Weems is one of the best orators of the Senior class and it is with regret that we recognize the lamentable fact that after this year this silver-tongued orator will no more pour forth in thunderous tones his masterly discourses within our hall.

The question for debate, "Resolved, That the White Man Treated the Indian justly in Taking his Land," was next taken up. The speakers for the affirmative, Hillman, Patterson and Lusk, made eloquent appeals in behalf of their side, but to no avail, for their arguments were dispersed into thin air by the tremendous bombardment of Selby, Stirling, and Hobbs, for the negative.

The judges, after retiring to a dark room and discussing, very deliberately, every thing from the Bull Moose Party to the Halloween raids of the previous night, decided in favor of the negative. The announcement of their decision was greeted with applause.

Lusk, the Demosthenes of the Lamars, was unanimously elected monthly orator. Arrangements are already under way for a larger seating capacity, and ushers have been appointed to handle the large crowd that is expected the night this gifted young Lamar is to demonstrate his ability to sway multitudes.

THE GREAT OLD WORLD.

The cynics mock her,
The red storms rock her,
The earthquakes shock her,
But on she rolls!
Downcast, elated—
For ruin slated,
She still goes freighted
With human souls!

The great seas thunder
And rend asunder—
The white stars wonder,
As time grows gray;
But—reaping, sowing,
Her way she's going
To meet—unknowing—
A Judgment Day.

But—joy go with her!
Nor slip his tether
When stormy weather
Makes grief and moan!
Tragedy—jest world—
Lost-unto-rest world
Still—still the best world
We have ever known.

—Ex.

Many times we think when looking upon the lives and deeds of great men, that the hand of destiny has pointed favorably toward them. We never stop and consider that before this great hour came into their lives, there was hard study in preparation. So remember, young man, before the hour, comes the man.

Be a booster, instead of being boosted. The world is looking for real wide awake boosters. Men who are willing to assume the responsibilities of leadership, and do their best. So get busy Boothonian and help swell the columns of our voice with things worth our while.
—R. B. M.

We wonder why the benches that the Co-eds use in front of the Library were moved away Halloween night? Surely it was not because the ghost objected to these "natural beauties" occupying that part of the campus.

OUR ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

To say that the students were elated over the announcement that the Jackson Alumni had taken the initiative in organizing a Millsaps Alumni Association, would be putting it mildly. Genuine whole-souled rejoicing greeted the announcement that these men of the business world still cherish a love for their Alma Mater and that they intend to band themselves together for the advancement of her interests and welfare.

This is but the culmination of a long felt want and desire on the part of the Millsaps College authorities and students. We believe that Millsaps College can never hope to reach its highest aspirations and dreams unless she has back of her the enthusiastic support of her Alumni but if the interest manifested by the members of the Association during the past week is at all indicative of what the future has in store for us we feel perfectly safe along that line.

Our College numbers among its Alumni some of the most prominent professional and business men both in the city of Jackson and throughout the State. That they are taking an active interest in College affairs means much to us in many ways. Especially is this true from an athletic standpoint since the interests of the Alumni are mainly centered upon bringing our school to the front in this respect. Speaking from an athletic standpoint, Millsaps is rather young—this being the third year that she has been allowed to participate in inter-collegiate games. Some one has said the athletic spirit at Millsaps has not always been what it ought to be. This is true because of the fact that until recently athletics have not been encouraged here, and during our short history in the inter-collegiate circle we have been forced to rely almost entirely on the student body for encouragement and means of support. Unstinted praise is due the faculty manager of athletics for the admirable manner in which he has conducted the financial end of the Association. It has been a hard, laborious task for him to provide the teams with equipment and coaches, and it is only through his zealous watchfulness and care that he has been enabled to keep the Association free from debt.

We believe, taking into consideration the means in hand, that the best possible results have been accomplished. At the same time we realize that these means have been scant, and our horizon limited.

A better day is dawning, however, and a new era opening. Prospects for winning teams are exceedingly bright. The awakening of the Alumni portends many desirable things—among them better equipments, better coaches, and that which is the culmination of these, a recognized position on the inter-collegiate map.

Is it any wonder, then, that the students take pride and rejoice in the interest manifested by the Alumni? May this movement continue to grow and increase until it shall have accomplished the fondest desires and wishes of its creators.

OUR HONOR COUNCIL.

No institution of Millsaps College is deserving of more credit and praise or loyal and cordial support from the student body than is our Honor System. Created as it was by the student body it is essentially a student's movement. It stands out before the world watchful and zealous of the honesty and integrity of the students so that "those who run may read" the attitude of the student body in regard to the things over which it has jurisdiction.

The introduction of the Honor Council into the School by the students through their own initiative, and the fact that very few cases have arisen for trial before it during the few years of its past history are proof positive that a majority at least of the students of Millsaps have caught the spirit of our Honor Council and are lending it their support by conducting themselves in a clean, gentlemanly and upright manner as the spirit of the Honor Council would have them do.

The Honor Council stands as a protection both to the student body and the faculty. It stands as a protection to the student body because it guarantees to every man that every other man must stand on his merit and get his pass or his diploma in a fair, legitimate manner. It guarantees to both student body and faculty that any man who sinks so low as to steal on an examination or to get drunk, has no place at Millsaps and his presence will not be tolerated here.

We wish to commend most heartily the resolution recently passed by the faculty to the effect that the decisions of the Honor Council be final. This means that with respect to those things which come under its jurisdiction, the Honor Council is absolutely the highest and predominant authority—that its decisions cannot be appealed from but must stand. This resolution, we believe, will add much strength to the Honor Council by showing the fellows, those who need it, that the Honor Council has the unqualified endorsement and sanction of the College authorities.

We would especially commend the Honor Council to the new men as an institution that purports to uphold the honor and good name of the students and the College. We would remind you that you are expected to catch the spirit of the Honor Council and to hold sacred its standards and ideals.

We can conceive of nothing that is more thoroughly contemptible and despicable, and base, than for a student to become so thoroughly devoid of honor and self-pride as to willingly and maliciously try to steal on an examination. We fail to see how a man who had acquired a pass or a diploma by such methods could ever think of it or look at it without convulsions of shame and humiliation completely overwhelming him.

On the other hand we can think of no more ideal situation at Millsaps College than for the sentiment among the students to become so thoroughly in sympathy with the ideals of the Honor Council that there would not even be the probability of the Council being subjected to the unpleasant task of trying a student. Then, indeed, would our Honor Council be a source of just pride and Millsaps more than ever a college whose students the world would depend on when men who could be counted on to respond when appealed to on grounds of honor and honesty are wanted.

Dr. Swartz Discusses "Environment" to a Large Audience.

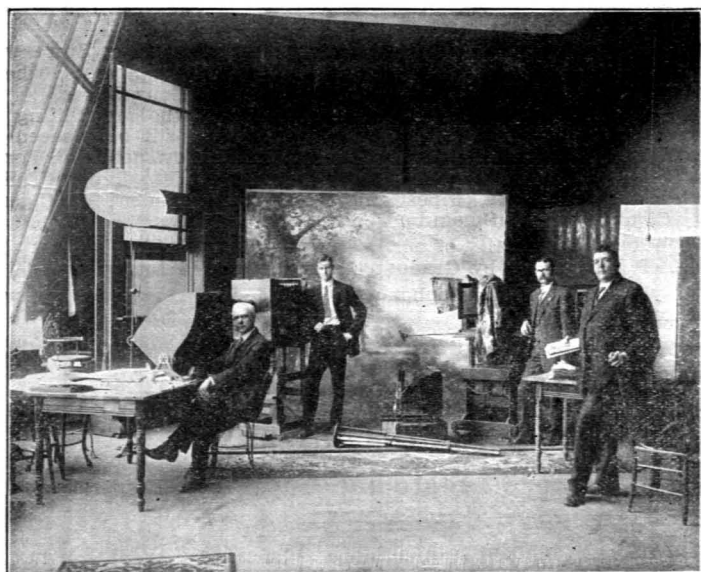

The Association was much pleased to have Dr. M. W. Swartz, of the faculty, address the students and visitors. Dr. Swartz is a fluent speaker of unquestioned knowledge and pleasing personality. He came with an interesting discussion of a vital question and delighted his hearers with his treatment of the topic.

The speaker defined his subject as meaning the surroundings of a man's life from the mere physical forces of his boyhood through the process of mental advancement, including to a great extent the moral influences that surround his life—especially the earlier part of his life. The importance of environment has been recognized in literature and history. No great historical character or hero in the fiction of the past has been discussed without taking into consideration the surroundings and early influences. We are told of seemingly trifling things, the pictures on the walls, or the view from a window, for those were the things that gradually and slowly yet persistently shaped and moulded the characters of men.

An interesting allusion to literature was the story of Charlotte

Bronte. This maiden was reared without a mother, having only to care for her a drunken father and a worthless brother. Her life, a hard and cheerless one, was reflected in her writings. In contrast was the story of Jane Austin, reared in a kindly home, loved and cherished by all. The stories that she gave to the world were permeated by the atmosphere of gentleness and sweetness, coming, no doubt, from the influences of her early life.

Again, no man can say that his present life and character are the product of present conditions. The forces that have shaped our destiny have been the forces existing for a long time. In the field of politics our choice of party many times has been simply the choice of our forefathers. In education, our progress is determined, to a great extent, by forces in existence before we have entered any institution of learning. Even in religion those cherished principles so dear to us became ours in the first place, many times, because they were the principles of our friends and associates. But environment is not only formative and persistent; it not only had influence in shaping the early part of our life, but it is at work still, changing often the currents of our lives. Who can forget a mother's loving care, even after we have gone from under her influence, especially after she has passed into that great beyond? Can we, so long as we have conscience or even memory, forget our mother's kindly words, our mother's Bible, our mother's God?

After discussing the importance of environment in shaping destiny, the speaker turned to another consideration of the question, namely, whether or not character was wholly formed by surroundings. We are not altogether the creatures of chance and circumstance. The human being, not by himself alone, but with the help of his Creator, can rise above his surroundings. This fact has been exemplified in the past history of every people. Those early converts at Rome to whom Paul was speaking in his letter to the Romans, were pressed down by every circumstance that confronted them. It was contrary to the will of an unprincipled emperor that they should declare themselves as Christians. Add at this the daily scenes of revelry, wantonness and blood, when the chief sports were watching men and women die in the amphitheatre or gladiatorial combat with beasts. How easy it would have been to drift with the tide, to say that chance and environment were dragging them down, that they could not battle against fate! But no, the churches of today, the millions of Christians, successors to those staunch heroes, stand as a monument to the fact that they rose above their surroundings and conquered the force of a hostile environment.

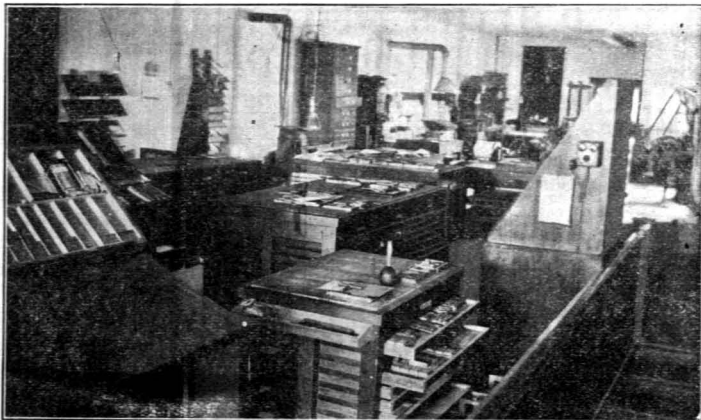

The forces of Christianity are not conformative, but transformative. The power of Christianity has been that it gave to men strength to battle with environment and rise above the things that strive to keep them down. Some have thought it a part of humility to make no protest against evil things, but it is not so. Dr. Swartz brought out with striking force that real humility was not to drift with the tide but with firmness to fight the battles of life, believing that we can do all things "through Christ who strengtheneth us."

In connection with this the speaker called attention to the many things which Christians allow to be done contrary to the principles under which they live. One of the chief of these is disregard of the Sabbath. This is one of the most flagrant, because it is gradually getting a surer hold upon the customs of this age. Such a thing could not have been done a score of years ago, but here, as elsewhere, we become accustomed to those things from which we at first shrink in horror.

In conclusion, Dr. Swartz called to our attention again Paul's exhortation, "Be not conformed, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God." The speaker stated that the perfect will of God was that we should make progress in holiness so that we make environment in ourselves, that will cause others to be blest. Further that we should see that no evil exists, and that we exert a good influence and stand boldly for the right. Above all, God wants us to know that right is right everywhere, that there is but one standard by which men are judged.

At the conclusion of this splendid address, announcements were made relative to the mission study classes, and many gave their names to Mr. McGee, Mission Study Chairman, to be enrolled as members of this class.

FOOTBALL GAME.

Fresh-Soph Team Win on Fumble, 2-0—Preps Outplay College Boys at Almost Every Stage of the Game.

One of the most exciting football games ever witnessed was played last Friday afternoon between the Fresh-Soph and Prep teams. Although the Fresh-Sophs managed to win, by a narrow margin of two points, it was anybody's game until the last quarter was over.

The game in detail is as follows:

First Quarter—Taylor kicks to Jackson, who returns ten yards. F. P. to Watkins for twenty yds. McLain around left end for one yd. Incomplete F. P. Gaddis loses one yd. in criss-cross. Gaddis kicks for twenty yds. and Taylor recovers the ball. Taylor four yds. around end. Holder two yds. around end. Holder F. P. and Cassibry recovers the ball. Incomplete F. P. Gaddis around left end for twelve yds. Cassibry around right end for fourteen yds. Preps break through and throw Cassibry for a loss of eight yds. Incomplete F. P. Cassibry around left end for nine yds. Preps hold for downs and ball goes over. Holder goes around the end for fifteen yds, but loses the ball to Hendrix on a fumble. Hathorn over right end for six yds. Gaddis makes five yds. on a criss-cross. Incomplete F. P. Time up. Ball in Preps' territory. Fresh-Soph outplay the Preps, but are unable to score. First quarter, score 0 to 0.

Second Quarter—Ball on Preps twenty-eight yd. line in Prep-Soph possession. Gaddis around left end for one yd. Hathorn over right end for five yds. Gaddis around left end for six yds. McLain over left end for nine yds. Cassibry around left end for five yds. McLain over left end, no

*Great Demonstration Over Wilson's Election
--High School Joins in Parade Over City
--Much Enthusiasm Manifested and a

Rejoicing over the great victory the Democrats won last Tuesday was so general on the campus that the students thought there ought to be a holiday and, as the majority rules, there was one. A great time they had, too. In fact, it was a great day, as anyone who was in that parade can attest.

The student body in full force marched from the college chapel over to the Prep school, where they were joined by the Preps. The marshals of the day formed the whole body into line two and two. Thus arranged they set out for Belhaven, for the purpose of giving the girls a yell or two for Wilson—and Belhaven. A grand line that was that marched over there, too, reaching almost from State street to Belhaven. Having arrived here, they gave the girls some yells such as they had never heard before.

From Belhaven they marched down State street, picking up recruits on the way. The crowd stopped at the Daily News office and gave several rousing cheers for Wilson and Democracy. At Hunter & McGee's they were treated to cigars and drinks. Having tarried here awhile to express their appreciation and approval of the generosity of this firm, they proceeded to the High School, stopping on their way there at the Capital National Bank to give a cheer for Major Millsaps.

At the High School they received a warm welcome. It was soon evident that the High School students also are highly patriotic and excited over the Democratic landslide. In short, they soon decided to cast their lot with the Millsaps and join the parade.

From here, supplied with glowing banners and blowing horns, the line proceeded to the State capitol. Here they were addressed by Prof. J. N. Powers, State Superintendent of Education. Prof. Powers made only a short talk, but it was filled with patriotic and acute remarks.

With their ranks filled by the great number from the High School, the assembly had, indeed, become a small army. Marching down Capitol street from the capitol, the enthusiastic band excited a great deal of attention. Business men of the city began to fall in line with them and urged them to go to Poindexter school and get the students there. Several stops on the way there were made, one to get a picture made at Daniels' studio.

Arrived at Poindexter school, it took only a few minutes to induce the students there to join the happy party. Marching back up Capitol street, they had what many said was one of the biggest crowds ever seen in Jackson.

That was a grand march from the depot up Capitol, thence up State street to Millsaps. The crowd stopped at the postoffice to pay their respects to the big men of the town, giving them yells, etc. Thence this great crowd marched on to Millsaps, where in front of the President's home they gave him cheer after cheer.

COLLEGE ORCHESTRA ORGANIZED.

Success of Movement Demonstrated—Eleven Pieces—More to Come—Logue Leader.

"At this the student body rose and cheered until the college orchestra began to play." This is a sentence taken from the Daily News' writeup of the athletic meeting at chapel last week. Some college spirit there, eh? That talk about the orchestra sounds kinder good too, does it not? The college spirit was there all right. Likewise the orchestra.

This latter is accounted one of the most valuable additions that the college has received for some time past. Its organization is due to the untiring efforts of our efficient instructor and vice-president, Dr. J. M. Sullivan. It was at first organized for Dr. Sullivan's Sunday School class, but has grown to its present position of eminence as the college orchestra.

The orchestra is more than fortunate in having as its leader and instructor U. F. Logue—himself a pastmaster as a violinist and a man of remarkable musical talent and learning.

The other members of the orchestra are likewise demonstrating that they are capable musicians. No prophecy as to the results of this organization would be in order. They have already demonstrated the fact that it is a great success. The music furnished in chapel the other morning added much to the occasion, and we do not hesitate to say that the orchestra will be "right there with the goods" on every occasion where expressions of college spirit and pride are needed. The orchestra consists of the following: Logue, violin, leader; Perry, violin; Sterling, violin; Condrey, cornet; Bending, cornet; Russel, cornet; Penn, horn; Miss Sue Bess Sullivan, violin; Cassibry, drum; Greenway, trombone; Miss Spickard, piano.

GALLOWAY LITERARY SOCIETY.

Weekly Flood of Oratory Turned Loose—Kirkpatrick Declaims—Good Attendance.

One of the largest crowds of the year assembled in the Galloway hall for the regular session Friday night. Pres. Savage sounded the gavel at promptly eight o'clock and at once the house assumed a business air. Kirkpatrick, the declaimer, delivered an excellent oration. Weems, from the Lamar Society, was present and responded to the call for an oration.

The question for debate was, "Resolved, that Congressmen should be elected from the State at large." The affirmative was represented by Clarke, R. G. Moore and Howe, and the negative by N. Harmon, Hawthorne and Barrett. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

The Tatom Twins and Galloway were welcomed into the society as new members.

THE COLLEGE MAN IN POLITICS.

The election of Woodrow Wilson to the Presidency of the United States is of special interest to college students for many reasons.

In the first place it was a contest in some respects between three of the leading institutions of the country—that is, between Wilson of Princeton, Taft of Yale and Roosevelt of Harvard.

It is significant not only that the three leading candidates should be enthusiastic alumni of these institutions, but that Wilson—the president of a college and one of the leading educators of the day, a man who until within the past few years has been practically unknown in the political world—should be chosen to fill this the highest office in the gift of the American people.

Yet we cannot say that this is not in keeping with the advancement and educational progress of the age. There was a time when men could boast that they were self-made men—that they had never been to college, and yet they had risen to heights of eminence and places of responsibility. This time has passed. The college man, armed with greater training and mental capacities, is forging to the front, and the election of Wilson to the Presidency is but a demonstration of the truth of the assertion that the college man is the man of the hour.

It is a demonstration of the truth that the student and the college man are no longer looked upon as a recluse possessed of strange and fruitless ideas—one dwelling apart from his fellows and of no value either as a citizen or as a soldier, but that more and more every day is the world looking to the colleges for the men to head her various political and financial institutions.

We rejoice with the Democrats in the overwhelming election of President Wilson, and rejoice likewise in the place of leadership into which the college men of today are coming, of which the election of Wilson is symbolic.

As the Purple and White goes to press news comes to us of the struggle between the students and faculty of A. and M. College. The Purple and White is not "playing favorites" by assuming which side is in the wrong. We merely pause to say that regardless of where the trouble lies we regret that this condition of affairs should exist in our sister institution and hope for them a speedy, fair and satisfactory adjustment of same.

Prof. Lin left Tuesday night for Spartanburg, S. C., where he goes as a representative of the college to a meeting of the Association of Colleges and preparatory Schools of the Southern States. Many educators of note from throughout the South were on the program and a great conference was held. It is of special interest to Millsaps students that Millsaps was voted a member of the Association at this meeting. The University of Mississippi is also a member and was represented at the conference.

The Princetonian turned out to be some prince—eh?

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Political Question Decided in Favor of Affirmative—Magee Elected Commencement Debater.

The Lamar Literary Society held last Friday night one of the best meetings of the session. The question for debate was a good one and the meeting was replete with interest from beginning to end. Vice-President Honeycutt was in the chair.

The declamation and oration were dispensed with, owing to the fact that both the declaimer and orator for the occasion were absent.

The question for debate, "Resolved, that the English parliament is more suited to a democracy than the American Congress," was next taken up. Speakers for the affirmative, Scott and Magee, made some good arguments that showed they were well qualified to discuss this question, and that they had given it no little time and preparation. Their arguments were such that those of Blewett and Kirkland, for the negative, could not disprove their points. The Judges, after considering both sides of the question, awarded the decision to the affirmative.

Jolly's resignation as commencement debater was received and accepted at this meeting. Magee was elected in his place. From all the talent in the society, a better man could not have been elected than Magee.

Kirkland was appointed as a committee of one to attend to all matters of printing, etc.

After Holloman had been elected monthly orator and a final roll call had been taken the meeting was adjourned.

"Prep" Nobles, head-master of the Prep Department, entertained the football team at a banquet last Saturday night. Delightful refreshments, consisting of grape juice, cream and fruits, were served. Many toasts were given and all present had a most delightful time. Those present were Messrs. Nobles, Gates, Holder, Willingham, Johnson, Holmes, Ely, Hill, Golding, Pearman, Taylor, Clegg, Davis, Green, Tucker and Williams.

After all, its the little things in life that count. Now, who would ever have imagined that a little thing like Wilson being elected would have any influence on such a great question as a college holiday?

Have T. B. Doxey do your Tailoring and save the discount he gives the college boys.

Fall in line and get you one of those striped, barbershop jackets; they are all the go now.

It is a source of great regret to the editors of the Purple and White that in the writeup of the election of the Bobashela staff, the name of W. E. Morse, as athletic editor was through some strange oversight, omitted. Morse, both from an athletic and literary standpoint is well fitted for the position. He has made practically every team in school and has held important positions on the staff of the college publications—both of which make him a valuable addition to the staff.

Miss McGehee says Miss Steen is getting to be a regular philosopher. We wonder what she has been philosophizing on.

A great multitude of the student body spake, "Let there be a holiday," and the morning and evening was a holiday.

On last Friday afternoon delicious refreshments were served at table No. 1 in physical laboratory by Junior co-eds.

It is strange why Senator Talbot smiles every time he sees a certain co-ed. He has a fondness to ramble by the Lin-field.

If you like to read the Purple and White, get one every Friday morning at chapel. If you get it, consider yourself a subscriber.

Apply yourself well; get up your daily recitations. "An ounce of preparation is worth a pound of cramnation." Savy?

What's in a name? The Freshman by any other name would get his hair cut just the same. "Freshman, beware the ides of December."

We wonder why Dr. Kern did not grade Mr. Harris' note-book. Probably, he would have to take a course in short-hand next summer.

Some one has suggested that the McNeill twins tie pink and blue pieces of ribbon around their necks so the co-eds can tell them apart.

Prof. Lin (calling roll in economics class): "Mr. Honeycutte—is absent?"

Mr. Harmon: "Yes. Honey—cutte today."

Dr. Sullivan (in Sophomore chemistry class): "Give an example of a physical change."

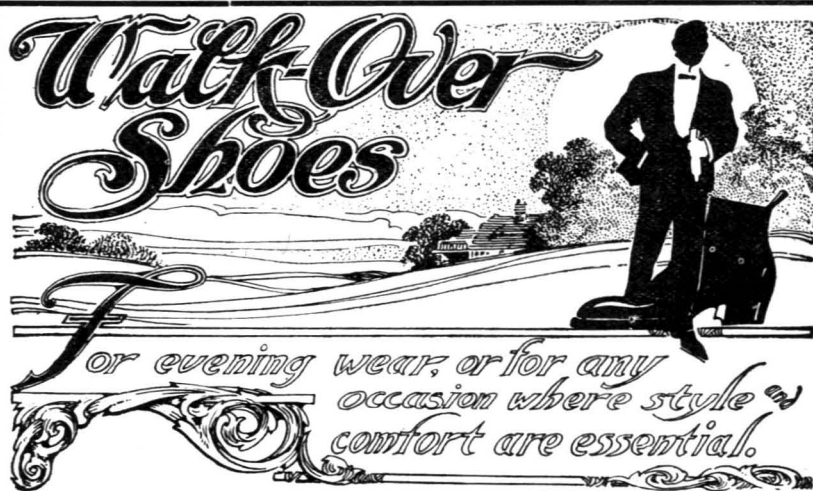

Sophomore: "Frozen ice is one, isn't it Doctor?"

Miss McGehee (looking at the well diggers): "What are they doing?"

Mr. Crisler: "Putting up a squeezer."

Some Freshman has defined a magician as "something on the order of a detective." As evidence of this truth he offers the discovery by Magician Hurd (not the Freshman) of the number of playing cards, etc., on the person of our President at the performance Wednesday night.

"Now, Dr. —. Really—."

Miss Harris: "He wasn't big enough to have one, I guess."

Miss Edmond (after reading notice to Freshmen in Purple and White to have their hair cut): "O, are they really going to cut the Freshman co-ed's hair?"

We were glad to have all members of the law class attend chapel exercises Wednesday morning, and especially did we enjoy Mr. Bailey's talk. We hope to have them often.

Misses Allene Harmon, Ella Kate Steen, Pattie W. Sullivan, Sue B. Sullivan, Elizabeth Watkins, Olive Watkins and Evelyn Spickard were recently initiated into the Phi Zeta Sorority.

The editors of the Purple and White have received a personal letter from President Wilson thanking them for having elected him to the Presidency. "That's all right, Woodrow; don't mention it."

Frazier: "The Sullivan girls have dates for the rest of the year with the Preps."

Harmon: "That ruins me."

Johnson: "Can't you break a date with a Prep?"

Dr. Swartz announced to his Freshman Latin class that there would not be any more recitations in Latin until Wilson was elected. No wonder the Freshmen prayed for a Republican victory—we don't blame them.

N. T. Steward ("Tip"), a former student of this college, and now a progressive business man in the little city of Morton, Miss., spent several days of last week upon the campus visiting old friends.

Miss Steen: "Professor, don't you think we should have a holiday if Wilson is elected."

Prof. Lin: "I can't see it in that way, Miss Steen."

Miss Steen: "O well, I see the reason why. You haven't your glasses on today."

"Prep" Hathorne (over telephone): "Dr. Sullivan, I want to officially announce to you that there will not be any school today."

Dr. Sullivan: "I want to officially tell you that I don't give a flip."

Judge Blount left Saturday night for northern Mississippi, where he is to join a party of Mississippi and Northern hunters in an annual bear hunt in the swamps of Tallahatchie county. The Judge has not yet returned to relate his experiences, but no doubt he will return burdened with many perfectly new bear and "dear" tales with which to amaze (?) his listeners.

whom he has secured from the faculty and the churches of the city. But when we have the privilege of hearing members from our own ranks, men who are neither so brilliant, nor learned, nor experienced, but men who are facing the real problems of college life and fighting the same battles which we must fight, then it is but natural that we feel especial interest in this service.

The interest of the program was greatly enhanced by Dr. Kern, who brought his Victrola and played a number of new sacred records. The Association is deeply indebted to Dr. Kern for his untiring interest in its work and his efforts in behalf of its services.

The program began with the record "Ave Maria," by Elizabeth Wheeler, followed by "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say" by Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler. Then the audience were delighted with that splendid solo by Frank Stanley, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar;" also with "The Great Camp Meeting," by the Fisk Quartette.

At this time, Mr. Weems, the leader for this occasion, took charge and explained the general outline of the service, stating that there would be three short talks on the subject of "Prayer." It was regretted that the fourth speaker, Mr. Selby, was away on account of the illness of his father. In discussion of his subject Mr. Weems defined prayer as a communication between God and man, as the language not altogether, in fact but very little, the language of the lips but the language of a soul as it is loosed from the material world and swings out to meet the spirit of its Maker. The issue was raised as to whether or not prayer was all-powerful, whether man through the medium of prayer could reach so far that he would change the will of the Divine. The speaker was inclined to take the rather common-sense view that as a finite being man could reach only so far; that God in His wonderful wisdom and power not only supplied the needs of humanity but even to a very great extent determined what those needs were. Man is inclined to be a selfish being and his wants are quite often for those things of which he really has no need. The spirit which God wishes us to have is expressed in the greatest model of prayer that he has left us, "Thy will, not mine, be done."

In the interval before the next speaker, Dr. Kern gave three delightful records: "Abide With Me," by Richard Jose; "I'm the Child of a King," by Elizabeth Wheeler," and the "Balm of Gilead," by the Fisk Quartette.

The chairman then introduced the next speaker, Mr. Melvin Johnson, one of the most forceful speakers and popular men among the underclassmen. Johnson spoke a few well-chosen words on "Faith," bringing out with striking force that not so much depended on the words of prayer as on the attitude of prayer. Faith is not only a belief in the things for which we ask but the very atmosphere in which we pray and the only connecting link between God and man. Faith is an essential part of the material world. Without it, business could not be carried on, the foundations of society would totter and fall—and the home life without a belief in its purity would be destroyed.

Just here the two concluding numbers of the musical program were rendered: "O, Morning Land," by Stanley and McDonough, and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," by the Hadyn Quartette.

In concluding the program, N. B. Harmon discussed "Hope." It matters not, the speaker said, to what depths a man may go, there is one thing that does not desert him. He may be where he has lost faith in himself, the world, and every one, it may be that he cannot pray, but deep down in his heart there is a hope that some time and some where things will come out for the better. Altogether, this discussion and the others were such as to cause those present to consider the things that were said and take them as part of their life.

In a short business session the resignation of Mr. W. S. Burns as treasurer was accepted, and Mr. Olin Ray was elected in his place.

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.

Henry Declaims—Officers Elected for Second Term and Presidents for Last Two Terms—Blount Elected University Debater.

Friday night was election night at the Galloway Society and consequently most of the regular program was dispensed with and the political factions allowed to have full swing.

The only article on the literary program that was retained was a declamation by E. E. Henry. Henry was well prepared for the occasion and acquitted himself with a great deal of credit.

Next came the election of officers, which proved to be one of the most interesting events of the year. It seems that the members of the Society had come to the meeting with an eye single only to the interests of the Society and that they were determined to elect the very best men for the various places.

The result follows: Second term—President, Lampton; Vice-President, Broomfield; Secretary, J. B. Cain; Assistant Secretary, K. M. Broom. Third term—President, Cassibry. Fourth term—President, Willingham.

Judge James A. Blount was elected to represent the Society in the Millsaps-University Debate.

Misses Watkins, Curry and Easterling were elected honorary members of the Society.

Program Moved Up and Officers for Year Elected—Bailey Elected as University Debater.

The Lamars met at the usual hour, but instead of taking up the appointed program, the election of officers for the ensuing terms was declared in order so as to get them in the Bobashela. Harmony reigned supreme throughout the election—no

BASKET BALL PROGRESS

The Iron in the Fire—Team Making Great Showing Under Coach Fletcher—Season Opens Soon—Many Candidates For All Positions on the Team.

Basket Ball is an interesting feature of the Athletics at Millsaps. Coach Fletcher has a large squad out every afternoon. From 4 to 6 o'clock every afternoon is given to very strenuous practice. This is proving very beneficial, as one on the side lines is able to see a great improvement in the work of all the men. Harmon brothers are developing a fine eye for the goal. These fellows are going to make the team of this year a fine record. Cook is a guard second to none. It is going to take a forward of no little strength and activity to goal on him.

Kirkland, "Cap," is an old stand-by and in him we have a guard that is able not only to keep his man from goaling, but to carry the ball to his goal and many times add two points to the score. Henry brothers are showing themselves very efficient. 'Tis interesting to look at the way these fellows handle the ball.

Hurrah! Gaddis, "Jack," threw a goal this week. Jack is another guard; a good one, too, he is, for when all others seem to have failed in wresting the ball from the opposing team Jack saves the game.

Broomfield and Bell are two forwards in whom every one has great confidence. These fellows are going to demand attention when the time for choosing the Varsity is at hand. Case and Jones are good guards and in them is seen good material for the team of this year. Rooker, the giant centre, is showing up well and has many good qualities for a forward as well.

It is a pleasing fact that the interest in Basket Ball is not confined to the players, but that the Athletic Association is so much interested that they have purchased suits for the team. They have shown that they are willing to do all that they can to put out a winning team this year. The students are looking forward to a record-breaking year in Basket Ball. The first game of the season will be played in a week or two and the team will then enter into the work for the season.

Fifteen Rahs for Basket Ball!

wrangling or suffragette's cries for power arose to mar the serenity of the occasion.

The following is a complete list of those elected:

Second term—President, Ma-Gee; Vice-Pres., Hobbs; Secretary, Harrison; Critic, Watkins; Censor, Ridgeway; Doorkeeper, Montgomery.

Third term—President, Scott; Vice-Pres., Blewett; Secretary, Lusk; Treasurer, Gathings.

Fourth term—President, Boswell; Vice-Pres., Patterson; Secretary, Brown.

The Society decided to have an intercollegiate debate with the University of Mississippi and Mr. Bailey of the law class was elected as the debater to represent the Society.

What would Millsaps be without the co-eds? Didn't some Prof. say "paradise"?

BY THE AID OF FATE.

Time, 8:30 P. M.

A young man walks leisurely down Broadway smoking a cigar. He is accosted by a beautiful young lady heavily veiled. She walks up to him and with a pair of scissors cuts the second button off of his overcoat, places a hot buttered biscuit in his hand, utters the word "Parallelogram," and walks rapidly down a side street.

(The above synopsis was given by Dr. Kern to the Sophomore English class to complete. The best story received by him was furnished by Jack Gaddis, and is as follows):

At first I was too astonished to do anything except gaze stupidly from the hot biscuit in my hand to the back of the young woman as she rapidly walked down a side street. Suddenly it occurred to me that perhaps here was an adventure that certainly had nothing commonplace about it, so I started after the fast-disappearing figure of this unusual young woman. She walked briskly, but I noticed she glanced over her shoulder several times and seemed satisfied that I was following, so I continued the chase.

Her face had looked somewhat familiar to me even through the heavy veil, and suddenly I remembered that I had seen this same woman staring intently at me several times at dinner. Then it occurred to me that I might be the victim of some plot, and I hesitated an instant, but only an instant, for just then the young woman glanced over her shoulder and it occurred to me that probably I might aid this beautiful girl in some way, so I resolved to see the adventure to a close, no matter what happened.

In about a quarter of an hour's walk I noticed we were approaching the part of the city inhabited by Russians, and in a few minutes the girl stopped in front of a disreputable looking house, and after hesitating for an instant and looking back at me once more, the door opened and she walked in. Having resolved to see this adventure to the end, and being a little stubborn besides, I walked boldly up to the door. As I expected, the door was locked, and when I tried to open it I was asked some question in Russian, which I could not understand, but suddenly an idea occurred to me and I answered, "Parallelogram." Then a hand was stuck through an opening that I had not noticed in the side of the door, and not knowing what to do, I put the still warm biscuit in the outstretched hand. Immediately the door was opened and I found myself in the midst of a motley crowd of Russians, about twenty in number.

The room into which I had entered was almost dark, being illuminated only by some burning incense which gave the room a mysterious, if somewhat smoky air. At the far end of the room there was a chair on a slightly raised platform and occupied by a somewhat distinguished looking person who seemed to be the leader. Evidently by the set looks on their faces something important was about to happen, so I attracted very little attention.

Soon a hat was passed around and each one of the crowd, including the girl, drew out and examined a button. When the hat was passed to me I drew out one also, and found it to be of a rather strange pattern. Then the girl said something in Russian that caused most of the others to look at her in pity, although I detected a look of relief and satisfaction in some of their eyes. I had just about decided to make a break for the street, but seeing the pale, drawn face of the girl and the look of horror in her eyes, I changed my mind.

The buttons were put back into the hat and it was again passed around, and this time I drew the button out from my coat by the young woman. This seemed to please the Russians very much and they lead the girl and myself to the end of the room where the incense was burning and placed us beside a table of black, polished wood, on which I could see a silver parallelogram and on the four sides of this figure were words inscribed in Russian. The man on the platform got up from his chair, came down to us and said in broken English:

"Do you swear by the Christ that died on the Cross, and the Parallelogram, that you will do whatever this order shall command?"

The Russians were all around us with their long knives drawn, but the girl was trying to keep cool, and turning towards me she shook her head very slightly, and did I see, or only think I saw, something more than pity in the eyes of this strange girl who so strongly attracted me? Under any other circumstances I would probably have done what I was told to do, but before I would have this girl think me a coward, I would fight the whole world.

Just then we heard a noise and turned around in time to see the police burst in the door, and then everything was in a tumult. In the confusion the girl caught my hand, and pushing aside some curtains, opened a door and when we had gone through, shut and locked it. Then she led me through a long passage into the street. We walked on for some distance, neither of us saying a word, until we came to a bench in a little park. After sitting in silence a few minutes, I said:

said she, after thinking for a minute. "Those people you saw tonight belong to a band of religious fanatics whose religion centers around a parallelogram on one side of which is written, 'The Lord,' on the opposite side, 'The Holy Spirit,' and on the other two sides, 'The Christ' and 'The Virgin Mary.'"

"I understand now why you cut the button from my coat, but why did you give me the hot biscuit, and why did you pick me out?" I asked.

"It is the custom of these people to pick out a person whom none of them know, to take part in their meetings, and if he does not agree to their demands they are immediately made way with as enemies of the faith. Why I picked you out I do not know. The hot biscuit was a test of your interest; if it had become cold before you arrived at the door you would not have been admitted, because they would have known that you did not come directly, but possibly stopped somewhere to get assistance. In order to keep it warm it was necessary that you come at once, and if you had re-warmed it they could have told by the looks of the butter."

"But what are you doing in this band of cut-throats?" I asked.

"Back in Russia, where I live," she replied, "they have such a strong control over my father that he dedicated me to them. Do you know that if we had sworn the oath we would have been compelled to assassinate a minister or have lost our lives? So far I had been lucky enough to escape drawing my own button."

She shuddered and covered her face with her hands. I took her hands in mine; I felt them tremble, but she made no effort to withdraw them.

"Beautiful girl," I said, "I love you. Although I do not even know your name, I love you. Could you learn to love me?"

As I held her in my arms her beautiful eyes told me far better than words could have done that she loved me, and I had won her by the Aid of Fate.

Some one has suggested that the faculty have the observatory moved over nearer the chapel, so that they can observe when the students are going to take a holiday.

A DORMITORY FOR MILLSAPS

We have been greatly interested in a petition, which has been circulated by several members of the Senior Class and signed by every member of it, addressed to the Board of Trustees of the College, asking that something be done toward the building of a dormitory for the college. In our opinion, all the other needs of the college do not equal this one in importance. Since the establishment of the Millsaps Preparatory School, which uses the old dormitory, the College has been wholly without accommodations, except boarding house accommodations.

Without stressing further the need of such a building, for we assume that no reasonable person would deny this, we wish to examine some of the reasons why it is needed. These are varied and distinct. First and foremost, there is the financial aspect of the question from the viewpoint of the student. Board is not to be had for less than seventeen dollars per month, and the best boarding houses charge eighteen. This is more, a good deal more, than seventy-five per cent of the boys who come to Millsaps can really afford to pay. Nevertheless, those who come, and stay, pay it. There is no way out of it if they remain. The result is that a great many boys, finding that their parents can not stand this drain, either withdraw before the session is closed or do not return the next year. These boys, too, as a general rule, are the very best students. Others who remain throughout the course are so cramped by the lack of means that they can not attain the highest development or do the best work. Some work with a picture continually in their minds of a large debt staring them in the face when they leave College.

Another reason why Millsaps needs a dormitory is that such a building would, in our opinion, greatly increase the attendance. And this is an end greatly to be desired. We believe that Millsaps College will be in the very near future recognized as one of the leading institutions not only of the State but also of the South. And it ought to have an attendance proportionate to its recognized standing. We have little patience with the man who sits in his easy chair and professes himself as satisfied with the present attendance at Millsaps. Millsaps College ought to have an attendance of at least three hundred and fifty or four hundred students. This end will never be accomplished until sufficient and reasonable accommodation shall have been provided.

The last reason that we shall set forth why Millsaps needs a dormitory is by no means the least. There is one most important ingredient that the Millsaps student body lacks, and it needs this in order to make it an all-round desirable body. This ingredient is enthusiasm for the interest of the College, more generally known as College spirit. Without a genuine College spirit among the students, no College can reach the heights that it is possible to attain. Without attempting to show that there is little College spirit at Millsaps, for no one will deny this, let us ask the cause of its absence. The greatest cause is that the students are too scattered. They are not compact enough. Not more than one-fourth of them are on Millsaps grounds proper, and not as many as a dozen stay in any one house. As a result, the students do not know each other. They know only the small number of boys who stay in their neighborhood. A spacious and well-equipped dormitory, with a reasonable charge for board, would do away with such faulty conditions. A great majority of the boys would stay there and would become mutually acquainted and interested in each other and, therefore, interested in the College, for of what is a College composed if it is not of the students who attend it? A College spirit and an interest in the College would be aroused which would permeate the State and draw students here who would have gone to other Colleges which have what we lack.

It is not our purpose to suggest plans for the building of a dormitory. Our purpose in writing this article is to arouse the minds of those who have charge of the destiny of the College to the importance of the cause that we have espoused. We hope that their fertile brains will soon mature a plan for the accomplishment of an end so greatly to be desired.

We believe that the awarding of a fellowship by the College to the student making the highest average during the scholastic year will mean much towards the promotion of scholarship at Millsaps. Laying aside the pecuniary recompense to be derived from it, the honor, alone, of winning this prize should be sufficient to encourage every man in school to strive to be the successful contestant.

The broad, liberal basis upon which it is founded—the fact that it will not be awarded to a mere book-worm, but that the winner must be an active participant in all phases of College life, makes it all the more desirable and worthy to be sought for.

We sincerely hope that there will be a keen, spirited race for this acknowledgment of mental and physical ability.

A number of the boys enjoyed the recital (and aftermath) at Belhaven Saturday night. Here's hoping they will have another soon.

We regret very much the intended departure of Harry Lassiter and Charlie Crisler, who will leave immediately for Southwestern University. While we regret very much the departure of "Dot" and "Midget," we feel sure that they will make that institution good men.

A good, spicy article on the Seniors' trip to Byram and Rosemary was crowded out of last week's issue on account of too much copy turned in. The Seniors have been lamenting this fact all the week for they had a great trip that was both profitable and pleasant.

The Kappa Mu Sorority held its annual initiation last Saturday afternoon. Misses Bessie Easterling and Ella Lee were initiated. After the initiation dainty refreshments were served and a regular "love feast" was indulged in both by the old and new members.

The basket ball team is doing good work. The old men are showing up well and there is some good material in the new ones. The team should be congratulated on being able to secure the coaching services of Hobart, who is an experienced player and knows the game from start to finish.

The Preps are still climbing. They have now launched a monthly magazine, which has a promise of great success. The name of this magazine is "The Rambler," the motto, "Not on top but still climbing." The staff has been appointed by the faculty. The following men have been selected: Editor in Chief, L. H. Gates; Associate Editor, M. F. Written Discusses "The Duty of Development."

The Association was again fortunate at its last regular meeting in having one of its own members to discuss a question vital to college men. Especially was it fortunate in the person of this speaker, J. T. Wroten, of the Senior Class. Wroten is a speaker of unusual ability, a loyal member of the Y. M. C. A., and a close student of college life.

The speaker began by reading a part of Paul's letter to Timothy. Attention was called to the fact that the advice was given to a young minister, preparing himself for life's work, and therefore might be given with equal application to the college men of today. The exhortation to which attention was called was the command that Timothy should stir up that gift which God had placed in his life. In connection with what this gift really was, that was in the life of Timothy and in our lives, the speaker gave a general definition of this gift as follows: "That within us which if developed would cause us to be useful to God." No life can be in any measure a success unless it is a useful life and can carry to some one else the message of hope and cheer.

Development is not only a personal growth, but at times even a national growth. There was a time when this great continent of America had undergone no process of development. But when the white men, God's envoys, came a great change was made. and is still being made. Through Christian influences our country has marched steadily forward until it stands foremost among the nations of the earth.

But God wills that not only nations, but individual men, shall be developed. It is the duty of every man to develop himself along the lines of mind, body, and soul. The man who does not develop himself along these lines is robbing God, for he is depriving himself of that much power to be used in God's service. So far as man is concerned he does not belong to himself, but to God, first by right of creation; second, by right of preservation, and lastly by redemption.

In conclusion, the speaker named some things which keep men from developing themselves as they should. First is our great national curse, that of drink. Some man has well said: "O, that men will put into their mouths an enemy to take away their brains." Another thing that is harmful to students is the habit of reading bad literature, while another equally as bad is that of impure thoughts, which must and have lead to impure actions, and has wrecked and ruined the lives of many.

KEEP MILLSAPS COLLEGE NEAR YOUR HEARTS

She Has the Biggest, Brightest and Best Opportunity of any College in the South--Maj. Millsaps Offers to Duplicate Every Dollar Given the College--Resume of the Past and Predictions for the Future--Some Needs as We Grow--Make This Meeting of Conference a Grand Rally

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Dr. Watkins Submits the Following Report to Conferences.

Dear Brethren:

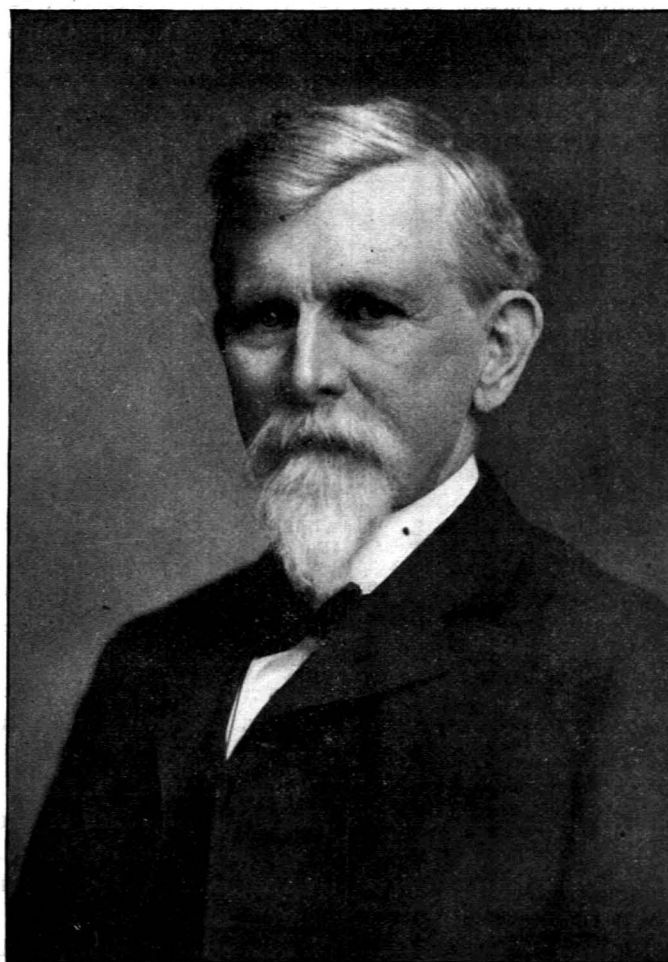

The session of the College, closing June last under the administration of Rev. David Carlisle Hull, was probably the equal of any in the history of the institution. The enrollment was scarcely less than the best, and probably the College has never done better work.

With the opening of the present session in September, the fear was entertained that on account of adverse industrial conditions throughout the State, the attendance was likely to be smaller. It is very gratifying to be able to state that these fears have not been realized and that our enrollment is fairly in excess of that of last session at this time. We have been fortunate also in that the new students were unusually well-prepared and but few of them have had to leave. This fact applies to all departments of instruction, and it is probable that there are now more students in actual attendance than at any time in the history of the College.

A vacancy in the faculty was filled last summer by the election of Prof. J. Reese Lin to the chair of History and Economics. The selection has proven very fortunate, and our faculty today, in the equipment of the men, their devotion to their work, their harmony among themselves, and their loyalty to the best interests of the school, is doubtless unsurpassed in the twenty years of the life of the College. In its grounds, its buildings, and its general

The past few years in the history of the college have been eventful ones and the happenings have been fraught with great consequences that portend greater achievements in the future. So many dreams we cherished only a short time ago have been realized that to keep pace with progress we must now dream of a Greater Millsaps. Millsaps has been granted intercollegiate athletics, and she has pledged and insists that her games be of the clean, manly type.

MAJOR R. W. MILLSAPS
Millsaps College's Greatest Benefactor, who will Duplicate
Every Dollar Given the College.

Major Millsaps has given us an athletic field that is the pride of all.

With increased enrollment in every department activities have flourished and caught the spirit of progress. The Millsaps Science Club has been organized under the direction of Dr. Sullivan. Two new literary clubs, and a society for the promotion of scholarship, have been formed. The Millsaps Orchestra has made its appearance and furnishes delightful music on many occasions. A commencement daily has been added to the list of college publications. New debates

OUR BISHOP.

Bishop Henry Clay Morrison, who will hold the sessions of the North Mississippi and Mississippi Conferences this year, is accounted one of the most eloquent preachers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

He is a native of Georgia and has served as pastor the leading churches of that State and Kentucky, where most of his ministerial life has been spent. He was elected a Bishop of the Church in the General Conference which was held in Baltimore in May, 1898. At the time of his election he was the Secretary of the General Board of Missions, and signalized his occupancy of that office by raising a special fund of $125,000 to pay a debt that was embarrassing the operations of the Board.

This is not Bishop Morrison's first official visit to our State; for on more than one occasion he has presided over the deliberations of our Conferences. We welcome Bishop Morrison to the State, and hope it will be possible for him during his stay in Mississippi to make a visit to Millsaps College.

President A. F. Watkins Speaks to the Association.

Quite a large number of students assembled in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Friday night, Nov. 29, to hear Dr. Watkins.

The subject was taken from first chapter of the Gospel of James. The speaker called attention to the difference between Paul, who preached the gospel of faith, and James, who taught the gospel of works. The text of the discourse was this: "But have been participated in and the scalps of other colleges annexed to our belt both in oratorical and debating contests. The Preparatory school has been separated from the college and has developed into one of the best Prep. schools in the country. These and many other things go to make up what are rightly called the most successful years in the history of the college.

The past is indeed a glorious history, but however brilliant the past we cannot live on reminiscence. History is only valuable as a support to faith and a guide for the future. As wants arise they must be satisfied; as demands arise they must be met, for the Mississippi Conferences, the management of the college, the students and the alumni, the friends of the college everywhere, look forward to a greater Millsaps. The foundation has been laid broad and deep, the structure must be great and strong.

Crying needs—needs that are not merely apparent, but needs that are imperative, stand in the way of the future growth and welfare of the college. If Millsaps is to keep up her standing and prestige she must offer as good inducements and facilities as other institutions. A study of conditions at the college reveals the fact that some of these facilities are lacking. A further study of conditions reveals the fact that it would be a very easy matter to overcome these deficiencies. It can be done.

The assets of the college amount to $506,246.45. Of this amount Major Millsaps, the college's greatest benefactor, has given about $275,000.00; Rockefeller, $25,000.00; Citizens of Jackson, $20,000.00; Carnegie, $15,000.00; Calhoun, Green, Nugent and McWillie, 20 acres of land; I. C. Enochs, $5,000.00; Tom James, $5,000.00. The Church gave $50,000.00 to the endowment, and later through its agent, Rev. T. W. Lewis, gave $28,812.00 for Rockefeller fund.

Among the immediate needs of the college there is of course the always apparent need of a bigger endowment. Then there is the need of a dormitory, on the necessity of which there is an article in this issue. This is probably Millsaps' greatest need, as nothing can take the place of a dormitory in college life. Aside from its economical advantages, the dormitory serves as a center of student life, is a hot-bed of college spirit, promotes the democratic spirit and feeling of brotherhood and directly promotes unity and strength of the entire student body.

A Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is another pressing need of the college. As an evidence of the esteem in which the gymnasium is held, Charles Reynolds Brown, one of the country's greatest lecturers on college problems, advises boys not to enroll at a college which is not equipped with a gymnasium.

Another thing that needs only to be mentioned to receive a hearty endorsement is that of a Chair of Theology. Millsaps cannot attain her ideals until she has provided her students with the opportunity of acquiring within her borders a thorough theological training.

The assertion was made above that these needs can be met. This is true because of the fact that Millsaps has an opportunity that comes to but few schools. We know of no church school having such an offer as Major Millsaps makes to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He offers to duplicate every dollar given by the Church. The more important needs of the college could be met with $100,000.00, that is, $40,000.00 for a dormitory, $40,000.00 for a gymnasium and the remainder for the other needs. This means that the college would have to raise only $50,000.00. It can be done. Our sister Church, the Baptist, recently celebrated very jubilantly over the fact that they were given the opportunity of raising $200,000.00 to cover an offer of $100,000.00. Yet we have a standing offer of a dollar for every one raised, and are doing nothing. If they can raise two for one, there is no reason we can't start something and raise some on a much better proposition, and at the same time do something towards supplying our beloved college with the needs that stand between her and progress.

Again, is it just for us to neglect our opportunity? The propo-equipment, the institution was never in better condition.

The finances, under the skillful management of the Treasurer of the Board of Trustees, are in first class condition; though we should never lose sight of the fact that the College, like a growing child, must meet constantly increasing needs, and the lessening rates of interest paid by invested funds give emphasis to the demand for a more adequate endowment.

There are in the student body 69 ministerial students and sons and daughters of ministers, 31 of whom are preparing for the ministry. Of our young preachers four are preparing for the ministry of other churches than our own. Our Preachers' League of more than thirty members is a very fine body of young men.

We have received from the collections for education from the Annual Conferences, $4,300.00, of which $2,300.00 was paid by the North Mississippi Conference and $2,000.00 by the Mississippi Conference. In view of the very large proportion of our students exempt from the payment of tuition, we would stress the need for a liberal assessment for this cause.

We wish to call attention to several very evident needs at the College—needs that should receive the careful consideration of the Church to which the institution belongs.

First of all, there is need for a dormitory. Since the setting apart of the Preparatory Department and its increased attendance the Founder's Hall has ceased to be available for the students in the College department, and there is an increasingly imperative call for facilities for furnishing board at cheaper rates to the more advanced students. The College should never lose sight of its great purpose to furnish educational advantages to young men of limited means.

Secondly, there is need for a gymnasium and more adequate quarters for the Young Men's Christian Association. No provision for out-of-door athletics can supply the need of a well equipped sition made by Major Millsaps is indeed a generous one and the future welfare of the college cries out to us to take advantage of our opportunity and make this conference a time to commence a big move for greater Millsaps.

The Purple and White extends its greetings this week to the Mississippi Conference. There is naturally a feeling of very close relationship between the College and the Conferences, occasioned by the fact that the College is, literally speaking, a child of the Conferences, created and nourished by them. The zealous care and watchfulness which the Conferences have always exerted over the College, has done much to mold the high standard of manhood that today is the ideal of the Millsaps student. Frequent visits and addresses from members of the Conferences have added much to the religious atmosphere that permeates the College. The broad, liberal and generous policy which has been manifested on the part of the Conferences towards the College has done much towards the growth, progress and development of the school.

Believing that better acquaintance leads to better understanding, we dedicate this issue of the Purple and White to the Conference, cherishing the hope that by a portrayal of college life at Millsaps, we may to some degree, strengthen and enlarge the bonds of interests that bind the two.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the President's report of the condition and work of the College. The present year has been a highly successful one from almost every viewpoint. The attendance has been all that one could expect, the discipline has been exceptionally good and the work has been carried on by faculty and students with a vim and determination unsurpassed in the history of the school.

Probably the most striking fact in the history of this session is the most commendable manner in which Dr. Watkins has assumed control of and managed the affairs of the College through one of the most auspicious and promising openings in the school's history. He has not only ably demonstrated that he is an executive endowed with ability to successfully cope with every problem that may arise in the administrative work of the institution, but that he has back of him the entire faculty and student body. It is useless to say that he has completely won the hearts of the students, who look upon him as a man and a friend in all that the words imply. It is but natural then that the students should rejoice that the present session has been one of progress undisturbed by factionalism and strife and that they should cherish the hope that the future success of our present President may be not in other fields, but in the unending growth and development of a greater Millsaps.

THE PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

It is with special interest that we have noticed the growth and development of the Preparatory Department since its separation from the college. The success with which its work has been carried on proves conclusively that this was a move in the right direction. Not only has it grown in numbers, but in those other things which so materially go to make up the success of a school—that is, in discipline, college spirit and pride and devotion to duty. We commend the work they are carrying on and hope that their growth and development will continue to be associated with that of Millsaps College.

Judge Reed of the Supreme Court, will lecture to the Law Class in the near future. This is the first of a series of lectures by leading lawyers that will be given to the class during the session.

THE GREATEST PRESENT NEED OF MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The greatest present need of Millsaps College is a dormitory. At present we can accommodate in the cottages, commonly known as "shacks," about forty students. These accommodations are far from adequate for the college men we now have, since more than one hundred and twenty students have to board in private houses. Over these the college authorities have, in the very nature of the case, very incomplete authority or supervision. Certainly both supervision and authority are not such as would be exercised over a dormitory on the college grounds, owned by the college and administered solely in the interest of the college.

There are four main reasons why it would be for the advantage of all concerned to have a large dormitory, owned and controlled by Millsaps College and situated on the campus. First, it would enable the authorities to offer good board and lodgings to the students at lower cost than private boarding houses can afford for accommodations of equal excellence. Boarding houses are not run for benevolence. There must be some profit in letting rooms and in furnishing meals, or people would not engage in it. It is well known that it is more profitable to run a large boarding house than to run a small one, other things being equal, because of the advantage obtained by buying in large quantities, and because the proportionate cost of administration is less. This where the houses are run for profit. The same principle would apply on a more extended scale, if the boarding house should supply a hundred or a hundred and fifty boarders, instead of twenty or thirty. The Kress stores are able to sell articles for surprisingly low prices because they buy on so great a scale.

A large dormitory would make possible economies from wholesale buying, and this reduction in the cost of living for each student would be applied to the board of the students, thus giving cheaper board to Millsaps boys than any private house could afford. The table could be run on the co-operative plan, and each student would then be charged only with the actual cost of his food, plus a very small proportionate part of the cost of service and management. This would give a rate far lower than any good boarding house could afford.

A second reason lies in the fact that a dormitory would be a most potent factor in unifying our student body. Boys living in scattered houses with varying grades of accommodations can and do develop very little esprit de corps, very little of what is known as "college spirit." This is a spirit of the greatest value in every worthy undertaking. We want a distinctive "Millsaps spirit," a spirit which will make our students willing to undertake and carry through great things for Millsaps College. This means a devotion to the ideals which the institution was founded to foster, a devotion to the cause of Christian education, and to that service of the Church and the State which Christian education inculcates. We mean to make Millsaps College not "the home of lost causes," but the home and spring of worthy and winning causes. In union there is strength, and a dormitory would tend to unify and integrate our student body as nothing else can do. The multiplication of power by union in a worthy cause is shown, wherever the union occurs. While "one shall chase a thousand," we are told that "two shall put ten thousand to flight." Our student body lacks unity, and one reason for this—the main one, we believe—is to be found in the lack of some center of student life such as a dormitory would best give.

And in this connection we will add that a unified student body will give us a body of united alumni, and a united body of alumni is the very strongest support that an institution can have. In addition to which the union so brought about would enable the college to project and maintain its influence in an increasing degree in the spiritual and intellectual life of our people.

A third reason for building a dormitory is that the facilities so offered would increase the attendance of collegiate students. Some who would otherwise attend may be deterred by the cost of board and the conditions under which they would have to live, should a dormitory not be built. Wofford College was a small college of hardly three hundred students until the great Carlisle dormitory was built. As soon as the dormitory facilities were offered the college leaped forward in attendance, until now it has nearly five hundred students, and the college is of increasing power and influence in South Carolina. Millsaps ought to have five hundred students, and we believe that the greatest step toward gaining the increase desired would be taken if we could build a dormitory equal in capacity and equipment to Carlisle Hall at Wofford.

Surely if our college is worthy of support at all we wish to increase its attendance and to extend its influence. A dormitory would do both, for the reasons herein set forth.

A fourth reason is that the authorities of the college could better supervise and regulate the student life in its own dormitory than it can possibly do under present conditions.

While the gift of the dormitory would be a benevolence in the sense that it would lessen the cost of an education at Millsaps College, it would be an asset of the college in more ways than those which we have set forth. By having a small fixed charge for room rent it could be made to pay a small per cent on the cost as an investment. This is done in those institutions where dormitories exist.

Randolph-Macon has already been provided with the John P. Branch dormitory, which accommodates eighty students. When this was built it was said to be best equipped dormitory at any Virginia college. Trinity has dormitories which are perhaps the best in the Southern States. Wofford has the splendid Carlisle Hall, which cost $52,000, and which accommodates one hundred and sixty students. Emory College has planned a quadrangle to accommodate four hundred students, and is now in process of building one side of it at a cost of $50,000. Central College, in Missouri, last year added to her dormitory facilities, until now she is ready to accommodate one hundred and forty students. Southwestern has dormitories which are said to be ample and excellent. President Miller states that Hendrix College is planning to build a $50,000 dormitory, and he was last week inspecting the Carlisle Hall of Wofford, as a possible model. In addition to the accommodations in Wesley Hall and West Side Row, Vanderbilt has the fine Kissam Hall, which cost $140,000.

Thus we see that all of the stronger male colleges of our church, with the exception of Hendrix College and Millsaps, have provided dormitories for their students, and we also see that Hendrix is moving to remedy that defect in her equipment. Shall not Millsaps also move?

Moreover, the other institutions in Mississippi which do work comparable to that of Millsaps have provided themselves with fine dormitories. Mississippi College has them, and so has the University of Mississippi. The same is true of the A. & M. College. We alone have none. We cannot think that our patrons and benefactors will consent longer to see us so handicapped. This article is written to call attention to the existing facts and to our greatest immediate need.

The high scholarly rank of the College is evidenced by the admission of Millsaps to the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, at the recent session of that body in Spartanburg, S. C.

At that meeting many educators in other states of the South said to the representative of Millsaps that our College is recognized as one of the most promising colleges in the whole South. That this promise may come to full and speedy fruition we bespeak the attention of our friends, our patrons, and our benefactors to our needs, the most pressing of which we believe at this time to be a large and well equipped dormitory.

And we beg leave to call attention to the fact that any building to be erected in our campus should be of such a size and style that it may adorn our campus when Millsaps has grown to be what we believe she will be—one of the very foremost institutions in the whole country. A building is not a temporary thing. It will be in evidence a hundred years after all our heads lie in the dust. To fail to build, and to build in the near future, would cause us to lose a great opportunity to come to the forefront in education in Mississippi and the South. And to build a dormitory inadequate in size, equipment, and style would be evidence of a lack of faith in the future of our College.

The present is a crucial time in the development of Millsaps College. In the past summer our agents in canvassing for students were met frequently with the objection that we have no dormitories adequate to accommodate our students—dormitories which would be under the supervision of the college authorities. And they found also that the eyes of the people of the State are turning more and more to Millsaps as a most excellent place in which to educate boys. Now is our opportunity. Let there be no delay in providing our college and your college with this most needed item of equipment.

At the recent Convention of our Baptist brethren, held in Jackson, the dominant note of the convention was determination to provide Mississippi College with what she most needs. The note of advance sounded there was a trumpet call to a winning campaign. They ought to win what they need, and they will do it. Heaven bless them in their efforts!

And we must do our part in the cause of Christian education, and see that Millsaps, the great hope of Methodist education in Mississippi, is equipped to keep the lead in this noble effort to attract and train men for every duty and opportunity which comes to them in this growing country, and to stem the tide of materialism which threatens to dominate our people. Millsaps has wrought well in the past, and she only asks the spiritual and material support of her friends to go forward to greater influence and service in the future.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Drs. Watkins and Sullivan Return With Good Reports.

The reports brought back by Drs. Watkins and Sullivan from the North Mississippi Conference are very gratifying indeed. The spirit of enthusiasm and interest manifested in the college by the members of the conference is a source of just pride and pleasure to the students.

Dr. Watkins and Dr. Sullivan both addressed the conference and made excellent reports concerning—

BRIEF HISTORY OF MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Some Facts Concerning Its Founda- tion and Growth.

At the annual session of the Mississippi Conference in the City of Vicksburg, on December 7, 1888, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That a College for males, under the auspices and control of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, ought to be established at some central and accessible point in the State of Mississippi."

In accordance with this resolution, the President of the Conference, Bishop R. K. Hargrove, appointed the following committee to confer with the North Mississippi Conference in regard to the matter: Rev. T. L. Mellen, Rev. W. C. Black, Rev. A. F. Watkins, Major R. W. Millsaps, Col. W. L. Nugent, and Dr. Luther Sexton.

The North Mississippi Conference, which met in Starkville, December 12, 1888, Bishop Galloway presiding, on report of the action taken by the Mississippi Conference, passed a similar resolution.

The following committee was appointed. Rev. J. J. Wheat, Rev. S. M. Thames, Rev. T. J. Newell, Hon. G. D. Shands, Capt. D. L. Sweatman, and Mr. J. L. Streater.

At the first meeting of this joint committee in Jackson in January, 1889, Major R. W. Millsaps proposed to give $50,000 to endow the institution, provided the Methodists of the State would give an equal sum. Bishop Chas. B. Galloway, assisted by Rev. A. F. Watkins, now President of the institution, and Rev. J. W. Chambers, by canvassing the State soon raised this amount. Whereupon Major Millsaps immediately paid over the $50,000 as promised.

The work of the committee having been finished, it was dissolved and the Conferences elected a Board of Trustees, whose duty it should be to organize the college. Bishop Charles B. Galloway was president of this board.

The Board held its first meeting in Jackson April 28, 1892, and began the work of organizing a faculty. Rev. W. B. Murrah was elected President, Mr. N. A. Patillo was elected Professor of Mathematics, and Mr. W. L. Weber was elected Professor of English. President Murrah took charge of the chair of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

At a later meeting the Board of Trustees elected Mr. G. C. Swearingen Professor of Latin and Greek, and Rev. M. M. Black Principal of the Preparatory Department.

The first scholastic session began on September 29, 1892.

At the first meeting of the faculty, Prof. W. L. Weber was elected Secretary of the faculty.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees in 1910, the office of Treasurer of the Faculty was created, and Dr. M. W. Swartz was elected to this position.

The Board of Trustees at their regular meeting in June, 1893, elected Mr. A. M. Muckenfuss Professor of Chemistry and Physics.

The Department of History and Modern Languages was formally established by action of the Board of Trustees in June, 1897, and Professor J. P. Hanner was elected to fill the chair thus created. Subsequently the Department was divided. Mr. O. H. Moore was chosen Professor of Modern Languages and Mr. J. E. Walmsley was elected Professor of History and Economics.

In 1908, the chair of Assistant in English and Latin in the Preparatory Department was added, and Mr. S. G. Noble was elected to this position.

At the commencement of 1911, the Board of Trustees created the office of Vice-President, and elected Dr. J. M. Sullivan to this position. At the same session of the Board, provision was made for an additional Professor in Science and Professor G. L. Harrell was chosen for this position.

The organization indicated by this review represents the status of affairs existing at this time, though the personnel of the faculty has been changed in several departments.

In 1896, a Law Department was established. Hon. Edward Mayes was chosen Dean of this Department.

At the close of the session of 1910-11 the Preparatory Department was separated from the College and erected into a distinct institution under the name of Millsaps Preparatory School. Professor S. G. Noble was chosen Head Master.

SCIENCE CLUB.

Good Work Being Accomplished.

Under the direction of Dr. Sullivan and Pres. Lester, the Millsaps College Science Club is doing a great work. It numbers among its members practically all of the members of both the Junior and Senior Classes. The monthly meetings are always well attended and the programs well rendered. Interesting discussions of modern scientific questions make the meetings both profitable and entertaining.

Dr. Sullivan is getting the members very enthusiastic over a number of scientific questions and they look forward eagerly to the future meetings of the club.

ing the conditions of the college.

It is particularly gratifying that the Board of Education in its report on the college recommended very strongly that Millsaps be provided with a dormitory, a gymnasium and a Chair of Theology.

The representatives of the college are now in attendance on the Mississippi Conference and no one doubts but that they will there meet the same cordial welcome and hearty co-operation as at Greenwood.

The Most Enjoyable Smoke in the World

MORGAN ROBERTSON

Morgan Robertson, famous writer of sea tales, says:

"The able collaborator who has helped me over many a rough place, given me ideas when ideas were scarce, is none other than my old friend, Tuxedo Tobacco."

Garrett P. Serviss, prominent scientist and writer, author of "The Second Deluge," etc., says:

"I have tried many brands of tobacco, good, bad and indifferent, before alighting upon Tuxedo, the ideal smoke."

Garrett P. Serviss

EVERY man knows that pipe smoking is the ideal form in which to use tobacco. Only by smoking a pipe, can you get the full benefit and enjoyment from tobacco.

And yet—thousands of men reluctantly deny themselves the pleasure of the pipe—because fancy "mixtures" and ordinary tobaccos bite the tongue, dry the throat and upset the nerves.

It is not necessary longer to forego the pleasure a pipe can give you.

CHARLES S. ASHLEY

Charles S. Ashley, now serving his sixteenth term as Mayor of New Bedford, Mass., says:

"Tuxedo strikes me as being the best pipe filler ever. A wholesome, enjoyable smoke."

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Tuxedo cannot bite the tongue or irritate the throat. The reason for this is that Tuxedo is made of only the mildest, choicest leaves of the highest grade, perfectly aged, Burley tobacco, by the famous "Tuxedo process."

The "Tuxedo process" is a secret, known only to its manufacturers.

It was discovered by Dr. R. A. Patterson, the founder of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co., after many years of experiment. Its popularity has never been artificially forced by sensational advertising. The demand has grown naturally and steadily, until now nearly eighty million packages are sold yearly.

You can smoke Tuxedo in the office, on the street, and at home. It cannot make you nervous; its aroma is delightful and it cannot smell up lace curtains or your clothes.

WILLIAM P. SHERIDAN

William P. Sheridan, one of the most famous detectives in the country, says:

BOBASHELA SUCCESS IS NOW ASSURED.

Members of the Staff Spend Busy Week—Reports Encouraging.

The outlook for the Bobashela, the College Annual, is particularly bright. Never before in the history of this publication, has so much work been done on it at this time of the year. Chief Scott, adhering to his determination of getting in a good part of the work before Christmas and of getting out the Annual earlier than usual has pushed the work with all the energy at his command and the results are forthcoming.

The reports handed in by the members of the staff at the meeting held last week showed that they have all been at work and that they are receiving hearty support from the students.

Many of the pictures, including the pictures of all the under class men, the Preachers' League, Honor Council, and the co-eds have been taken.

G. H. Moore, the literary editor, reports that he has secured several good stories and poems that will add much to the work.

Miss Smith, the art editor, has been busy procuring some handsome and appropriate drawings.

Jim Blount and Dorsey Wroten made good reports as law and club editors, respectively. Ray, the athletic editor, has been strictly on the job since his election and will come up with his work on time.

The election for the statistics of the College has been pulled off under the direction of Editor Crockett, and many are anxiously awaiting the appearance of the Annual to see the "elected."

Weems, Lampton and McGee, the efficient business managers, in addition to signing a very favorable contract with the Hammer-Smith Co., have been busy looking up advertisers and preparing to collect levies from the students.

Golden, the Prep editor, and Spinks, the Prep Business Manager, are by no means behind their College colleagues, and are doing much to aid the work.

The student body are responding heartily to the requests of the staff to help get the work completed and if the enthusiasm at this time is at all indicative of results the Annual of 1913 is des-

MILLSAPS IN ORATORY.

Last Year One of Many Victories.

Last year was a very successful one from an oratorical standpoint. Although we did not win first place in the M. I. O. A. contest, our man made a great fight for the honor and was awarded second place by the judges.

Other victories serve to appease what disappointment the students may have had over the loss of this first place. The Purple and White triumphed over both Mississippi College and A. & M. College in the triangular debate. In addition to this, debaters of the Sophomore Class won over the A. & M. Sophomores and the Preps won over C. H. A. The only other inter-collegiate debate participated in was the Millsaps-Hendricks debate in which we drew an adverse decision.

Add to the above the fact that our man won the medal over the other colleges of the State at the Mississippi Chautauqua Assembly held at Crystal Springs, and it is readily seen that the statement that last year was a successful one is not an idle boast.

Millsaps has always more than held her own in all inter-collegiate debates. In the past history of M. I. O. contest she has won seven firsts and three seconds out of seventeen tries. She has won the Crystal Springs Chautauqua medal so often that the winning of it has come to be regarded as a "Millsaps trick."

DON'T MAKE THE GREAT MISTAKE OF THINKING THAT ANY OLD KIND OF PIANO WILL DO FOR YOUR CHILD TO PRACTICE ON—

How can you expect your child to learn real music when you buy some cheap piano that is only made to sell and can never have or keep a correct tone. The great Paderewski once said: "If I can not get music out of a tin pan how can you expect a child to do so." Take for example a child can learn his A B C's so well that he may be able to repeat them forward or backward, but if you point out one letter in the center he is completely at sea and can't tell what it is—it is the same way with music if your child learns the scale of notes upon a cheap, stenciled piano the ear is ruined and when the scale is played upon a REAL piano there is such a vast difference in tone that the child is lost. When choosing a piano, even to practice upon, select one that has a reputation for quality of tone and durability the difference in price will more than offset all other things in the one fact that you will have REAL MUSIC in your home and your child will learn the TRUE notes of the piano.

Select for your home a

KIMBALL

piano or player piano and you will always have REAL MUSIC of the sweetest harmony.

The name

KIMBALL

on a piano means more than a mere name—it stands for a reputation of over fifty years, and for pianos that have been awarded Gold Medals and Grand Prizes at both the Columbian Exposition and at the Alaska-Yukon Exposition over hundreds of other makes. This fact alone should show the superior QUALITY of the KIMBALL piano.

Right now is your opportunity to buy yourself and family a Kimball piano, for with our SPECIAL CHRISTMAS PRICES AND TERMS it is so easy. Do not delay longer; arrange to make your family happy with the one best gift for Xmas—A KIMBALL PIANO.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

No department of Millsaps has grown with more rapidity in popular confidence than the department of law. For some years it was a burden to the college, but at last it has firmly established itself as self-sustaining. A passing analysis discloses several reasons for this constant growth.

As to location, the capital of the State naturally affords the best opportunity for the study of law. Here the student can see all the courts having jurisdiction in the State at work. The State library, conceded to be one of the very best in the Union, is his to use without reserve. Surely the young man could yearn for no more suitable place for the genesis of his career.

Of its graduates—numbering as they do more than three hundred—never has there been a failure in the bar examination. Not only have they made good in the first test, but also in the greater and more difficult legal problems with which the lawyer has to grapple. There is scarcely a county in Mississippi but that Millsaps can lay hands on one or more of its leading attorneys and claim them as her own.

But great as is the prestige given by the success of the alumni, there is another and greater reason why so many young men elect to take their course at Millsaps. In no school in the South is there a more capable faculty. Both Judge Whitfield and Judge Harper have had every opportunity for becoming great instructors. Added to a thorough and comprehensive study of the subject are years of experience as lawyer, judge and instructor. It would be useless to multiply words in commendation of these distinguished gentlemen. So long have they been in the forefront of their profession they are known to all.

Miss Eloise Watkins is visiting in Hattiesburg.

G. W. Hairston visited Kappa Sigma friends last week.

We regret very much that Lloyd Gates has rheumatism.

Some fellow wants to know why all the Profs. don't go to conference.

Well, Freshman, don't you you think that it is about time to write Santa Claus that letter?

Dr. Cunningham, of Nashville, spoke to a large audience in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday night.

Drs. Watkins and Sullivan attended the North Mississippi Conference several days of last week.

Photographer: "Did you wish me to take your picture?"

Brown: "N-No—I wanted to get one."

Rev. Mercer Green, of the Episcopal Church of this city, conducted chapel exercises Tuesday morning of last week.

Prof. Noble's box of oranges have been enjoyed immensely—and the preps wish to thank him for his generosity.

Ask Knox Brown how long it is until Christmas. He has it figured out to the seconds and can tell you at any minute.

Dr. Watkins delivered a great sermon to a large, appreciative audience at the First Presbyterian Church in Greenwood last Sunday.

Some people we know have so much nerve that they would undertake to argue the suffrage question with a woman while out skiffing in a self-rocking boat.

Dr. Swartz (In Latin class): "Miss Steen, what were some of the popular things Emperor Caligula did?"

Miss Steen: "Gave a holiday."

Miss Shurlds (Reading a Sophomore's name written on a desk):

"Robert Harmon '15." "Now don't you know that boy is lying, he looks every day of twenty. I don't believe him."

A new phase of college activities has been started up lately in the form of a boxing club at the "Shacks." So far only Weems and Howe have shown the ability to hand over a sleep-producing wallop.

It is of special interest to Millsaps students that our President, Dr. A. F. Watkins, is Secretary of the Mississippi Conference which is meeting at Hazlehurst this week. He is also Secretary of the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South.

There are no exceptions, Profs. may go to conference, thrones may totter or empires fall and fate may sow calamity and reap the whirlwind of destruction—still there is no cessation of classes at Millsaps.

Co-ed (Eating "kisses" in Prof. J. M. Burton's room): "Professor, don't you want a 'kiss?'"

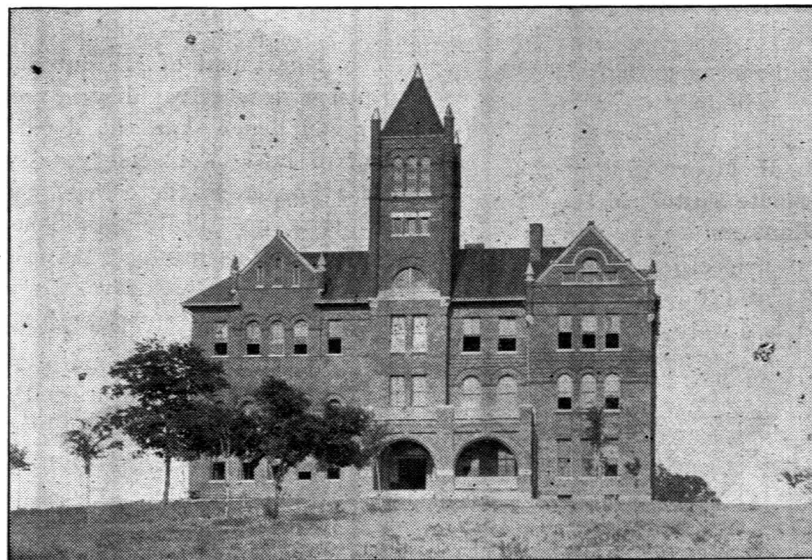

Prof. Burton (with a blush): "No, I thank you!"

Co-ed (hastily): "Oh, I mean a candy kiss."

Harry Lassiter's smiling face has been absent from our ranks since Thanksgiving, and as no one has heard from him, we are somewhat at loss to know the whereabouts of "Dot." Maybe "She" needed him worse than we do.

Among the students who took the examinations for ministerial licenses at Greenwood last week, were: F. H. McGee, Melvin Johnson and J. D. Wroten. We are very glad to hear that they successfully passed the examinations and are now full fledged "zorters."

Rev. E. T. Edmonds of the First Christian Church of this city, made the student body a very instructive talk at chapel exercises Wednesday morning. Dr. Edmonds chose for his subject, "Efficiency," and handled it in a manner to benefit everyone present.

COURIER STAFF ELECTED.

Commencement Daily Will Be Edited by Good Men.

Geo. H. Moore, Editor; Cain, Associate Editor; McGee, Business Manager.

At a meeting of the Senior Class the following members of the class were elected to the Commencement Courier staff:

G. H. Moore—Editor-in-Chief.

W. M. Cain—Associate Editor.

Miss Janie Linfield—Social Editor.

J. B. Kirkland, H. H. Lester—Reporters.

F. H. McGee—Business Manager.

J. D. Wroten, J. B. Honeycutt—Assistant Business Managers.

It can be said without fear of contradiction that a better staff could not possibly have been selected. George Moore is one of the best students in college and is considered one of the best read men who has graduated at Millsaps for some years. He is a willing and competent worker, and there is no doubt that he will make the Courier everything it should be. Moore is fortunate in having associated with him W. M. Cain, one of the leading members of the Senior Class, and one who will do all he can toward making the paper a success.

Miss Linfield, as one of the social leaders among the co-eds, will make an efficient social editor.

Kirkland and Lester are both active workers and they are sure to be on the scene if there is a possibility of getting a good story. Lester will no doubt prove to be an adept on exclusive ones.

No one who knows the man, doubts F. H. McGee's business ability. With him at the head of the business department, we feel sure that the affairs of the Courier will be handled on strictly business principles. In Wroten and Honeycutt, McGee has two assistants equal to any who could have been chosen.

We are sorry to report Mrs. Mary B. Clark, our Assistant Librarian, on the sick list this week. We sincerely hope she will soon recover and be back at her post of duty. Her ever pleasant face is greatly missed by the students.

THE HAIR WILL BE CUT.

Our Reporter Interviews Hon. Barbarous Soph, Grand Sachem of the Haircutters Association of Millsaps, U. S. A.

As Dec. 21st draws near there is much bustle and bluster on Millsaps campus. The hardware and headwear stores are doing a rushing business in order that an event of moment may be pulled off successfully about that date. Our reporter learns from one of our leading merchants that he has had more calls for hair-clippers and skull caps in the past few days than he could fill. The printing offices report that the doctors are sending in hurry calls for health certificate blanks. Everybody will be prepared.

Our reporter, meeting Hon. Barb. Soph on the campus, put this question to him:

"Do you really intend to cut all Freshmen's hair as stated in your proclamation in the Purple and White, or is this only a bluff?"

Hon. Soph replied with hesitation: "Certainly the Freshmen's hair will be cut. Far be it from us to keep the Freshies in fear and trembling unnecessarily. Let me repeat: The hair will be cut."

"But don't you think it is rather cold to turn these children loose without any hair to protect their heads? Won't their brains freeze?" he was asked.

"Not the least danger. It is impossible to freeze nothing. The contents of a vacuum are unfreezeable. However, for those who fear for their health, a remedy has been provided, as was stated in our proclamation. The presentation of a doctor's certificate, as outlined in the proclamation, relieves the presenter from the necessity of the cutting. I might add that Jim McClure, D. T. Paige, Tatum Twins, Hermon Johnson and Bill Moore have presented certificates, which are being considered. But there is still hair to cut."

Our reporter thanked our esteemed citizen and as he passed on he heard a shivering figure murmur:

"Cold! Oh so cold! Let me hasten to the doctor's office ere it is too late. Cut my beautiful hair? Never! I will swear I have only one lung and go without my meals a week before it shall be cut!"

doers of the word and not hearers only." We were reminded that one of the greatest leaders of Protestantism did not thoroughly approve the attitude of James. But this is perhaps natural in Luther because, living in the age that he did, he was no doubt disgusted with the vain works and shallow pretenses of the immoral leaders of the Church. It was a time when the man who sought the true religion must turn away from works alone and seek a spiritual uplift by faith in the blood of a dying Savior.

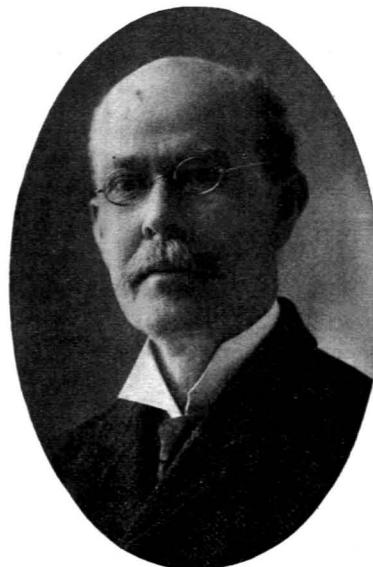

But it was not only a gospel of works that James taught but a gospel of faith and works. "Show me," he said, "your faith without your works and I will show you my faith by my works." The people had followed the teachings of Paul in regard to faith until they had almost forgot that works were necessary. Like Luther, in a revulsion of feeling against the vain works of the past centuries they carried thoughts to the other extreme and would, seemingly, have this practical Christian writer, lived by faith alone.

In following up the thought of this practical Christian writer, Dr. Watkins discussed some questions relative to Christianity. Is it a philosophy? Certainly not. Philosophers have lived, entered into the very depths of thought, and passed away without comprehending the first principle of a Christian life. Is it a science? Perhaps so, inasmuch as a science teaches men how to do the things they wish to do, but with it no other science may be compared. The Bible in its turn may be and is a text book, but the most extraordinary one the world has ever known. It is the exposition of the science of a holy life, while Christianity is the art of holy living. These two factors in the spiritual development of mankind teach a man not only how to die, but how to live. Christianity is an intensely practical thing. It can not be merely a science showing men that which they ought to do but it must be a living, vital force that compels men to work for the cause of Christ.

Bringing the discussion to a local sphere, the speaker said that the college man should be not only a hearer but a doer also.

With all the advantages of modern education it is imperative for the student to be an active, vigorous force in shaping the best influences of his surroundings. How may we do this? How may we make the atmosphere at Millsaps better? Simply by beginning with our own lives and making them better each day.

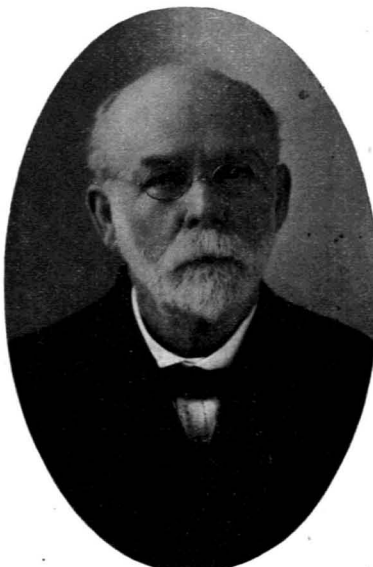

The Association was very glad to have Dr. Watkins address it and hopes to have him again soon.

GEOLOGY TRIP.

Seniors Enjoy Trip to Interesting Points—Dr. Sullivan Conducts the Party.

One of the most interesting and best conducted departments in Millsaps is that of geology. Dr. Sullivan, the head of this department, has made an extensive study of this subject and endeavors to put it before the students in the most interesting manner. Each year he takes them on several trips in order to study the subject in the field. The first trip of this session, while not an extended one, brought before the students many interesting facts with reference to the geological formations in the vicinity of Jackson. This trip was taken a short time ago to Byram and Rosemary, Miss., nine and thirteen miles respectively, from Jackson.

The class left Jackson about 9:00 A. M., reaching Byram shortly afterward, but they were not able to remain long, as the train to Rosemary, which they wished to take, arrived shortly afterwards. However, they were able to make some observations upon the limestone and fossilitic formations there.

At Rosemary they were able to remain longer and to make a very close examination of a sandstone formation along a creek there. Besides being interesting geologically, some very good scenery is to be had there.

After seeing everything around Rosemary that there was to be seen, the class determined to walk two miles to Terry to catch a train which would put them back in Jackson several hours before the one from Rosemary. Everybody caught the train, although some of them narrowly missed being left in Terry. They got back to Jackson rather tired and hungry, but unanimously agreed that they had a highly interesting time.

Those who took the trip were: Dr. Sullivan, Caruthers Sullivan, Miss Smith, Boswell, Kirkland, Lampton, Lester, Moore, Scott, Weems, McGee, Morse and Ray.

J. T. Weems Gives An Interesting Talk.

It was again on Friday night last when we were forced to ask one of our own number to take charge of the program. An address by the Rev. Mr. King, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, was expected with much interest, the students having a strong admiration for this worthy pastor and his forceful manner of speaking. It was learned at a late hour that he could not come. However, the Association prides itself on the fact that it has quite a number of men in its own ranks who are not only willing to speak for us but are capable of giving us interesting discussions of vital questions. Mr. Weems is among the number of the most forceful speakers and strongest men. To him the committee naturally turned in the selection of a man.

He chose as his subject a part of the last chapter of Galatians, especially these words: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for

The Best Employment!

The Civil Service, without doubt, offers the best opportunity to ambitious young people, and especially young men.

The Government is short of good male stenographers. Read below an extract of a circular of the Civil Service Commission: "The Commission has been unable to supply the demand for MALE stenographers and typewriters, especially in Washington, D. C. Young men who are willing to accept appointment at an entrance salary of $840 to $900 per annum have an excellent opportunity of appointment. Advancement of capable appointees is reasonably rapid. The Government Service offers a desirable field to bright and ambitious young men."

Read the following letter from a successful student of Draughon's College:

Manager, Draughon's Business College,
Jackson, Miss.

"Washington, D. C., 4-26, 1912.

Sir:

This is to thank you again, also your assistant for the attention I received at your hands when I was in your town last summer, taking the stenographer's and typewriter's examination. I made an average on the examination of which I am proud and received appointment in the Bureau of Yards and Docks on the 18th of September, 1911, at $1,000 per annum. Not so bad for a beginner in the shorthand world, and I expect to receive promotions from time to time as there are vacancies occurring right along in the field and departmental service.

If you think this information will be of any interest to the students attending your school who contemplate taking the Government examination, I would like for you to pass this letter around for them to read, as I am from Woodville, Miss., consequently am anxious to see Mississippi fully represented in the Government Departments. There are more educational facilities in Washington than any other city I know of and being in the Government Service going to work at 9 o'clock and out at 4:30 o'clock, one has lots of spare time to improve himself. IT IS UP TO THE INDIVIDUAL ENTIRELY.

Thanking you again for past courtesies and trusting the above information will be inspiring to some one in your school, I remain,

(Signed)

Very truly yours,

J. A. HUFF, Former student of Draughon's College."

MILLSAPS PREPARATORY SCHOOL.

During the session of 1910-11 the Preparatory Department of the College was organized into the Millsaps Preparatory School. The school was installed in Founder's Hall, a building adequate in every way for the home of such an institution. All boarding students were required to room and take their meals in the building, and a system of discipline suited to the needs of secondary students was adopted.

The first year the experiment proved successful beyond the shadow of a doubt. The remarkable improvement, the efficiency of the discipline, and the improvement in the quality of the work done, all pointed toward success. The satisfaction of the students and their unity of spirit was especially gratifying.

At the beginning of the present session, both faculty and students entered with renewed vigor upon the discharge of their duties. The course of study was extended to cover four years, thus furnishing the advantages of a first class secondary school to all who cared to enroll. The need of such a school is plain from a comparison of the increase of enrollment during the past three years. The enrollment this year is 94 and bids fair to reach 110; last year it was 100 and the year previous, 84. This year almost the entire enrollment is still in attendance; last year many came who did not remain long. The increased usefulness of the school is clearly evident, in spite of the widespread establishment of agricultural high schools in the State.

The unity of spirit among the students deserves comment. To a man they enthusiastically stand up for their school. They zealously enter into their literary activities, their athletic contests and their class-room work. Such satisfaction is seldom found in any student body. Prof. Noble deserves to be congratulated on the high standing which the school has assumed.

the student body, to increase its influence over them for good.

Thirdly, there should be established as soon as possible a chair of Biblical Theology. We would not be understood as desiring to keep our students from attending the Theological Department of Vanderbilt. We would encourage them to attend this school; but we would also furnish more comprehensive instruction in the Bible and kindred subjects to those of our young preachers who find it impossible to take a post-graduate course in Theology. It is believed that the example set in this matter by many of our best institutions of learning might well be followed by Millsaps College. It may be that the interest awakened by the coming of our Centennial Anniversary will make for the supply of some of these wants, or that some generous hearted Methodist in the State will furnish the means for their supply.

It is pleasant to be able to announce that the deportment of the students has been admirable. There are, of course, a few triflers; but in the main an earnest purpose is manifest in the student body to improve the opportunities they enjoy. No finer body of young men can be found anywhere than those who assemble from day to day in the class rooms of Millsaps College.

An earnest effort is being made to minister to the religious life of the students. Nearly all of them are members of the Church and a very large proportion of them regularly attend Sunday School. All of them are required to attend church. The Young Men's Christian Association is actively at work and Bible and Mission study classes have been organized.

Those intrusted with the administration of the affairs of the College take great pride in the relation that it sustains to the Church, and we earnestly ask, and confidently expect, the sympathy and co-operation of the Methodists of the State, and especially of the members of the two great governing bodies under which it must work out its destiny. We are persuaded that next to its own merit there is no influence so vital to its success as the affection and active

BASKET BALL.

Team Puts Up Good Games But Loses.

The basket ball boys returned Saturday night, having spent the week at Ellisville, Laurel, and Newton. A series of fine games was played on this trip, the first with Ellisville A. H. S. The score there was 20 to 15 against our boys. This defeat was due to the fact that our boys were not used to playing on a sandy court. The next two games were played with the Laurel Y. M. C. A. The first game was acknowledged by all to be the fastest game ever played on the Y. M. C. A. court there. The score at the end of the first half was 18 to 12 in favor of our boys, and they would have beaten them easily if their opponents had not put in new men. The score at the end of the game was 35 to 28 in favor of the Y. M. C. A. The second game with the Y. M. C. A. was a very hard fought game. Although our boys lost, they are to be congratulated on the way they fought these giants who have played the game for many years.

The team then went to C. M. C., where it met defeat in two more games. The first game was played in the rain. On account of the court being very muddy, and also on account of the severe treatment received at the hands of the Laurel Y. M. C. A. giants, our boys were in a poor condition to play. Handicapped in this way they still put up a great fight, holding them to a score of 18 to 16. In the second, and last game of the trip, our boys started in at a rapid gait but the fates seemed to be against them.

Although our team was defeated in these games, we should not feel discouraged, but look forward to the return games with great anticipation.

The men who went on the trip were: Kirkland, Gaddis, Harmon, N. B., Harmon, Robt., Frazier, Jones, Cook, Coach Fletcher and Prof. J. M. Burton.

Galloways Hold Interesting Session—Society Decides Against Monroe Doctrine.

The Society met at its regular time on Friday night with President Lampton in the chair. After the opening exercises and some small matters of business the regular program was taken up. The declaimer was unfortunately absent, but the orator, R. G. Moore, was present with a strong and forceful oration. The question for regular debate was: Resolved, That the Monroe Doctrine should be retained as a part of our permanent foreign policy.

As first speaker on the affirmative, O'Donnel gave evidence showing that its retention would be for the best interests not only of the South and Central American states, but of our own nation as well.

The first speaker on the negative explained that the conditions no longer existed that called for the Monroe Doctrine. Tatum, W. S., responded for the affirmative with some strong argument. Silverstein took up the gauntlet for the negative in his turn, followed by Howe, who summed up the argument for the affirmative with some strong facts. Cain, W. M., rounded up the facts on the negative in a forceful way, showing that this was a narrow policy for which there was no need and that it was likely to prove harmful both to our Southern neighbors and to us. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

A very important question was decided on the impromptu debate discussed by Broomfield and Caraway. Owing to the prominence of the subject we refrain from mentioning it. Howe was elected orator. By motion, the house adjourned.

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Special Program Tonight.

The Lamar's held a very short session Friday night—an impromptu debate was freely indulged in by the members present. A special program will be rendered Friday night, Dec. 13, in which a number of the best speakers of the Society will participate.

A large and enthusiastic audience is expected.

whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap everlasting life." The speaker took as his viewpoint the words just as they read and not as some seem to take them, namely: That whatsoever a man soweth that shall his children reap. It is for the man himself to reap the fullest rewards of his own conduct. Were it entirely so that man receives from an ancestry all the vital forces and ruling passions of his life, then would it take from him that power given to him when God created him in his own image—the power to choose his own course in life. Nevertheless, it is a fact that the human being has within his nature enough of transmitted depravity to drag him down if he will allow it. But here comes the test of the real man whether or not by his will he can subdue these things to his own control. Yet, none the less it is the duty of all not to hinder the progress of future generations by transmitting any evil tendencies to them whether it be of mind, body, or soul.

It is an interesting fact that when Paul, the man of the cities and artificial life, should turn to the natural world for an example that should apply to the lives of men. The illustration was a forceful one not only in the natural world but also in the spiritual world. It is no more natural that the seed planted in the earth will bring forth of its kind than that the seeds of sin and depravity when planted in the hearts of men will spring up to their destruction.

The great pity of these things is the hold they get upon the life of a man. At first he hesitates to do those things such as drinking and swearing but later they so sweep away the moral strength of his will until he does not hesitate to do the vilest things.

But the most glorious fact connected with this passage is that it applies to good as well as evil. If instead of sowing wild oats, the young man will take care to implant within his life only those things that tend toward good then in the harvest time, great will be his joy when he can come bringing his sheaves with him.

MA CAN'T VOTE.

I.

Ma's a graduate of college, and she's read most everything; She can talk in French and German, she can paint and she can sing.

Beautiful? She's like a picture! When she talks she makes you think

Of the sweetest kind of music, and she doesn't smoke or drink.

Oh! I can't begin to tell you all the poems she can quote; She knows more than half the lawyers do; but ma can't vote.

II.

When my pa is writing letters, ma must always linger near To assist him in his spelling and to make his meaning clear.

If he needs advice, her judgment, he admits, is always best;

Every day she gives him pointers, mostly of his own request.

She keeps track of registration, and is taxed on bonds and stocks,

But she never gets a look-in at the sacred ballot box.

III.

Ma is wiser than our coachman, for he's not a graduate.

And I doubt if he could tell you who is governing the state.

He has never studied grammar, and I'll bet he doesn't know Whether Caesar lived a thousand or two thousand years ago.

He could never tell us how to keep the ship of state afloat,

For he doesn't know there's such a thing—but ma can't vote.

IV.

Mrs. Gaskins does our washing, for she has to help along,

Taking care of her six children, tho her husband's big and strong.

When he gets a job, he only holds it till he draws his pay,

Then he spends his cash for WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Co-eds Favor Equality at the Polls.

There is no more burning question occupying the minds of men today than that of woman suffrage. This question has many very ardent advocates and also many opponents. Since this issue of The Purple and White is edited wholly by the Co-eds it is appropriate that some of the arguments for Women's Rights should occupy a prominent place in its columns.

Women should have the right to vote, first, because her natural right to the franchise is every whit as good as that of a man's. She must obey the law and pay taxes the same as a man. She should therefore have equal voice in the making of the laws, and in the levying and expenditure of the taxes. Ours is not a democracy until woman is allowed her place of full equality with man before the law.

Furthermore, legislation for the protection of children would be more easily secured if women had the franchise. In Colorado, where women vote, they have the most advanced laws of any state for the protection of the home and children. A number of reform measures have been introduced almost wholly by the vote of women, such as an industrial school for girls; an excellent pure food law; factory inspection; a traveling state library; compulsory education; the local option bill; and many others, so that the District Attorney of Denver says: "The experience of seventeen years has fully vindicated the justness and wisdom of extending the voting franchise to women."

Among the arguments most often advanced against woman suffrage we hear the so-called "unanswerable argument," the "indifference of the average good American woman to the privilege of voting." If this is not a fallacy we have an unanswerable argument against all movements and reforms for public good. A century ago it was an unheard-of thing for a girl to be sent to college and when the agitation for the higher education of women was begun the indifference of the world at large was astounding. Yet this indifference was not called an "unanswerable argument" against it. The indifference towards child labor reforms is shameful. But no one calls this indifference an "unanswerable argument" against child labor laws. If therefore the indifference felt for the education of women when the question first began to be discussed was not permitted to put a quietus upon the movement; and if the question of child labor is being pushed to the front today in spite of and in the face of an almost overwhelming indifference in some quarters, should the indifference of some people to woman suffrage be considered a strong and convincing argument against the movement? Certainly it should not be so considered, for woman suffrage like every other good movement is ruled not by any set of indifferent people but by the large class of those who know and love justice.

The question is often asked, "Why should woman care to vote? She is represented at the polls by the male members of the family." To us this is the most foolish question any one could ask; for the same man who makes this remark will admit that his vote expresses his political views and not those of his wife. If it is simply representation that is necessary or desirable why is it not as just for man to vote by proxy as for woman? It's a poor rule that won't work both ways.

Another argument often used against woman suffrage is that

WHEN MA VOTES.

Little Willie looked up inquiringly into his mother's face and said, "Ma, you aint goin' to the polls and vote, I hope. You know pa said any self-respectin' woman wouldn't do that, because there is so awfully much to be done at home."

"Yes, my dear, I feel that it is my duty to go and help my sisters in the mighty work of up-building our nation," answered the woman to her little six year old son. "And you must attend to your little sister while I am gone, and be a good little boy for mama."

Little Willie gave a deep sigh and said, "I do hope you can arrange to get home before dark because I will be so lonesome. How I wish my little sister was just big enough to play with my blocks and picture books with me, but she can't even crawl yet."

Just then there was a loud knock at the door and Willie went to answer the call. "Oh, come in Mrs. Jenkins," the little one said. "I guess you and ma are going up to lift the poles today. You know ma is just crazy about you but she is jealous of all your fine clothes. She said she was going to get in some office and then she could get fine dresses like you and drive two big grey horses. You know ma could look a lot better if she ever stayed at home long enough to make her dresses."

Mrs. Jenkins, all this time was listening eagerly to what the little boy had to say and said, "Willie, does your mama cook good?"

"Well, er, no, not every time," the boy said. "She has lost all interest in everything but her magazines and books. She said the other day she wanted to be well posted, so she could refute any of pa's arguments on the votin' business. The other day she actually forgot to cook and when pa came brought a friend you seen her fly around. I had been playing all day in the back yard and had so much mud on my face pa said to the vistor, 'He is our yard boy.' Then I cried because I knew pa was ashamed of me and I was doing just the thing to please ma when I went in the back yard to play. She wanted everybody to be real quiet so she could read her magazines. But I just can't please them both, no matter how hard I try."

GENERALLY SPEAKING.

"Generally speaking a woman," Prof. Brown smiled at the class. Near-sighted and fussy they thought him. They smiled at him—each pretty lass.

"Generally speaking a woman," He coughed and his features turned red. "Generally speaking a woman Is generally speaking," he said. —Ex.

He can't see over the plume;
The little man paid,

MY REPORT.

When I first looked at my report
My head began to "rise,"
For there was a neat little "one,"
Staring me in the eyes.

Looking further I saw a "two,"
Which was to be expected
"I can't expect to be perfect," I said,
Not in the least dejected.

In my report again I looked,
And what I saw amazed me,
The matter was getting serious
now,
For I had made a "three."

I thought I was disgraced,
When I espied a "four,"
I crushed the paper in my hand
And looked at it no more.

I felt my anger rising fast,
Against the Faculty,
Why had they thus conspired
To make such sport of me?

I saw the matter from one side,
From my own point of view,
And seeing thus I thought,
I did not get my due.

But when I calmly thought it o'er,
I realized my mistake.
For surely teachers couldn't give grades I did not make.

Some classes I had "cut,"
In some had made zero,
And then expected credit,
For things I did not know.

Disgrace lies not in failure,
As I now realize,
But in not attempting,
Each time you fall, to rise.

Looking into the future,
I see my next report,
Bearing the grades I wish,
Earned by honest effort.

THE SOPH'S DEFEAT.

I.

Oh! Sophomore stop and ponder long,
E'er you shave the Freshman's heads.
For I'm very sure, when you've heard my song
You'll beware of shearing co-eds.

II.

In another college not long ago,
Was made this same decree,
And the way it ended was full of woe,
For the ones who did the deed.

III.

The day arrived and all were there;
One Sophomore stood with tears;
The trembling co-eds clutched their hair
And stood with falling tears.

IV.

They bound a co-ed to a chair,
One Sophomore was selected,
To take the hair pins out her hair
So it fell down unprotected.

V.

A hair pin here, a hair pin there,
At last when all were out,
A veil of wavy, lovely hair,
Fell gloriously about.

IV.

Now one stepped forward with the shears
To cut that lovely hair,
But when he saw her pleading tears,
He said, "I do not dare."

VII.

And in her wavy scented hair
He buried deep his face,
They knew his heart was also there,
So spared her for his sake.

VIII.

But listen now, my tale's not done.
The worst I've yet to tell you,
This was the fate of number one,
With number two I'll greet you.

IX.

A hair pin here, a hair pin there;
At last there were no more,
When off came one long string of hair!
The rest fell on the floor.

X.

The Sophomores looked upon the head,
Where hair there was no more.
"I think you got in bad," she said,
"My hair's been cut before."

XI.

The next day all the Sophs were lain

THE REGULAR EDITORS.

APROPOS THE SEASON.

At this good time of the year, what a flood of sweet memories rushes into our minds at the mention of the joyous Christmas-tide. How the hearts of all yield to the message, "On Earth Peace—," it has a meaning stronger than mere sentiment. Amid all the good cheer, let us not forget this festival is also a sacred time, for we commemorate a Savior born, and it was with the rising of that star that the world's hope was realized. Why should it not be the time most filled with love and joy? In our own happiness, however, let us not forget others less fortunate, and let us practice meekness, gentleness, forgiveness, and that purity, which were by the angel's song breathed into the world at his command and exalted by Him in His teaching. Forever, O Earth, repeat the angelic strain; and Thou, O Star of Bethlehem, shine on forever!

Although more than nineteen hundred years have elapsed since the Star appeared in the East to lead the Magi to the Redeemer's cradle, the mysterious rays still shed their holy light over the Christ child lying in the manger.

In order that God might teach man the greatness of love, He became a child and again we hear the wise men saying, "Where is He, that is born King of the Jews, for we have seen His Star in the East and have come to worship Him." Again we listen to the angelic strains, "Glory to God in the Highest!"

The present Christmas opens with more hope and a brighter outlook than ever to the future of the upbuild and rise of our earth. Great events have marked the passing of the last year. The gospel has been spread far and wide to the remotest corners of the earth and the people are offering prayers of gratitude for such fulfillment of universal prayer. China has become a republic and this of itself ranks among the greatest events in the history of the world. We, here at home, have cause for gratitude, for others have been plunged in the depths of war. But already an arrangement for peace has been made. More and more, warfare has come to be looked upon as a relic of barbarism and as a method of settling disputes entirely unworthy of the present standard of civilization. It will only be settled when all the ruling powers shall adjust their affairs by arbitration. We shall look to a glorious future for peace, when all the nations of the earth shall sing on a glad Christmas day, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth Peace, good will toward men."

Ask the Freshman Co-eds where the store is?

All stretched upon the bed,
The doctor said "Hair on the brain,
And weakness in the head."

The fair co-ed would rather wed
Than go to teaching school.
In fact, so much she's often said:
She's frankness as a rule—
But college guys are far too wise:
They fear a Suffragette.
And so the learned maiden sighs

man is more fitted by his occupation to manage city and state affairs than woman is. This is a very broad assertion and is rather a one-sided view to take. Man's business may teach him to direct some departments of government more accurately but common sense teaches that woman's work as a housekeeper and mother makes her more efficient in the regulation of other departments. She, seeing the evils of the lack of such things, would bring it about that we have cleaner streets and shops, better inspection of food, a cleaner and better supply of milk and water, well ventilated school rooms and reasonable laws affecting child labor. It is said that woman's place is the home. Grant that this is so. Then we see very clearly that if she directs the home properly the experience thus acquired will qualify her in an eminent degree to exercise the ballot for the proper and exact regulation of those specific municipal affairs which we have just mentioned.

We often hear also that if woman could vote her influence for good would be lessened. The attitude of liquor dealers towards woman suffrage is good evidence against this objection. For it has been proved in suffrage states that woman's influence with the vote exceeds her influence without the vote. In Colorado, before women could use the ballot the question of prohibition or local option could never even get a hearing. But since women have voted, the local option bill has been passed and very many counties are now dry.

Furthermore, it is said that women would be contaminated by mixing with men at the polls. This is not true. She would not lose her purity and loveliness by voting. She would, however, elevate and purify the polling places. For since woman's presence has aided every other organization it stands to reason her presence at the polls would elevate politics also.

These are by no means all of the arguments set forth by those opposing woman suffrage, but the rest are, like the ones we have mentioned—simply arguments and not reason.

At the last election, three and possibly four, states—Michigan being contested—crossed the line and this year there were just twice as many delegates at the convention in Philadelphia as there were last year. And in our own state, Mississippi, in the past year the membership of the suffrage league has been completely doubled—besides the hundreds we cannot reach. Taking into consideration the growth of the movement from the start and especially the marvelous increase of the past few years, it is safe, we believe, to say that next year six more states, at least, will line up on the side of right and justice and within five years, at most, women in the United States will be equal, before the law, to men.

The All Time Smoke— Tuxedo

WILLIAM F. MURRAY

Congressman William F. Murray of Boston, Mass., who, in addition to other distinctions, is the youngest member of Congress, says:

"In my recent campaign for Congress, I had occasion to speak many times nightly. I found that Tuxedo tobacco and a good pipe have a very soothing effect on the vocal chords after a hard speaking tour."

William F. Murray

C. D. WILLIAMS

C. D. Williams, the illustrator, whose color work has earned him an international reputation, says:

"When designing the composition of a picture, I find it easier to concentrate my attention on the work if I smoke Tuxedo. It is a wonderfully sweet, cool smoke in my meerschaum."

Chas. Williams

RICHARD HENRY LITTLE

Richard Henry Little, the distinguished war correspondent, author and humorist, says:

"I have found Tuxedo a faithful companion in the field and in the camp."

Richard Henry Little

MORNING and afternoon a man must keep his body and brain in tune. That's efficiency, and a good, pure tobacco—Tuxedo—is an excellent pace maker.

A few whiffs in the morning clear your brain and concentrate it on your work. In the afternoon, many a good long steady pull at the pipe keeps that concentration keyed just right.

At night, after a good day's level-headed work, sit back in your easy chair at home and get the solace and relaxation that comes from a big calabash of Tuxedo.

That's the true history of many a Tuxedo day.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Tuxedo is unique, individual. It's the only tobacco that stimulates and soothes without a bite or sting or an irritation.

Business men find Tuxedo helpful. Authors and journalists smoke it while they write. Singers use it before and after performances. Doctors enjoy it and recommend it.

Try a week of Tuxedo. Smoke it in your pipe, or roll it into the best cigarettes you ever smoked. Either way, or both ways, for a week, and you'll have the best smoke week in your life!

YOU CAN BUY TUXEDO EVERYWHERE

BENJAMIN M. NEWBOLD

Benjamin M. Newbold, District Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Washington, D.C., says:

"There are no flaws in Tuxedo and a large number of virtues—purity, coolness, mildness, fragrance—all are present in generous measure."

B. M. Newbold

A. C. HARRINGTON

A. C. Harrington, Sales Manager of the Packard Motor Car Co., New York City, says:

"Personally, I believe I'm one of the original Tuxedo fans. I smoke it to the exclusion of all other brands."

JAMES MONTGOMERY

James Montgomery, author of the successful farce, "Ready Money," now running at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York City, says:

"Tuxedo is a fine, natural tobacco, a slow burning, mild, sweet smoke. I always use Tuxedo."

A BIOGRAPHY.

When Alfred Allen was two years old,
 He was worth—to his parents—his weight in gold.
 Did ever before a child so small
 Say 'da da' or so soon learn to crawl?
 And would you believe it, the older he grew
 His precocity increased—and his temper too!
 In primary department, at the country school,
 He knew all his lessons but would break one rule,
 For he'd sometimes slip apples to blue eyed Marilla,
 (You see from the first he was a gay lady killer).
 In all grammar grades his studies were joys,
 Then too, he delighted in licking Big Boys.
 In high school his literary genius soon dawned,
 Diamond Dick and his pals he always scorned.
 As his friends he chose Chaucer, Milton and such,
 And studied them faithfully, really too much.
 For when at John Hopkins he first appeared,
 The professors were bluffed, non-plussed and 'skeered'
 They had heard young Napoleon in the literary world,
 And feared from their pedestals they'd quickly be hurled.
 Before he'd been there an entire school year,
 He left all the students 'way back in the rear.
 He was philosopher, orator, editor, poet,
 When told he was smart, his reply was "I know it."
 He entered an essay once for a prize
 And won a medal so big when he dies
 He can use it nicely as a tomb stone,
 Or if he goes broke t'would be good for considerable loan.
 True t'was rather a one sided affair,
 For no one else entered—they did not dare!
 His triumphs were manifold you see,
 And he graduated with a BIG A. M., Ph. D.
 To think he did all this with his PEN.
 Don't tell me about these LITERARY MEN!
 Soon he decided to go abroad,
 And on the way he met a real live LORD.
 He chased Literature to its lair,
 And learned all its secrets while there.
 Now he imparts his knowledge to US,
 And indulges occasionally in a great fuss.
 Often over the Shakespeare Club he sheds his light,
 And delivers lectures that are VERY bright.
 What title has come with his fame—can you guess?
 The Right Honorable DIPPY; who told you? Yes!
 Each year at Christmas it is said
 He will surely return from vacation—WED.
 But thus far he has made an announcement brief,
 Which brought from all Co-eds a great sigh of relief.
 Once again there's a chime of a Christmas Bell,
 And this year—but, ahem, you never can tell!

CO-EDS VS. FACULTY.

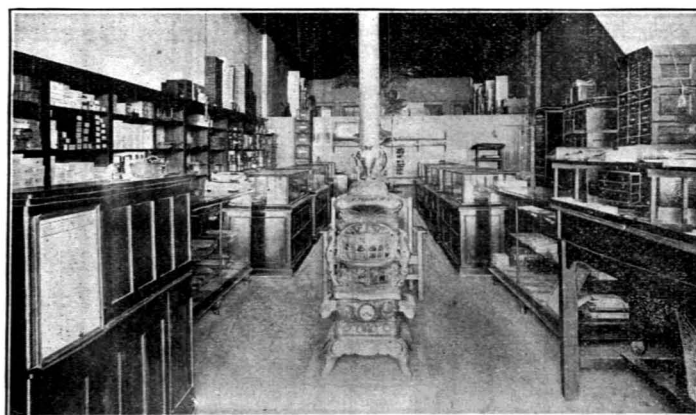

The fact that the co-eds have organized their basket ball team and that it is a good one was demonstrated last week in the gymnasium when they defeated the faculty by a large score. Notwithstanding the fact that the faculty had some former stars on it's team, they were unable to cope with the zealous co-eds.

The game started in a very fast and impressive manner and up until the second half was very close and hard fought. "Long John," an old time star, held the co-ed's centre, Miss McGehee, with his long arms outstretched thus preventing her from being much aid to her team, as a centre. He could not, however, keep her from throwing a few goals over his head.

"Mose" surrounded Miss Buck to a good advantage and "Dippy" stood by Miss Lester. "Ducky" Lin guarded Miss Taylor as though she were private property—thus keeping her from making a single goal. The first half ended 40 to 22 in favor of the co-eds.

In the second half things began to take place with surprising rapidity, the co-eds taking the lead from beginning. How they succeeded in rattling the faculty we are unable to say but rattle them they did. "Dippy" was the first to lose his head. This happened in an attempt to keep up with Miss Lester, stumbling over "Ducky." "Ducky" followed after "losing four buttons from his vest." "Long John," "Mose" and "E. Y." were not far behind him.

Thus the co-eds had things going their way and they proceeded to take advantage of it. No mercy was shown the faculty. Goals, goals, goals, in front of them—goals behind them—six hundred goals were made by the co-eds.

Mrs. Chisolm, the official score keeper found it a difficult task to record the score as fast as it was made. When finally the time keeper did call a halt it was found that the score stood 379 to 121 in favor of the co-eds. Six

Y. M. C. A.

Speaker, Edwards. Subject:
"Christ and the Woman of Samaria."

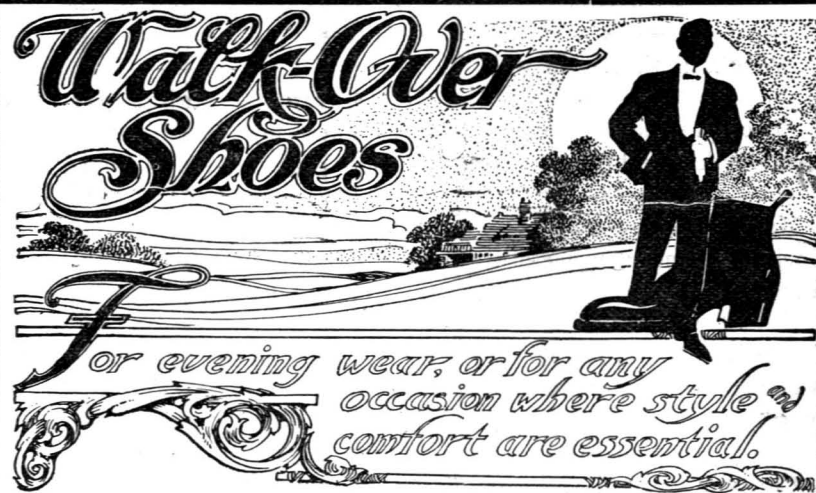

Those people who were present at the last meeting of the Y. M. C. A. enjoyed to the fullest extent the address made by R. C. Edwards. Although this is Edwards' first year in the college, he is a speaker of great ability, having won a reputation for himself in the Preparatory School where he was the winner of several debates for that branch of the college.

Edwards chose the following text "If thou knewest the gift of God, thou wouldest not ask who it was that gave to thee." The text is taken from the fourth chapter of John, in that part where Christ talks with the woman of Samaria at Jacob's well.

The speaker began by telling how the people had the wrong conception of Christ's kingdom, thinking it was an earthly kingdom, and how Christ left Jerusalem and went into the rural districts of Judea to teach the common people. When Christ saw that these people would not listen to him either, he decided to return to Galilee and to labor there until a more convenient day. In going from Judea to Galilee, it was necessary that Christ pass through Samaria, the people of which country the Jews despised, thinking them to be an inferior people. Therefore they refused to give their gospel to the Samaritans. Here the speaker said that in the same way college students refuse to give the gospel to their fellow students by not asking them to go to the Y. M. C. A. and to Sunday school.

Christ, the perfect man, had no such feelings toward the Samaritans as the Jews did, and instead of scorning the woman whom he met at the well, he spoke to her, and in the course of conversation caused her to realize her sinful condition and to confess her sins. In the same way, the first thing that any sinner must do is to realize his condition and then, in order that he might be saved, to confess his sins to Jesus Christ.

MISS LINFIELD ENTERTAINERS.

One of the most delightful social events of the year was on Saturday night, Dec. 6, when Miss Janie Linfield charmingly entertained a few friends at the attractive home of Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Swartz on the campus.

The evening's gayety began when the young gentlemen were bidden to choose their partners from a group of ghostly statues. Much fun was derived from this unique arrangement and strange to say each one seemed to find the exact girl he was looking for, although they were so well disguised.

A clever guessing contest was much enjoyed, after which the young people were served with delicious refreshments.

Those present were: Misses B. G. Steen, E. K. Steen, Harmon, Elizabeth Watkins, Pattie Sullivan, Brabston and McGehee. Messrs. McLure, Lampton, Henry, Broomfield, McNeil, McNeil, Gathings and Fant.

SIGMA UPSILON CONVENTION.

Millsaps Profs. Again Honored.
Drs. Kern and J. M. Burton Re-elected President and Historian, Respectively.

Dr. Kern was absent from school several days after the opening, attending the annual convention of the Sigma Upsilon Literary Fraternity. As is generally known, Dr. Kern has been president of the national organization of this fraternity for several years. The convention was royally entertained by Osiris Chapter of Randolph-Macon College and several social events added pleasure to the meeting.

The business sessions were exceedingly interesting and reports

BASKET BALL.

Millsaps Breaks Even With C. M. C.—Lose First and Win Last.

Two Hotly Contested Games—Millsaps Boys Show Great Improvement.

The fans in and around Millsaps were treated to two real Basket Ball games last week. Millsaps lost the first and won the second. Both games were very exciting and it was shown that the Millsaps squad is a great improvement over last year's team. The C. M. C. boys were much heavier than our bunch but they did not seem to be as quick.

The first half of the first game ended with the score 7 to 1 in favor of the C. M. C. boys. This did not discourage Millsaps in the least and when the game was over the score was much closer—that is, 17 to 15 in favor of C. M. C., and it is no doubt that if the game had lasted three more minutes we would have won.

The second game was much more exciting than the first as is shown by the score. Not only was it more exciting but it was rougher. It was decided by all present, including the referee, that one of the C. M. C. boys was just a little too rough, so he was asked Event of Interest in College Fraternity Circles.

On Friday night, Dec. 11th, the Kappa Sigma Fraternity absorbed the Phi Delta Fraternity which has been a local organization at this college for the past four years. Both of these Fraternities have occupied prominent positions in college circles, but on account of the large number graduating from both of them last year they were somewhat weakened and it seemed advisable to consolidate. This combination gives the Kappa Sigma the largest membership of any fraternity in college.

At this initiation only the ac-

MILLSAPS, 15; D'LO, 12.

(Intended for last week.)

At exactly seven-thirty o'clock last Friday night Referee Fletcher blew the whistle which started one of the most exciting basket ball games that has ever been played at Millsaps.

The two teams were on the court at seven o'clock sharp, and as they were warming up for the near approaching contest, their countenances betrayed the look of one who is confident of victory.

During the first few minutes of play the D'Lo boys seemed to suffer from stage fright, which was due from the cheering of the throngs which packed the grand stand, but later they proved equal to the occasion and played great ball.

Bob Harmon started the ball to rolling and it was kept going by Henry and Kirkland. Both teams played with a strong determination to win and although Millsaps was never in danger, during the first half, they had to play their best. The end of the first half found the score 9 to 6 in favor of Millsaps.

The second half was the most exciting part of the game. The D'Lo boys did not seem at all discouraged but played a stronger game. For a while enthusiasm was at its heights and the constant cheering from the side lines did a great deal towards defeating the D'Lo team. At times it looked as if they had the game within their reach when Millsaps would get together as a unit and add one or two points to their score.

Bob Harmon, Kirkland and Henry featured for Millsaps while Williams, May and Grant-ham played star ball for D'Lo.

The line-up was as follows:

Millsaps. D'Lo.

Henry.....Center.....May
Kirkland.....F.....Williams
Bob Harmon.....F.....Grantham
Gaddis, Cook, Jones, G. Alexander
Hobert, N. Harmon.....G.....Ross

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The recent death of Carlos Dru Williams brings sadness to the entire student body. As this sadness is most deeply felt among his schoolmates, be it

Resolved, by the students of Millsaps Preparatory School,

1. That we express our sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss of their loved one.

2. That we shall ever cherish the memory of his true, noble life, as lived among us, and the faithful work that he did in athletics, literary society and in school work in general.

3. That we know that we have lost one of the strongest members of our school.

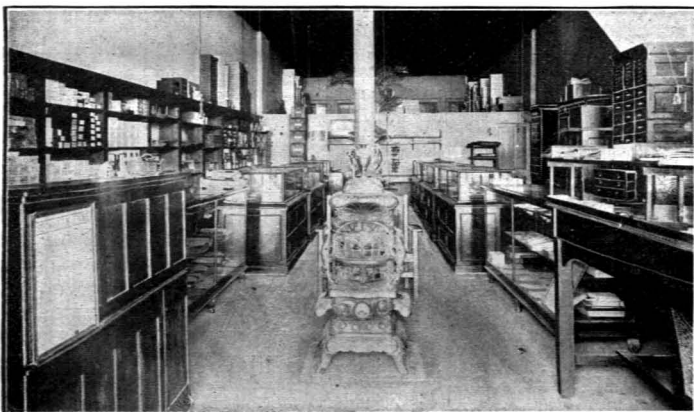

4. That it is our heartfelt wish that God may console those who are bereaved.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Purple and White and that a copy be sent to his relatives.

Permit us to say further that, notwithstanding the fact that we are grieved over his loss, yet we submit to the will of God, and trust that those even nearer to him may have the same spirit.

THE HONOR SYSTEM.

The honor council is too well known to the students of Millsaps and too much imbued in their hearts for us to enter into any detailed discussion of it here. It is the pride and joy of the students that they are permitted to attend college where the honor council works in such a successful manner. It should be the ideal of every student that Millsaps College becomes a place where the honor system is held in such reverence and esteem that there would not even be a suspicion that any student of the college fails to hold sacred the spirit and letter of the system.

We say this not because we fear that the majority of our students are not staunch supporters of the honor system but because we deem it fitting just at this time to express the hope that the honor council will not be subjected to the painful duty of calling anyone to task for doing that which he ought not during the present period of examinations.

COLLEGE SPIRIT.

Unless we were laboring under an hallucination, a vision, a dream or something similar, we noticed that there was more genuine college spirit and enthusiasm displayed last week at the basket ball games than has ever been witnessed before at Millsaps during the same period of time.

This is particularly gratifying to us, for there is nothing that Millsaps College needs more, nor anything that would be of more good to her than a good case of this same college spirit—the bubbling, overflowing kind that makes itself evident on every occasion where there is need for it, yet holds the enthusiastic college supporter within the bounds of decency and self respect.

Probably this increase of spirit is due to the fact that the team is beginning to “support the college” as well as demanding that the college support the team. If this is true, then it is incumbent upon the students to show their spirit by going out and helping make the teams better able to “support the college.” Then we may build up not only teams that are capable of winning games but also a genuine whole-souled college spirit that will at all times be one of the pre-eminent sources of the strength that enables the team to emerge victorious from its various conflicts.

ON GOING DOWN TOWN.

We wish to express our hearty approval of the recent determination of the faculty to enforce with greater strictness the regulations on going to town at night and also the application of these regulations to the Juniors. The habit that some of our boys have of visiting town too frequently is, without doubt, the greatest evil against which the authorities of the college have to contend. The practice is against the best interests of all concerned, the college as well as the student.

Looking at it from the viewpoint of the college, we can think of nothing that has a greater tendency toward acquiring for it a bad reputation, not only in the City of Jackson, but throughout the State. Jackson being the Capital City of the State, there are always visitors here from different parts of the State. These visitors are always prominent and influential citizens of the community in which they live—just the men who send their boys to college or the ones with whom other people advise when they are looking for a good place to send their boys. If, when these men are in Jackson, they see the college boys loafing around the hotels, the pool rooms, or the drug stores, do you suppose they will send their own boys here or advise anybody else to send theirs?

From the standpoint of the boy himself, nothing gets him “in bad” with the faculty, and his associates more quickly, nothing generates idleness more surely, and nothing draws the money from the pocket more regularly than the habit of loafing around town at night. It has always been inconceivable to us how a boy, especially one surrounded by the influences that one is at Millsaps, can so far forget himself and what he was sent here for as to allow himself to get in the habit of going to town and idling around down there to the neglect of the work for which he was sent here.

Y. M. C. A.

Prof. G. L. Harrel Speaks to the Association.

On Friday night, Jan. 10, the first meeting after Christmas, the Association was pleased and honored with having Prof. Harrel as a speaker. As a student he was an active member of the Y. M. C. A. for five years and at one time president. We rejoice to say that he has not lost interest in the work of the Association with the passing of the years but, with the other members of the faculty, still takes a deep interest in the promotion of its welfare.

The speaker chose as his subject, “Counting the Cost,”—one that should be of especial interest to a student just starting out in the battle of life. He said that it was about this time of year when the business men of the financial world were taking stock and counting the cost of their business. The college student must count the cost of life, must count the cost of their actions in school life.

Several passages were read from the Bible bearing on this point. The first of these was about the king whose servant owed him ten thousand talents and whom the king forgave the debt. Then this servant went to a fellow servant who owed him the small sum of seventeen dollars and caused him to be cast into prison. Apart from the moral wrong of his deed, the servant received his reward, if it may be so called, by being asked to pay the debt which he owed his lord. Again was the story told of the master of the vineyard who hired the servants to labor in his vineyard. The story of the young man who came to Jesus and asked him what he should do to inherit eternal life. When he counted the cost of righteous living and found that it meant the loss of his property he went away sorrowful.

The principal thought of the discourse was taken from this verse: “So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all men.” This is a lesson of friendship. Nor is it necessary to have a great number of men as friends in order to accomplish something. The promise has been given that where two or three are gathered together they will be blessed.

It was a strong presentation of a good subject. The Association was pleased to have him and hopes to have him again soon.

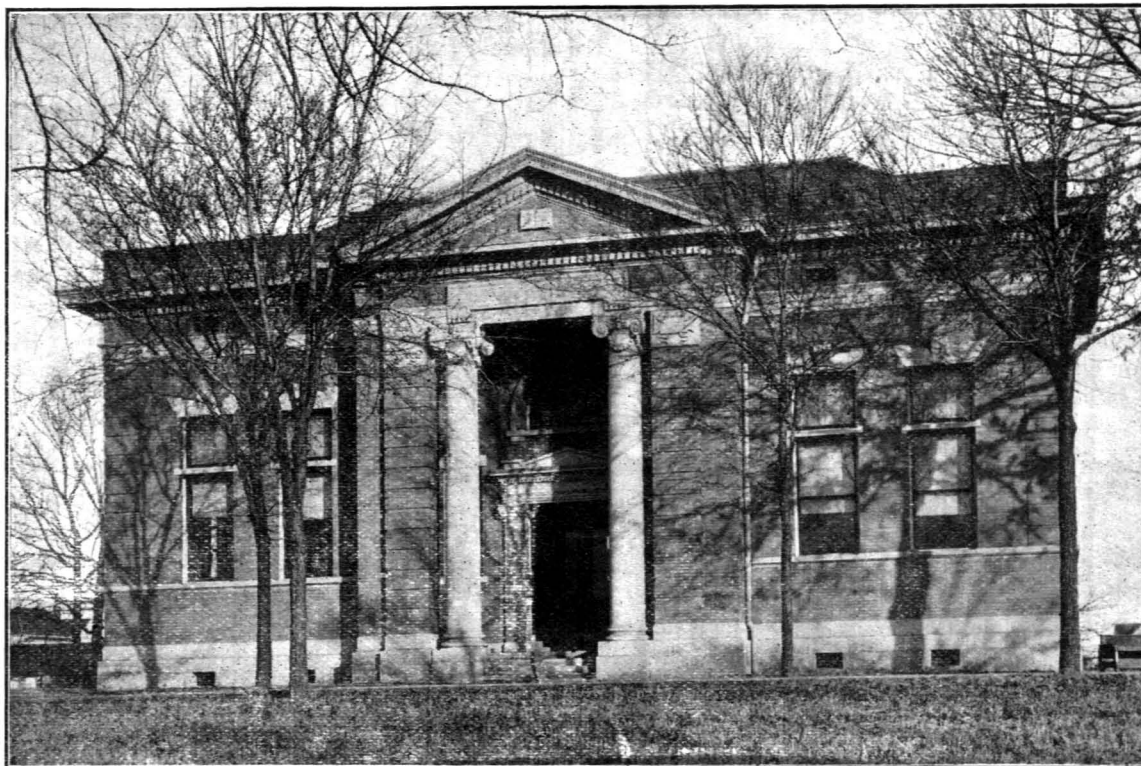

PREP LOCALS.

We regret to say that Mr. L. H. Gates will not be with us for the rest of the year, but hope that he will be back with us next year.

We are glad to have with us for the rest of the year Quinn and Fondren. Quinn was with us last year and starred on the base ball team. Fondren made good as pitcher with C. H. A. last year, and we are expecting great work from him in the athletic line.

We are delighted to hear that Prof. Noble had such good luck while hunting in Louisiana during the holidays. In his account of the trip he states that he found thousands of birds; had two good dogs; shot 120 times—but didn't kill anything.

The famous laws of the Medes and Persians have been broken by the faculty of Millsaps College. The latest edict is as follows: “The Seniors may go to town with permission; the Juniors must petition the faculty for permission; Sophomores can not go at all; iron collars and chains with the names engraved thereon will arrive in a few days for the Freshmen. The Preps are to be confined in dungeons.”

James McClure's father, a prominent merchant of Fayette, and a member of the board of trustees of the State colleges, was a pleasant visitor on the campus one day last week while he was in the Capital City attending a meeting of the board of trustees. WHY You Should Smoke a MILD Tobacco

GEO. P. JAMES

Geo. P. James, District Passenger Agent of the Atlantic Coast Lines, at Washington, D. C., says:

"I'm a great admirer of Tuxedo. It's cool, pleasant to the taste, and has the happy faculty of keeping my brain 'clear for action'."

Geo. P. James

MAURICE FARKOA

Maurice Farkoa, whose fine tenor voice is heard to such advantage in the Shubert production, "The Merry Countess" says:

"Many fellow singers have complained to me that tobacco smoking hurts their voices. My answer invariably is that they don't smoke Tuxedo. I DO, and I never have any voice trouble. Tuxedo is the ideal smoke."

Maurice Farkoa

ROY NORTON

Roy Norton, well-known writer, author of "The Plunderer", etc., says:

"As a veteran expert in tobacco, I have come to the conclusion that Tuxedo beats them all."

Roy Norton

A MILD tobacco is soothing, restful, healthful. Strong tobacco irritates and may cause nervousness.

Tuxedo is the ideal tobacco. It is the mildest tobacco—yet rich and has a delicious flavor and aroma.

You can smoke Tuxedo all day long—pipeful after pipeful—without making yourself nervous. Tuxedo can't bite your tongue or irritate the delicate membranes of your mouth and throat—because in Tuxedo every unpleasant feature has been removed by the famous "Tuxedo process" of treating the tobacco leaf.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Every new, good thing is imitated. Tuxedo was born in 1904, and is the original in its field.

Since 1904 many imitations of Tuxedo have been created. Not one of them has come within gunshot of the secret process which makes Tuxedo the pleasantest, healthfulest smoke in the world.

Compare the imitators with Tuxedo: look at them, and note the lighter, milder color of Tuxedo; smell them and note the marked superiority of the odor of Tuxedo; smoke Tuxedo in comparison with them and you will feel a difference in taste so sharp that you will never again smoke anything but Tuxedo.

Test Tuxedo by smoking it for a week. At the end of the week your nerves will be steadier, your health will be better—and you will have had the most enjoyable smoke week of your life.

L. LEFAUX

L. Lefaux, Assistant Engineer of the New Orleans Fire Department, says:

"Firemen, above all others, are under an almost continuous stress and strain. I know of no better relief and relaxation for them than Tuxedo. I use it myself—constantly."

FIRE IN FOUNDER'S HALL.Preps Alarmed by Blaze in Dormitory—Heroic Work Saves Building.

The Preps had quite an excitement early Monday morning when the alarm was given that Founder's Hall was on fire. It is not definitely known whether that being the thirteenth day of the month had anything to do with it or not, yet the fact remains that the fire was dangerously nearing the point where it would have done considerable damage when Neal, who happened to be rooming under the place of conflagration, discovered it and gave the alarm. Those preps who were not too busy bumping their trunks down the stairs or chunking them recklessly out of the window, regardless of where went "her picture" and other things they had been religiously holding in hiding since their entrance to college, managed to form a bucket brigade and extinguish the flames.

Two fire companies appeared on the scene but were too late to share in the work.

Ward: "I am getting awful good."

Harmon: "Why don't you make a preacher?"

Ward: "I got too much life about me."

We note that some of our Seniors are growing a mustache. With the proper nourishment and nursing we have all reasons to believe that they will grow a flourishing set. Here's hoping that they may grow long and curly and will make of certain Seniors real handsome men.

The Profs. have reversed the order of things this week and instead of doping out lectures teeming with knowledge they are gathering in. Shall we say that the answers which the students are turning in are "teeming with knowledge?"

The managers of the Annual are not even letting up on their work during the exams. Makes us kinder wish we hadn't signed that five dollar note now. Its—to be a senior.

Have you had your picture made for the Annual yet? Better watch out, you will find that they can get out an Annual without it. Then how would you feel?

The literary societies failed to meet Friday night on account of the nearness to exams.

Junior: "I wish I had a million dollars."

Freshman: "I wish my exams were over, that would be much nicer."

to retire. The score stood 11 to 11, and everybody thought it would end just that way, but Frazier proved equal to the occasion and threw a foul goal, the whistle blowing the instant after. The final score was 12 to 11 in favor of Millsaps.

The line-up for the two teams was as follows:

Millsaps.C. M. C.

Kirkland	Center	Gilbert
Gaddis	Guard	Black
Cook	Guard	Watkins
Bell	Forward	Moss
Frazier	Forward	Hosey
Harmon	Forward	Buckley

Subs for C. M. C.—Morris, Parkness; for Millsaps—Henry, Jones, Harmon. Referee—Buckley. Umpire—Fletcher.

Monogram Sweaters Presented to Gaddis, Cook, Harmon, Frazier, Kirkland and Hobert.

Sweaters bearing the basket ball monogram were presented during the last week to the following men: Gaddis, Cook, Harmon, Frazier, Kirkland and Hobert. These men are doing excellent work on the team and rightly deserve this bestowal of honor on them. We congratulate them. Other men who are doing good work on the squad are Henry and Henry, Harmon, Jones and Bell.

The Basket Ball Team defeated D'Lo, Bill Colmer's team, week before last to the tune of 15 to 12. The visitors put up a plucky fight and deserve credit for being a clean, snappy bunch of fellows.

LAW NOTES.

We regret to announce the continued illness of Judge W. R. Harper, but are glad to note that he is much improved and hopes to be out again by the latter part of this week. During his absence the Hon. Robert B. Ricketts, of the law firm of Longino and Ricketts, has lectured the law class.

There have been several additions to the class since the holidays. We are glad to welcome Messrs. Featherstone and McLaurin, of Jackson; and Regoussa, of Biloxi. It is reported that Mr. R. E. Steen, a member of the class of 1910, will also join the class within the next few days.

Mr. J. Andrew Blount was absent from classes during the first days of the week in attendance upon the annual meeting of the Grenada System of Banks. No doubt our good friend acquitted himself with credit both at the festive board and in the business sessions.

Bryan Dabney has been confined to his room by an attack of the grippe but will soon be out again much to the delight of his friends and classmates.

Mr. Regoussa was a member of the party that ended so sadly in the tragedy on the Farish trestle on last Sunday evening. We are glad to note that he escaped uninjured.

In pursuance of an arrangement made some months ago, Judge Reed will deliver a lecture to the law class at the Supreme Court chamber on Thursday evening, January the twenty-third. All who are interested in the subject are cordially invited to be present. His subject is: Hints to the Young Lawyer.

The Moot Court will resume its session at the county court house next Monday night. Just what cause will be tried is not known, but there will be some sort of justice dispensed.

Manager Kirkland has arranged two games each with Mississippi A. & M. and Mississippi College, to be played after examinations. Come out fellows, and let's get their "goats."

PRENTISS LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Prentiss boys held their first meeting since the holidays last Friday night. There was a good attendance and an enthusiastic response to the calls of those on the program. Pres. Bufkin presided, and Alford, the chaplain, lead in prayer.

Alford also read a delightful essay. Two men, Wooten and Golden responded to the call for declaimers and demonstrated that they have the essentials of finished orators.

The subject for debate was, "Resolved, That Mississippi should have an educational qualification for suffrage." Clegg and Davis ably upheld the affirmative while Bufkin, Barrett and Joyce put up unanswerable arguments for the negative. The decision was rendered in favor of the negative.

N. Johnson was elected treasurer for the next term.

Judge Blount of the law class, left Sunday to attend the annual gathering of the Grenada Banking System at Grenada. The Grenada Banking System is one of the largest in the South, and its stockholders and directors meet annually and participate in social features as well as business sessions. Blount is not as yet one of the kings of finance but Millsaps is glad to have one of her students the guest of a meeting like this.

A. B. Campbell, formerly known to Millsaps students as "Boyd," now as "Prof. Campbell of Eupora," passed through Jackson last Sunday. Campbell is superintendent of a school with an enrollment of nearly four hundred pupils and ten assistants. He is making good in every respect and will ere long be at the very top of his profession.

FOUNDERS' HALL BURNS.

Oldest Building of the College Consumed by Flames—Work of Rebuilding to Begin Shortly. Work of School Not Affected.

One of the most eventful happenings of the present session was the burning on the night of the fifteenth of the building known as Founders' Hall, for many years used as the college dormitory, but for the past year and a half as the Millsaps Preparatory School. Not only because of the handicap which it places upon the authorities, but because of the sentimental place which it held in the hearts of the students, past and present, who have lived in it, is it a source of much regret to all connected with the college, that this, the oldest building on the campus, has been laid bare of its usefulness by the Millsaps Breaks Even With A. & M.—Lose First and Win Second.

Millsaps Boys Show Great Improvement in Team Work. The Whole Team Stars—Mississippi College Next.

Millsaps broke even with A. & M. in the two games which were played at Starkville last Friday and Saturday nights, having lost the first and won the last game. Both games were clean, snappy and fast. The A. & M. boys were a great deal heavier than the Millsaps boys, but the latter had it over them in team work. In fact, the team work displayed by the Jackson boys was something remarkable and Coach Fletcher deserves all kinds of credit for beating it in to them.

Fletcher's bunch would probably have defeated A. & M. in the first game if they had been in condition. The game was begun immediately after the train arrived at Starkville. The Millsaps boys, besides being tired out, got no supper, and naturally this tended to make them somewhat weak. Consequently, by the time the first half was over they were played down. As evidence, however, that they

CLARK ESSAY CONTEST.

The subject for the Clark Essay Contest for the present session has been announced as "The Creoles of George W. Cable." The essay will be due on the first Saturday in May, at which time an impromptu subject will be assigned on which an essay must be written. There is no limit as to the length of the essays and the contest is open to the entire college. Dr. Kern will be glad to confer with all who are thinking of entering the contest and to give them as much help as is allowed under the terms of the contest. The medal was won last year by Mr. J. B. Cain of the present senior class.

Rev. Paul D. Hardin, Presiding Elder of the Jackson District, made the student body a short but very interesting talk at chapel one morning last week.

all consuming hand of fire, and that no more will its ancient halls resound with call of the "Hyena" or the boisterous shout of Prep.

Its lines were not those of a Pantheon nor did its materials vie with Pærean marble in beauty, but who can not see beauty in his mother, his Alma Mater? And what does one remember more lovingly than those walls, which for many short and happy days, have been his home—his whilom roof tree?

But they say that every cloud has a silver lining. Let it prove true in this case. Like the Phoenix, may we see arise from the flame, a grander, nobler being than the first, a dormitory worthy of Millsaps, because of the glory of her past, the honor of her present and the prospects of her future.

Despite the burning of its home, the work of the Preparatory Department has not been affected. With the loss of only a single day the students have accustomed themselves to the changed conditions and are going ahead with their work. Comfortable quarters have been provided for most of them in the shacks with Mrs. Joyce, the matron, to supervise, while others

BASE BALL OUTLOOK.Practice Will Begin Next Week.
Coach Peaster Will Have Task of Rounding Material Into a Winning Team.

Manager Boswell has practically completed the base ball schedule and will have it ready for publication at an early date. He is arranging a very attractive schedule with a number of good games at home and an excellent trip.

If the weather permits, practice will begin next Wednesday, under direction of Coach Peaster, and from then on till June, the crack of ball and bat will prove an irresistible magnet that will draw the players and students toward Millsaps field every afternoon.

Millsaps is to be congratulated on securing the services of Coach

Peaster. He is a player of national prominence himself and not only knows baseball from A to Z, but knows how to instill it into an amateur. Prof. Burton was very fortunate in securing him and it was only due to his nerve in promising a good big sum that we were enabled to get Peaster. It behooves the members of the student body then to lend their financial support towards defraying the expenses incurred during the season.

Nothing definite can be said yet concerning the players who will constitute the team. A number of veterans are back and there is some promising new material that bids fair to make the old men hustle for a berth on the team.

A complete schedule of games, both at home and abroad, will be published within the near future.

were playing the ball before they gave out, they were in the lead during the entire first half. In the second half, though, A. & M. piled them up so fast that, as a result, the game ended with a handsome majority of points in their favor.

But that last game! Boys, you ought to have seen it. Our boys played all over and all around the farmers, and they did it fast, too. Kirkland threw five goals in the first half. Every man on the team starred. They made the oldest A. & M. veteran look like a youngster. If you had seen the game, you would never entertain a doubt but that Millsaps will mop up with Mississippi College when she meets her. The result was never in doubt. At the end of the first half the comments heard by the Purple and White reporter were to the effect that strength was no equal for brains and system, that there was no hope for the A. & M. boys against the team work of the Millsapsers.

If the A. & M. fellows are not trained in basket ball they are well versed in the art of entertaining. They surely did make the Jackson bunch have a good time. Prof. Burton—well, everything agreed not to tell tales out of school.

The line up for the first game was as follows:

ON TO JUNE.

Let's Redeem Ourselves.

Exams, carrying joy and sorrow in their wake, have come and gone. The grades—that is, those above fifty, have been posted—and each man has given a shriek of delight to see opposite his name a pass or the possibility of a special, while perchance, others who have been denied the pleasure of “honorable mention” on the bulletin board, have slunk away in solitude to cuss their “luck.”

Indeed these have been the “times that try men’s souls.” Boning and cramming has been the order of the day. Those who have been faithful during the session and have continued their vigilance during the exam period have made good grades. Some of those who have waited until exams to burn the midnight oil have managed to spot the Professor and cram enough to get by, while others who have been less diligent, have failed to get the aforesaid honorable mention and must listen to the seductive noise of the Professor as he tells them to try again.

Regardless of whether exams are irksome or delightful, the fact remains that they serve a good purpose. They are not so valuable as a test of knowledge as they are a test of the students ability to organize the mass of knowledge which he has gone over into a coherent whole that he may use. Again they serve to show us exactly where we stand.

Those dreams of boning up for exam and making up work that should have been carefully prepared earlier in the session may or may not have come true. That depends on the individual. No one will deny though, that if he had kept up with his work during the session his grades would have been much better.

Exams serve to separate the faithful from the unfaithful, the industrious from the lazy, the plodder from the loafer, and divide the college into those who are here with a determined purpose of accomplishing something and those who purposelessly and aimlessly squander their time and worship at the shrine of indolence and idleness.

If a self-examination in the mellow light of the aftermath of the exam period points you out as one of the latter class, now is the time to resolve to regain your lost reputation as a student and resolve to redeem yourself in June. Make, keep and execute this one little resolution and we feel confident that at the end of the session when your report goes home adorned with ones and twos instead of fours, you not only will be a happy man yourself but your report will gladden the hearts of your father and mother who send you here, believing that you are the brightest boy in the world. Think it over.

THE BOBASHELA.

There is nothing that deserves more hearty support from the student body than the Bobashela. It is the only thing so far as the writer knows that purports to keep a permanent public record of the great occurrences at Millsaps. The Bobashela represents the life of the students.

It is the ambition of the staff this year, to get out the very best Annual that has ever been produced at Millsaps. There is no reason why it should not do this. The only thing it needs is the support of the fellows. It needs the money. But the staff does not ask something for nothing. When a member of the business management asks you for twenty-five or fifty cents, he is not asking that you give it. You owe it for a picture that is going to be printed in the Annual, and it costs to print it just what you are asked to pay. So, when you are asked to pay it, don't try to get out of paying. If you have it in your pocket, pull it out and pay it. If you haven't, don't wait to be dunned again, but hunt the business manager up when you get it. By following this method you will relieve the staff of an immense amount of unnecessary work and will enable it to give you a better Annual—give you more for your money.

The staff expects to get out the Annual several weeks earlier this session than has been the custom. Anything that you can do toward helping it in this determination will be much appreciated.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING ABOUT IT?

For several weeks past, due to exams and other interruptions, the Y. M. C. A. and literary societies have failed to meet. Of course when it is impossible to hold a meeting of these important organizations it can not be helped but now that these interruptions are over there is nothing to prevent their work going on in the usual regular order. Not a single man should get it into his head that because he has done without these meetings for a few weeks, that he can cast them aside altogether. On the other hand, he should enter into the work with greater zeal and energy, determined to make up for what time he has lost.

Nothing that a man learns during his college career is of greater importance than what he learns at the Y. M. C. A. and the literary societies. They give a man a polish and tone that he can get no where else. They give him the power of forgetting himself and of speaking to a crowd or of meeting his fellow man face to face without timidity. We do not believe that we could say too much in their favor. Investigate the college career of the prominent men of today and we feel sure that you will find that nine tenths of them got the foundation of their training in the literary societies and Y. M. C. A. while they were in college. So too, the leading men in college are largely judged by the active part they take in these organizations. Let us urge you then, if you have been neglecting these matters, do so no longer.

THAT DORMITORY PROPOSITION.

Of all the plans which are being formulated and discussed concerning the repairing of the prep dormitory and the erection of a college dormitory, the one that appeals to us as the most practical and feasible is that one whereby the prep school would be given a new building over on the hill near the observatory, the present dormitory turned into the Administration building of the college facing North State street and the present main building converted into a dormitory for the college students.

This arrangement would be an ideal one for many reasons. In the first place it would furnish the preparatory school with a home of up-to-date equipment and design separated entirely from the college. Next, it is but natural that the main building should face the principal street which passes near it. This would not only make it much more conveniently located with reference to the car line but would give it a much better appearance to the general public as they pass by.

In the next place, if the present administration building could be converted into an ideal dormitory, the location would be all that one could want. It commands not only one of the highest and most beautiful points on the campus, but would be at practically the exact center of the other college buildings—that is, midway between the proposed main building and the other college buildings.

It seems to us that if there is ever to be any move made for securing a dormitory, now is the time. We believe that the fire has presented the opportunity to us and that if the above or a better plan is put into execution, it will mean a turning point towards a greater Millsaps.

MRS. WATKINS ENTERTAINS.Members of the Faculty and Friends Enjoy Hospitality of the President's Home.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 23, Mrs. A. F. Watkins delightfully entertained a few members of the faculty, with their young lady friends.

Forty-two was played, after which each guest was bidden to write a poem to his partner. Many literary gems were produced, but these young people were artists as well as poets, for each one, after writing an ode to his partner also drew a picture illustrating his literary production.

Elaborate refreshments were served. A delicious salad course first, after which cream and cake was enjoyed.

Those who enjoyed Mrs. Watkins' delightful evening, were: Misses Ricketts, Butterfield, Park and Miss Eloise Watkins, Profs. Burton, Noble, Lin and Dr. Kern.

DR. AND MRS. SWARTZ ENTERTAIN AT DINNER.One of Most Delightful Events of Social Season.

On Friday evening, Jan. 24, Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Swartz entertained at an elaborate dinner. Those who have attended any of Mrs. Swartz's social functions know the delightful manner in which she entertains and the enjoyment of her guests is assured.

Those present on Friday evening, were: Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Patton, Prof. J. Reese Lin and Miss Janie Linfield.

PREP SCHOOL PLAY.Prof. Noble Organizing Company to Give Shakesperian Play.

Prof. Noble, ever active to the needs and advancement of the preparatory department, is now busily engaged working up what promises to be one of the most interesting events of the year. It consists in the presentation by the preparatory students of the well known play "As You Like It." He claims to have found a natural stage in a beautiful grove on the east side of State Street, which will afford an ideal place for the presentation of the play after the fashion of the Coburn players.

He is making arrangements for securing a beautiful array of appropriate costumes and nothing will be left undone that will make for the success of the play.

The receipts from the play will be turned over to the prep. athletic association.

The scheme deserves the most hearty support of both preps and college boys. There is no reason why it should not be a great success, both from a financial and from a literary standpoint. The cause for which it is gotten up is a most commendable one, and no doubt there is plenty of talent in school to stage a play, the excellence of whose work would deserve recognition.

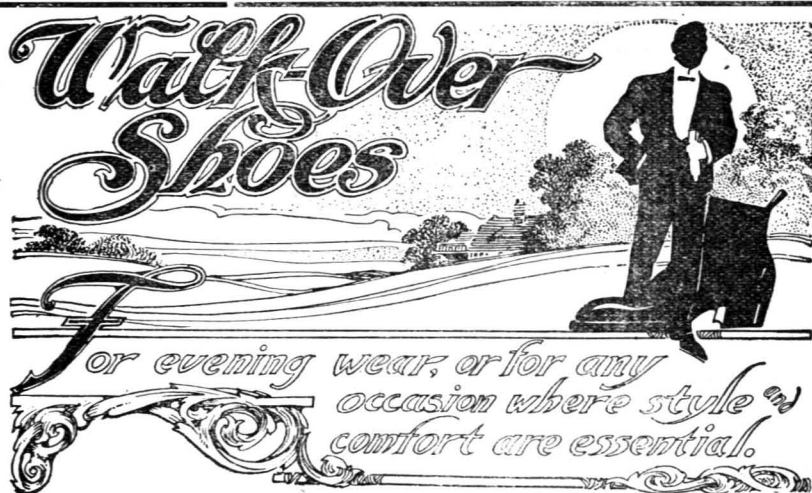

In many schools, the college play is counted one of the most interesting events of the college year and does much to create enthusiasm and college spirit.

BOBASHELA PROGRESSES.Material Almost Ready for the Publishers.

The students of the college will doubtless be glad to know that the Annual staff has practically completed its work. In fact Chief Scott says that all the literary dope is in hand and ready to be placed in the dummies and sent off for publication. Never before in the history of the publication has the work been carried on under better auspices. Every member of the staff has responded to his calls to duty and the results of his labors speak for themselves. The Annual is expected to excel all former editions and Scott and his staff are to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which they have handled the literary end of the publication.

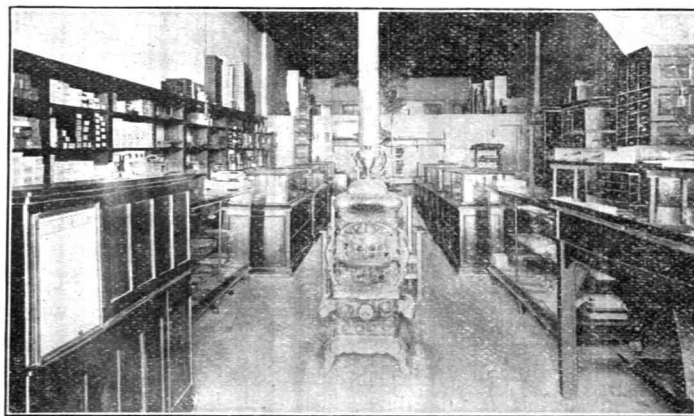

Weems and his corps of assistants have been busy rounding up the advertisers and the boys and report good progress in both.

Some member of the Sophomore English class was about two hundred years behind time when he said that Sir Walter Raleigh wrote "The Life of Admiral Nelson." O, well, you can't expect them all to keep up with the times, especially on exams.

We regret very much to lose Joe Spinks, one of our most promising preps.

John Crisler, who is back at Vicksburg this year, made a visit to Jackson last week.

R. W. Jones spent the weekend with home people at Tougaloo, Miss., U. S. A.

C. Bullock spent Friday and Saturday with home people at Owl Bend, Miss.

Miss Myrtle Johnson and Miss Edith McClure visited friends on the campus last week.

Prof. H. C. Robinson, former principal of the Daisy-Vestry High School, and at present a student of Mississippi College, visited relatives on the campus Tuesday.

Boys, what has become of that college orchestra that promised so well the first of the year? Let's have some more music!

Jack Jackson, (upon seeing a wind mill for the first time): "Gee! those people have certainly got their electric fan up high."

Rev. C. J. Houndshell, traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spent a few days of last week here in the interest of the Association.

Why did Spinks throw his bowl and pitcher out of the third story window and carry his pillow tenderly in his arms, the night of the fire?

Marshal "Son" Quin, of the city has entered school and will be found with the boys on the campus for the rest of the session.

Dr. Kern says his examination grades in Fresh. English, looks like a score board during a close game of ball with a heap of strike-outs.

H. H. Boswell spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks at Kosciusko. He returned with the basket ball team Monday afternoon.

Prof. E. Y. Burton chaperoned Kirkland, Cook and Scott over to Columbus Sunday, where they had the pleasure of reviewing the I. I. & C. girls.

Jack Gaddis spent Sunday with Boswell at his home in Kosciusko, and was picked up by the rest of the fellows as they came back through that point from Starkville.

C. W. Crisler has accepted a position with the Jackson Light and Traction Company. While we regret very much to lose "Cris," we feel that he will make this firm an excellent man.

Members of the basket ball team report that they saw Marvin Geiger while at Starkville. Geiger is a graduate of Millsaps. He is one of the State Chemists. He is making a state-wide reputation and his skill testifies to the efficiency of Dr. Sullivan's department here.

Frank Moulan

THE most enjoyable smoke is a pipe. But many men refuse this method because they have had unhappy experiences with pipe tobaccos.

Likely you have paid 35 cents to 50 cents for a tin of fancy "mixture", and it burned your mouth or throat, or was unpleasantly strong.

Too bad—but you got the wrong tobacco. The hundreds of thousands of men who have tried

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

have found the answer to their smoke problems. Tuxedo is the mildest tobacco made. It cannot bite the tongue or dry the throat.

And it's economical. There are 40 pipefuls in a ten-cent tin. You can't get any better tobacco because nothing better grows than the mellow, perfectly aged Burley leaf used in Tuxedo.

If you try Tuxedo for a month and cut out other smokes, you will not only have had the best month of smoking you ever had in your life, but you will have made a mighty big saving in your pocket-money!

LAW NOTES.

It is with great regret that we announce the continued illness of our esteemed instructor, Judge William R. Harper. During his illness the class is being conducted by the Hon. R. B. Ricketts.

Mr. James G. Long, of Tupelo, is the latest addition to our class. We welcome him among us.

Who swiped Judge Whitfield's "John B.?" Since the preceding sentence was written it has been discovered that it was not a theft, but it was only borrowed temporarily by Bro. Hardy to be worn at the trial of some cases. We trust that it brought the said brother good luck and that the Judge will soon be in possession of his lid.

At the last meeting of the Moot Court a most interesting session was held. The case in action was on a contract between the Holiday Manufacturing Company and John Lawson. The case was hard-fought throughout but was finally decided in favor of plaintiff, the Manufacturing Co. The plaintiff was represented by Messrs. Bailey and Logue, while the defendant, Mr. Lawson, was represented by Messrs. Adam, Green and J. E. Johnson.

One of the most notable events of the session of 1912-13, was the lecture of Judge Richard F. Reed, of the Mississippi Supreme Court, to the Law class in the Supreme Court room on Thursday, January the twenty-fourth. Judge Reed took as his subject, "Early History of Mississippi Jurisprudence," and for more than an hour delighted his hearers with the thrilling story of our great State's early years. No man can speak with more authority on this subject than Judge Reed. He has written a book on this period and the painstaking study given to the accumulation of data has made him complete master of the subject.

We extend sincere congratulations to our young friends, Waugh, Green and Logue, upon their admission to the bar. May their careers be long and full of

SIGMA UPSILON.

Literary Fraternity Grows in Size and Distinction — Interesting Short Story Contest Inaugurated.

The progress which the Sigma Upsilon Literary fraternity has made during the past few years, under the leadership of Dr. Kern, has been one of the most noticeable things in fraternal circles. In addition to the chapter that was recently established at the University of Texas, the advisability of granting charters to literary clubs at Knox College—George Fitch's original Siwash college,—Trinity and University of South Carolina, is being considered by the fraternity council. The distinction which this fraternity has come to enjoy and the uplifting influence which it exerts over the literary standard of a school indicate that it is an organization which, you might say, fills a long felt want. Its purpose is "To promote and foster the literary spirit among the colleges," and to this end it devises ways and means of arousing interest and enthusiasm in literary work. One of the most interesting of these projects is a short story contest formulated at the last convention. Although the scheme is hardly a month old it has already met with a hearty response, and the Millsaps chapter alone has prepared two stories with which to compete and, the Purple and White predicts, win the prize. The rules of the contest follow:

1. Each chapter shall be allowed to invite a college literary club not affiliated with Sigma Upsilon to enter the contest.
 2. No club shall be allowed to submit more than two manuscripts, and no club of Sigma Upsilon whose dues for the current year are unpaid shall be allowed to enter the contest.
 3. Each contestant shall be at the time of the contest an active member of the club which he represents.
 4. The contestants shall send to the Secretary of Sigma Upsilon three typewritten copies of their manuscript before April 1st. Those desiring the return of their manuscripts should enclose the necessary postage.
 5. The manuscripts shall be graded on the basis of 100 by a

We regret very much to lose the Rev. G. L. Lauderdale from our ranks. "Giles," as he is familiarly known, has taken an appointment at Farmerville, La., and will be chief "zorter" of his district.

Rev. A. F. Smith, of the First Methodist Church, this city, conducted chapel exercises Friday morning and spoke some encouraging words to the boys just before they entered examinations.

Dr. D. G. Davidson came over from Clinton Tuesday afternoon to attend the monthly meeting of the Kit-Kat Club Tuesday night. Dr. Davidson is well remembered by the older fellows as the Professor of Modern Languages at Millsaps a few years past. He now holds the Chair of Modern Languages at Mississippi College. We hope he will see fit to pay us another visit soon.

There was "weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth," at the shacks last Saturday morning when it became known that two of the best men, in the personages of Messrs. Rucker and Patterson, were leaving those ancient places of abode. We miss them greatly, but it would be selfish in us to weep over the loss of them. May they go on their way rejoicing and may all be peace and quietness around them wherever they abide!

TRACK WORK.

Training Begins, Good Results Expected.

Applicants for the track team are beginning to make their appearance on the athletic field every afternoon that the weather permits. Although the team is in the embryonic state now and nothing definite can, at this time, be said concerning the personnel of the team and the records which they expect to make, the determined spirit which leads some of our veteran track men to begin practice at this early date would indicate that Manager Harmon will have a team this year that will be heard from at the state meet.

FRATERNITIES INITIATE.

Freshmen Pass Through Trying Ordeal.

Young lady, meeting a certain Millsaps freshman at Sunday school: "What's the matter, Jim, you look all cut up over something?" The said freshman swells out chest so that the beautiful jewel pin reposing there may be the more easily seen. "Yes, that bunch did run me thru a gin last night." Which was an exaggeration, they didn't run him thru a gin at all. They merely ran him thru a sage brush into a barb wire fence and over a telephone post. As an explanation of the above it might be well to add that Saturday night, Feb. 1st, the fraternities at Millsaps held their regular initiation. Sunday morning twenty-three freshmen went to church and Sunday evening twenty-three freshmen went to see their best girls. The reason for this outpouring is obvious.

On account of the regulation that no fraternity can initiate freshmen until they have passed their first examination, Feb. 1st was the day set for this momentous occasion. All day Saturday exceedingly nervous young men could be seen about the campus, and one out that way that night might have seen groups of mournful looking figures led as if to their execution.

The initiations went off without a hitch and the following went with them:

Kappa Alpha: McClure, Moore, W. B., Backstrum, Perry, Capps, Hilzim and Watkins.

Kappa Sigma: McNeil, McNeil, Tatum, Tatum, Kirkpatrick, Carraway, Johnson, H. G., McLaurin, Frazier, Hendricks, Henry and Moore, R. G.

Pi Kappa Alpha: McLain, W. C., Johnson, M., Brown and Page.

Quite a bunch of fellows went over to see the basket ball games at Mississippi College last week.

Millsaps Divides Honors With Mississippi College

TWO GAMES TO BE PLAYED HERE SEVENTEENTH AND EIGHTEENTH—MILLSAPS MUST WIN BOTH.

In a very snappy and exciting game Millsaps was defeated by Mississippi College by a score of 24 to 17. Millsaps, having played almost all together on an indoor court, was handicapped by having to play on an outdoor court. The game was very exciting, though, and Millsaps defeat was due largely to the star playing of Ballenger and Wood. The score was almost tie, up until the last two or three minutes of play, when Mississippi, by a succession of rapid plays, piled the score up beyond the reach of Millsaps.

The story of the second game was told in a very different way. Revenge was indeed sweet. Millsaps was so confident of Mississippi's scalp, and so eager were they to get at the Mississippians that, fearing the train would be late, they drove through the country in order to be sure to be there on time. The game was called at the usual time and it was some time before either side was able to score. Both teams were in the very best of form, and it could easily be seen that a fierce struggle was on. Frasier pitched the first goal for Millsaps, and he was immediately followed by Harmon. With the score 4 to 0 the Mississippians realized that they had to play like they never had played before. It was not only the team that realized their situation but also the Umpire, who was a Mississippi College man, for during the first half he called about ten fouls on Millsaps while Millsaps did not get over three. The first half ended with the score 11 to 8 in favor of Mississippi, but any fair-minded person could clearly see that Millsaps had played much the better game.

In the second half Millsaps proved her superiority. The slight lead was soon overcome and the game was never again in doubt. Every man on the team played star ball and deserves the highest credit possible. The real feature of the game was a goal pitched by Bob Harmon. He pitched it from a very difficult position and at the same time being crowded by a fast player. Prof. Burton deserves credit for the way he stands by the team. Once during the game the ball was out and should have been thrown in by a Millsaps man but a Mississippi man threw it in and resulted in a goal for Mississippi. Prof. Burton interfered and the points were not counted. The final score was: 24 to 18 in favor of Millsaps.

BOSWELL CHOSEN TO REPRESENT THE COLLEGE IN M. I. O. A.

Wroten Selected for the Crystal Springs Chautauqua—Crocket, Alternate.

On last Tuesday afternoon the faculty in committee of the whole, making their decision on speeches delivered before them, selected H. H. Boswell to represent Millsaps in the M. I. O. A. This is the biggest honor that the faculty can confer upon any man during his stay at the college. That the honor has been well disposed no one will deny. In the matter of grace and ease on the stage Boswell exceeds anyone of whom the writer has any knowledge. In eloquence, he is unsurpassed. In writing a speech he is equal to any. He demonstrated his ability as an orator by gaining an unanimous decision of the judges at Crystal Springs last summer. Boswell is a leader in the student body. They have faith in his ability to win, and they are with him to the finish at the contest. No one doubts but that he will follow his example of last summer and win fresh glory for himself and his college this spring.

In the selection of Wroten to represent the college at Crystal Springs this summer, the faculty made a wise choice. Indeed, it is considered a foregone conclusion that he will win. He is a graceful, eloquent and forceful speaker. He has won every medal that he has spoken for since he came to Millsaps, having won both the freshman and sophomore medals. He will have the united support of the students, for he is one of the most popular men in school. In our opinion, it will be almost impossible for our sister colleges to produce speakers who will defeat Wroten and Boswell.

In Crocket as alternate, the faculty chose the rising star of Millsaps oratory. We are confi-

Y. M. C. A.

President Watkins Speaks to Association.

The Y. M. C. A. met again on Friday night to resume its regular meetings, it being the custom to dispense with these meetings during examinations. There were other things to keep the student body away on this occasion, nevertheless, quite a number of faithful members met in the Association hall at the time for meeting.

Mr. Wroten conducted the opening exercises and in presenting Dr. Watkins, made the statement that the members of the Y. M. C. A. are proud of the fact that we have a college president who not only comes to its meetings but is willing to speak to us on these subjects of so vital importance to the student life. The Association should be and is deeply indebted to Dr. Watkins for his presence and helpful words from time to time.

President Watkins read from the thirteenth chapter of Second Corinthians and took as a basis of his remarks the following words: "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves." In connection with this the speaker said that it contained two things: First, a test as to whether or not Christ is in the heart and life of a man and, second, an exhortation to a man to try himself and see whether Christ is in him. Just here it seems that the Corinthians must have been affected by the belief that Paul was not a true apostle, inasmuch as he was not one of the original number. But Paul comes back with a two-fold argument: First, he shows how that if the Corinthians are following him and are walking in the true faith he, the medium through whom that faith has come must also be in the true faith. Then he presents to them the fact from which they cannot escape, namely, that he has received his commission from Christ himself, that he has talked with the Saviour of the world and from Him received the command to go and teach all nations of the truth of Christ.

The command to know ourselves comes most often, so the speaker said, to those who are inclined to know every one but themselves, to those who are inclined to criticise other people rather than examine themselves. However, it is very difficult for a person to have an unbiased opinion concerning himself. Here the speaker made the distinction between respect of oneself and selfesteem. A man must have selfrespect in order that he may carry himself above those things which the world even would not condemn. It is also important that a man know also the things about him. Every man is good for something in the world. It has been so arranged that there is something each person can do and do well. But it not always that a man falls into the sphere for which he is fitted, simply because he allows his course to be chosen for him or chooses it without consideration of the thing he is capable of doing.

In conclusion, Dr. Watkins discussed the tests by which it is decided in regard to spiritual life. First, is the test of the attitude toward Christ, whether we think of Him with joy or not; whether our leisure thoughts, the real test of a man's nature, are high and holy. And, again we must measure our lives by the word of God as applied by the Holy Spirit in answer to prayer. It makes no difference what we think but what God says that counts in the final reckoning of our lives.

MRS. SWARTZ ENTERTAINS.

Jolly Crowd Participates in Game of Rook.

On last Wednesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Swartz again opened their attractive home to the young people who are always so glad to come at their invitation.

Hotly contested games of Rook made the evening pass quickly and the young people who never realize the passing of delightful hours could not believe that it was time to bid their charming host and hostess goodbye. Most delicious refreshments consisting of a salad course followed by ice cream and cake was served.

Those who enjoyed the gracious hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Swartz were: Misses Watkins, Smith and Linfield. Messrs: Scott, Boswell and Broomfield.

The way of the transgressor is well written up.

THE BASEBALL OUTLOOK.

Baseball practice begins within the near future, and it begins with the brightest prospects under which it has begun since the privilege of playing inter-collegiate baseball was granted Millsaps. With Mr. Harry Peaster Coaching the team our baseball fans are expecting wonders. And there is no reason why great things should not be attained. Peaster knows the game both theoretically and practically. He has played it himself for sometime and with great success. He has himself been under some of the best baseball coaches in the South. There is no doubt that he can produce the results if he has the material.

And that brings up the other question: What of the material? It seems probable that there will be no lack of men to work with. Nine of last year's men are back, including the subs. We don't know how many new men there are who are going to try out, but we know of nine who are prominently mentioned as men who will make the team if the old men don't watch out. There are, no doubt, more than this number who have an idea that they would like the honor and who are going to fight for a place on the team. Of the old men two were last year's star pitchers. Of the new men two have some reputation as twirlers. No place on the team will go uncontested. Surely a good man will be found for every position.

In view of the above considerations, there can be no doubt that Millsaps will produce the best team this year that it has ever gotten out. No one need be surprised if she plays for the championship at the contest. And right now it may not be amiss to say a few words to the fellows in regard to supporting the team. It will need support financially and otherwise. It will need you out at the practice games. It will need to hear you say that it is going to win. Don't knock it. Leave all that for the other fellow to do. The fellows who are trying for the team will need your encouragement when they become disheartened over their prospects of making the team.

An excellent schedule, both at home and abroad, has been arranged and your help is necessary to make the season a success.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

The Purple and White publishes for the first time, we believe, a distinction list, or honor roll, for the first half year's work. It has been the custom, heretofore, to publish at commencement a list of all students who have made an average of ninety or better for the year. We are publishing a list at this time with the hope that it may serve to encourage those whose name does not appear on the list, to strive to merit a place on it at the end of the year and for those whose name does appear on it in some studies, to strive to increase this number.

We admit that this is no easy thing to do. With the system of grading that is in vogue at Millsaps, the making of an average grade of ninety for the year requires that a man shall ever be on the alert—that he shall prepare each lesson each day and prepare them in a thorough, painstaking manner. Yes, it is hard to make excellent grades, but then the harder the task the more honor there is in accomplishing it, and the greater the obstacles to be overcome the greater the benefit to be derived from surmounting them.

Then, too, after all, the primary thing for which we are here is the search of knowledge, and that means study—of course we would not belittle the benefits to be derived from the different phases of college life, such as athletics, the Y. M. C. A., the literary societies, etc. We most heartily endorse them all and consider that a man is not just to himself nor to his school if he doesn't take an active part in some or all of them, but we would not have him carry them to such an excess that he neglect his classes and forget that to excel in his class work is an honor worth striving for.

Now is the time to resolve to have your name on the distinction list in the commencement courier next June. You can do it, if you will.

CONTESTS.

Two events of great importance to the undergraduates will be held within the next two weeks—that is the preliminary contests for the Sophomore and Freshman medals which occur next Tuesday and Tuesday week, respectively.

The importance of these contests should be realized by every one. Practically every man in both classes should take part in these preliminary contests. Whether he wins a place in the final contest or not he will have been benefited by the effort and his loss will serve to show him that he is the man who most needs to participate in such events and that he should determine to take advantage of the opportunities he has at Millsaps and develop his talent along this line.

The advantages to be derived from public speaking are too numerous to mention. Speaking gives a man the power of collecting his thoughts and expressing the facts which he has acquired. It gives him a poise and confidence that will be of inestimable value to him in after life, no matter what his profession may be.

We urge the members of the lower classes to take part in these contests. Go into them with a determination to win and work to this end, then whether victory or defeat falls to you as your portion, you will not only have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done your best, but will have the praise and commendation of your friends.

Then, too, you will have done your part towards making some other fellow work harder for his place and will in this way do your part towards helping uphold the prestige and standard which Millsaps has set in oratory.

PRES. HULL'S ADDRESS

Before the Mississippi Teachers Association.

Copies of the address of Dr. D. C. Hull, ex-president of Millsaps College and at present superintendent of the Meridian schools, before the Mississippi Teachers Association, have recently been distributed on the campus. It can be said without fear of contradiction, that this is one of the greatest speeches ever delivered before that body. Certainly it has attracted more widespread attention than any other.

Dr. Hull treats his subject, "Our Educational Problem," with his characteristic forcefulness. As a solution of the problems he recommends, in the first place, the creation of an educational board consisting of nine members to be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The hardest part of our problem, in Dr. Hull's opinion, is to get the control of our State colleges and the University and the public schools out of the control of politicians.

Another thing of great importance advocated by Dr. Hull, is better financial support. With more finances will come better teachers, longer terms, and a more enlightened community. With a great flood of emigrants fixing to swoop down upon us, Mississippians must be well educated, must be prepared to save our institutions from probable downfall. As a means to this end more money must be spent on public schools. College bred men must be the teachers. The four months term must be done away with and the not less than six months term put in its place. Rural schools must have attention and be developed.

Dr. Hull ended his address with an appeal for superannuated teachers. He thinks that men and women who have given their lives to the cause of education should be pensioned when they are no longer able to make a living. Dr. Hull's views are all

KAPPA SIGMAS ENTERTAIN.

Delightful Informal Chafing-dish Party Enjoyed by Frat Men and Friends.

On Friday evening, Jan. 31, the Kappa Sigma fraternity once once more threw open the doors of its handsome palatial home, Galloway Hall, to welcome their friends to a delightfully informal chafing dish party.

This is the first entertainment that the Kappa Sigma's have given since their consolidation with the Phi Deltas and the friends of all the boys were anxious to avail themselves of an invitation, knowing that the combined talent of these two fraternities would make their social functions even more delightful.

The elegant reception suite was an attractive place when filled with the lovely bevy of girls whom the Kappa Sigmas had invited to "make merry" with them Friday night. Delicious welsh rarebit and candy were soon made by these dainty cooks. These concoctions were much enjoyed, not only because they were delicious, but because of the fun and merriment stirred in while cooking. Those who enjoyed the delightful hospitality of the Kappa Sigmas were as follows: Misses Randal, Taylor, Edmonds, Atkinson, McGehee, Evans, Saunders, Gillerlyn, Cockrill, Curry, Atkinson, Galloway, Shurlds, Buck, Lowther, Steen, Mayers, Magruder, Wilkerson, Coffey, Moseley, Eastling, Cavett. Messrs. Ward, Carraway, Gathings, Brewer, McNeil, McNeil, Russell, Galloway, Hendricks, Thompson, Johnson, Harris, Montgomery, A. A. Burton and Prof and Mrs. G. L. Harrell.

Quite a number of the students went over to Clinton Friday and Saturday evenings to witness the basket ball games between Millsaps and Mississippi colleges. All report a delightful time.

Chalmers Potter came down from University to the K. A. initiation last week.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

Judge Williams Hears Interesting Case.

A highly interesting case was brought up before the Moot court last Monday night. It happened that the defendant had rented a horse from a Clinton livery stable and driving him too hard coming into Jackson, the horse dropped dead for which cause the plaintiff sued for the value of the horse.

The points were hotly contested on both sides—each attorney fighting every inch of ground. Talbot, Naison and Dabney were the lawyers for the plaintiffs while Butler and Dr. Carter constituted the defense. The jury rendered the verdict in favor of the defendant.

The court has been meeting in the office of G. Edward Williams, one of Jackson's most prominent attorneys. Williams has been presiding over the court in an able and impartial manner. He has shown the members of the law class many courtesies for which they are all grateful.

Judge Whitfield was called to Hattiesburg today on legal business.

C. E. Johnson, a graduate of the law and academic department, was in the city recently. He is associated with a good firm at Union now.

S. I. Osborne, a rising lawyer of Greenwood, mingled with old Millsaps friends the first few days of the week.

J. K. Vardaman, Jr., is taking some special work under Prof. Burton with the view of trying entrance examination to Annapolis Naval Academy.

Messrs. Parks and Pate, of Water Valley, have entered school for the second term and will share our miseries with us until "the warm days of June."

Prof. Harrell: "What do you say about that, Jackson?"

Jackson: "I don't know exactly what to say, Professor, I haven't read the lesson."

The Mississippi College boys said W. W. Moore was "dead with old age" if you judged from his mouth, for it has been a long time since he shed his colt teeth.

"Red" Adams, former student of Millsaps and for the last four years the star of the State University foot ball team, was a visitor on the Campus Friday of last week.

Mr. Williams Myers Colmer came up from D'Lo last Saturday to be present at the initiation of the Pi Kappa Alpha pledges. "Bill" says there is nothing like having nerve when you are teaching.

Mr. Stanley, of the Tulane University, New Orleans, was here Saturday to see Prof. J. M. Burton in regard to the United Tennis Association which will be held in this city the first week in March.

We regret very much to lose Miss Louise Taylor, one of our popular co-eds, who left Monday of last week for Brookhaven, where she will enter Whitworth College for the remainder of the session.

We regret very much to lose "Tommy" Burns, who has been forced to leave school on account of his health. He left last Monday for Phoenix, Arizona, where he has accepted a position with an old and reliable firm of that city.

Mitchell Robertson of the city is one of the new students who has enrolled since Christmas. He is taking special work preparatory to taking the examination for entrance to U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Dr. Watkin's suggestion to lower your feet when you study may be all right for certain members of the student body, but we fail to see what advantage it would give to certain others whose "grey matter" lies in their pedal extremities.

Dr. Swartz filled the pulpit for Rev. F. H. McGee at Georgia Ridge last Sunday. Dr. Swartz says the people of that community are very enthusiastic over Millsaps' prospects for the future, and he is expecting a number of boys from there next year.

The preliminary contest for the Sophomore medal will be held next Tuesday afternoon and that for the freshman medal next Tuesday week. There should be twenty fellows in each.

Prof. Harrell hit the nail on the head in chapel the other morning when he said that now is the time to earnestly take up the work of the literary societies. Excellent programs have been prepared for tonight and no member of either society should be absent.

The College Glee Club which was to have given an entertainment in the college chapel last Tuesday night was delayed on account of the illness of one of the men and will make its appearance here Saturday night. This is reported to be one of the best lyceum entertainments that will be here this season and a great crowd is expected.

MARTIN SHERIDAN

Martin Sheridan, winner of the discus event at the Olympic Games of 1904, 1906 and 1908, and all-around athlete of note, says:

"Tuxedo is a strong card with me. I advise all athletes to stick to Tuxedo. It is the one tobacco that will help them, keep them in trim, prevent them from going 'stale'. Tuxedo leads—bar none."

Martin Sheridan

J. I. WENDELL

J. I. Wendell, who was second in the 120 meter high hurdles at the Olympic Games last summer, says:

"Tuxedo is my choice. I smoke it in preference to all other tobaccos, because it's a mild, cool smoke, and can't hurt my wind."

J. I. Wendell

THE history of Tuxedo tobacco is unique in many respects. The now famous "Tuxedo process"—by which all the bite and sting is removed from the best old Burley tobacco—was discovered by Dr. R. A. Patterson, a physician of Richmond, Virginia, the founder of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company.

Many of Dr. Patterson's friends, because their mouths and throats were so sensitive, were compelled to deny themselves the comfort and satisfaction of pipe smoking. Like all other men, the Doctor realized that complete smoke delight was possible only with a pipe. So he put his scientific mind to work on the problem.

He originated the now famous "Tuxedo process" of treating the mildest, sweetest, most thoroughly aged Burley tobacco—and the result was

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Tuxedo grew rapidly in public favor without advertising; without any push of any kind, its natural growth reached the stupendous total of fifty or sixty million packages a year. Not until the past few months has it been possible to keep up with the demand for Tuxedo. Now increased facilities make it possible for every man to smoke this best of tobaccos.

Famous Americans in every walk of life smoke and endorse Tuxedo. Our world-famous athletes—the men who triumphed for America at the Olympic Games in Stockholm—are among the thousands who declare that Tuxedo is not only extremely enjoyable, but beneficial.

Tuxedo has many imitators, but no successful one—because no one has yet discovered the "Tuxedo process" that makes Tuxedo the most enjoyable pipe-smoke in the world.

GASTON STROBINO

MATT McGRATH

Matt McGrath, who hurled the 16-lb hammer further than anyone else in the Olympics at Stockholm last summer, says:

DR. REED LECTURES.

Noted Leader of Laymen Entertains Millsaps Students With Lecture on China.

Dr. C. F. Reed, for seventeen years a missionary of the Methodist Church in China and the establisher of the mission work of that church in Korea, made a highly interesting and instructive talk on the mission work in China and the political conditions of the East, last Tuesday morning.

Dr. Reed is a very fluent and entertaining speaker and on account of his long residence in the mission fields is thoroughly conversant with conditions there and his talk was very much enjoyed by all those students who were fortunate as to hear him Tuesday morning. Quite a number of the students also heard Dr. Reed at Epworth Hall Wednesday evening on "The New Republic of China, Its Cause and Significance."

Dr. Reed is general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Southern Methodist Church, with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., and is making a tour of Mississippi for the purpose of arousing interest in the movement.

Prof. Harrell sustains the same relation to the Mississippi Conferences that Dr. Reed does to the Southern Methodist Church.

PRENTISS LITERARY SOCIETY.

The prep literary society is the only one that has held a meeting since examinations. They held their first meeting since the burning of the dormitory in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Friday night.

As this happened to be the regular time for the installation of new officers the debate was dispensed with and the officers-elect requested to come forward and take the oath of office. The following officers then assumed charge of the society for the next quarter: President, Wm. Willingham; J. A. Wooten, secretary; J. A. Davis, vice-president; G. W. Barrett, censor. After the installation of officers Keith Williams read an essay, and N. Golding and C. W. Alford delivered declamations entitled respectively, "The Uncrowned Queen," and "The Unknown Speaker."

Mississippi College will be over here soon for two games of basket ball. Let's don't let them get either one of them.

Don't miss the college Glee Club Saturday night. Its going to be great.

LAMAR SOCIETY.

The following program will be rendered in the Lamar Hall tonight:

Declaimer—Ridgeway.

Orator—C. C. Case.

Debate—Resolved, That Mississippi should have compulsory education.

Affirmative — Weems, Patterson, Lusk.

Negative—Magee, Brown, Holoman.

From the above one can see that the Lamar's have an unusually attractive program for this occasion and a large attendance is expected.

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.

The Galloways will hold their meeting at the regular hour in the Galloway Hall tonight and have issued the following program:

Declamation—Tatum, F. M.

Orator—Howe, D. W.

Debate—Resolved, That Mississippi should adopt the initiative and referendum.

Affirmative—Willingham, Bullock, Frazier.

Negative—Brown, O'Donnell, Wroten.

The Galloways have established a reputation for rendering good programs and the one tonight promises to be among the best.

Ward Seminary and Belmont College, both of Nashville, have combined, thus forming one of the strongest girls' colleges of the South.

From now on till the end of school will be busy times so if you have any back work or other outside work to do, now is the time to do it.

Ramsey Roberts has been quarantined in his home on account of his younger brother, Clay, having diphtheria. Here's hoping he may be with us again soon.

FLOWERS.

In Mississippi there are very few days in the year when we cannot have cut flowers, either wild or cultivated, or at least, pretty foliage. A plain glass vase of simple lines is always good taste. Some pickle or olive bottles have better lines than many of the ornate vases used. In the fall, the golden-rod, blackeyed Susans, asters, bright colored foliage, add brightness and beauty to the room. In the winter, the pine, magnolia, and other evergreens, are refreshing and fragrant. In the spring we have such a wealth of bloom to choose from that it is not necessary to enumerate them.

Do not crowd different kinds together. Arrange as far as possible according to the nature of the plant. Long stemmed flowers, such as golden rod, should be placed in tall vases, while short stemmed flowers, such as violets, show to best advantage in flat bowls.

Growing plants are good when properly cared for. It is better to have a few well conditioned plants than to have the room cluttered with tin cans and decrepit boxes containing sickly plants.

Choose only hardy plants, such as geraniums, cane plant, spingerea ferns, bulbs, etc., and give them the proper care. Newspapers placed beneath the plants and windows will help to protect them from cold. Large flat vessels of water placed near plants serve the same purpose; but it is well not to have more than two or three growing plants through the winter unless they have proper protection.

COLLEGE ORCHESTRA.

Interest Revived and Reorganization Will Take Place at an Early Date.

If there is any truth in the saying that silence is golden, then it is also true that our college orchestra is worth its weight in gold, for we have heard nothing from it for some time. This condition however is largely due to the adverse conditions under which the orchestra has been laboring. Examinations, initiations, the destruction of the dormitory, and other things have conspired to retard its progress, but now that these things are past we feel sure that activities will again commence and renewed interest will be taken in the orchestra of which we were so proud before Christmas.

Millsaps is certainly capable of producing an orchestra. We have the benefit of a splendid pianist, and in Mr. Logue we have an excellent leader, as well as a most accomplished violinist. There are other members of the orchestra who have shown remarkable talent, and if these, aided by the musicians in school who have not given any assistance up to this time, and aided by the hearty cooperation of the faculty, will once more enter into the work of making our orchestra a success, we have no doubt that we will soon be able to boast of one of the best college orchestras in Mississippi.

MILLSAPS WIN

Varsity Defeats Canton by Overwhelming Score—Kirkland Leads in Scoring—Gaddis and Cook Star on Defense.

The Millsaps boys "mopped" up with the basket ball team from Canton in the first game Monday night. The Canton boys were outclassed in every respect. The Millsaps boys not only outweighed them but played all around them when it came to team work. Both when playing on the offense and defense did the Millsaps boys show the results of better coaching and training.

One point that was especially noticeable was the fact that the home team did not make a single foul in the first half and only one during the whole game, while the fouls called on the visitors were numerous.

All the Millsaps players got into the game from the very beginning and had the "pep" all the way through. Kirkland was the star of the game, when it came to offensive playing, with Harmon a close second. Kirkland secured eight field goals and Harmon six. Gaddis and Cook both worked well on the defensive and prevented their opponents from getting many clear shots at their goals.

Frazier made good on three foul goals out of five tries.

The Millsaps boys were never in danger; keeping the ball where they wanted it practically all of the time and never allowing the visitors to get within striking distance of their goal.

For the visitors, Brenegan was the star—making most of the goals for them—shooting them from almost impossible angles.

The final score was 41 to 10, in favor of Millsaps.

The line up was as follows:

Canton.		Millsaps.
Melton, Core	C	Kirkland
Nickels, Evans	F	Harmon
Brenegan, Shackelford	F	Frazier
Slack	G	Gaddis
Core, Nickels	G	Cook

Umpire—Fletcher. Time of Halves—20 minutes. Field Goals—Frazier 4, Kirkland 8, Cook 1, Harmon 6, Brenegan 5.

SCRUBS PLAY SECOND.

Pile Up Score 14-0 in First Half—Canton Boys Tried to "Rough it Up" But Were Easily Defeated.

Coach Fletcher sent in his scrubs Tuesday night to tackle the Canton bunch in the first half of the second game, Gaddis and Cook being the only regulars retained. The Canton boys started in with a rush evidently with the intention of running over the local boys but somehow things got twisted and the visitors got the worst end of the "roughing it up" as the superior weight and training of the collegians told on most every count.

During the first half "Big Foot" Jones played star ball chunking three goals. N. Harmon and Henry also played excellent ball, Harmon getting two goals and Henry one. The scrubs showed that they too, can play basket ball and that all they want is a chance. Gaddis and Cook stayed right with their men all during the game (Continued on page 5)

CONTESTS GO TO ABERDEEN.

Aberdeen, famous throughout the State for her excellent people, her enterprise and progressiveness, won a notable victory over the other towns of the State when she succeeded in getting for herself the next meeting of the M. I. O. A. and M. I. T. A., to be held the second Friday in May.

The executive committee, composed of representatives from Millsaps, Mississippi College, A. & M. and the University, met at the Edwards House, in this city, on the night of Feb. 7th, and after considerable deliberation, unanimously selected Aberdeen as the place. Other towns entering the contest were Jackson, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Greenwood and Columbus.

That Aberdeen was very desirous of having the contest was made evident by the strength of the delegation of her prominent citizens which she sent to represent her. They are proud of their town and wanted people to know how progressive it is and the inducements offered were sufficient to win the decision in their favor.

Aberdeen is a progressive little city of about 5000 people and is centrally located to the University and A. & M. and is only about 150 miles from Millsaps and Mississippi College. It is also quite near Columbus and it is expected that a large delegation of I. I. & C. girls will attend.

The Monroe County Fair Association has a half mile track enclosing a base ball diamond. The base ball game and track meet will be held here. The place for holding the oratorical contest has yet to be selected, but it is stated that there are several suitable buildings to select from. Among them the new city hall and the Monroe County court house.

Millsaps is well satisfied with this selection and until May 9th you may expect to be met with the greeting, "Well, I suppose you will go to Aberdeen?"

The Authors Club.

The members of the Authors Club were delightfully entertained last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Evelyn Spickard. The subject discussed was the life and work of George W. Cable. This enthusiastic little band of young writers are much interested in the work they have undertaken and expect to make their new organization a success.

Paul Greenway left for home Saturday morning.

We regret to say that L. H. Gates will not be in school for the rest of the year, on account of his health. We hope, however, to have him back with us next year.

The Prep base ball team will start practice Monday if the weather permits. With the material which we now have on hand, we expect to get out a winning team.

LAW NOTES.

The class, and friends generally, are very much gratified over the news that Judge William R. Harper is so rapidly improving. It is hoped by his family that he will be able to return to Jackson within the next two weeks.

Mr. J. Andrew Blount was a visitor to his family at Collins during the last week-end.

Mr. Ragusa, after a few days spent delightfully at the Carnival in New Orleans, is back in the class.

Of course our good friend, Blount, is to be excused for getting his prayers mixed. The best of us sometimes get sleepy.

A very interesting case was before Judge Williams on last Wednesday night. Miss Sallie Honeysuckle was so unfortunate as to collide with a street car and after duly considering all her bruises and feelings otherwise hurt, concluded that the show was worth $5000.00. She was confirmed in this view by those chivalrous counsellors, Messrs. Currie, Blount and Russell, while Messrs. Thompson, Johnson and Smith grant that the show was good, etc., but that $5000.00 or, as for that matter, any part of five thousand is too much money to pay for the same. The case is being hard fought on both sides and no doubt but that justice will be the end.

Arrangements are being made whereby another eminent Jackson lawyer will lecture the class on some proposition of interest and importance. These lectures are very beneficial and we are very grateful for the spirit of generosity that prompts these distinguished gentlemen to give them.

The friends of Edward C. Brewer, who is in the law class at the University, will be glad to know that he is business manager of the year-book, "Ole Miss."

Several of our number have already determined upon places of location. A few will leave the State and contribute to the wealth and legal lore there, while most of them will try "Ole Miss" for a round at least, before going elsewhere.

GALLOWAYS CONVENE.

Interesting Debate — Cassibry Installed as Third Term President.

The Galloways held a very interesting session Friday night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The program included some of the best speakers of the society and the able manner in which each man responded to his duty showed that careful thought and preparation had been given to the subjects.

The first thing on the program was a declamation by Keister who delivered a declamation in a most commendable manner. Barrett, as orator, next came forward and gave the society a treat in the form of a well rendered oration.

The question for debate was, "Resolved, That the parcels post is beneficial to the United States." Kirkpatrick, Moore and Bullock brought forth many arguments showing why this is true; while Edward, Willingham and Silverstein argued so effectively for the negative that they carried the judges with them.

The installation of the third term officers was the next thing to occupy the attention of the society, when the following officers were installed: President, Cassibry; Vice-President, Broom; Secretary, Moore; Assistant Secretary, Keister.

Next came the impromptu debate which consisted of a very humorous discussion of the subject, "Resolved, That blue-eyed girls can love harder than brown-eyed girls." Keister was elected monthly orator.

Great and Enthusiastic Meeting Held Friday Night—A Renaissance in Society's Work—Scott Installed as President.

Promptly at 8:15 o'clock on last Friday evening the members of the Lamar Literary Society assembled in the large and spacious auditorium of the main building to hold their weekly exercises.

In the absence of the President, F. H. McGee, Vice-President W. E. Hobbs took the chair and presided over the meeting. The officers for the ensuing term were first installed, then the program

LITERARY SOCIETY WORK.

When they first come college, if asked if they wish to be or intend to be a nonentity during their college course, ninety-nine out of every hundred boys would reply emphatically in the negative. And they mean it. Nearly every one of them has visions of the future. They all intend to make their college career amount to something, to make it count for the most. One of the first questions that is really asked of the new boy is, "Are you going to join a literary society?" If he is at all doubtful, he is told that he does not stand much of a show at Millsaps unless he does. He is told how that every man who has ever attained prominence here was an ardent and energetic member of one of the literary societies; how that every Millsaps alumnus who now stands high in the affairs of the State was when he was here, a leader in society work; how that those who have come here and not taken any part in this work are now generally low salaried clerks, bank runners, habitual loafers, or something of the kind. Hearing this, and remembering his visions, he at once says that he will join. About forty per cent really do this.

Why is the percentage so small? There are various reasons. Undoubtedly part of the blame is to be attributed to the boys themselves, that is the boys who do not join. Some of them just keep putting it off, saying that they are going to join, but are not yet ready. Some want to learn the town first, and instead of beginning right away to go to the society hall, they use Friday night in doing the town, with the result that they form a habit that they never quit. While much of the blame is thus disposed of, certainly much of the blame is due to the old men whose duty it is to get these men into the societies. At first, of course, the old men urge the new ones to come in, but, after a little, they cease to mention it. Some of the old men who themselves do not belong to the societies, hoot the idea of a new one joining, and thus many an one is led astray.

The conditions at Millsaps this session in this matter are deplorable. Never before in the writers knowledge has there been so small a number of the new men to affiliate themselves with the societies. Never was there such poor work done in the societies. We do not know and it is not our purpose to find out what these new men are doing that they have not joined the societies, but we do know that they are not doing what they ought to. And it is also obvious that the old men are not doing their duty, else new men would be in the societies, and better society work would be going on.

The session is now just a little over half gone. The race has not been finished. Let us resolve to end it successfully. Let us get into this work ourselves and get as many of the new men who have not already come in as it is possible to get.

KAPPA ALPHAS ENTERTAIN.

Delightful Chafing Dish Party is Given.

On Friday evening, Feb. 6, the elegant reception parlors of the Kappa Alpha chapter house was the scene of much merriment and gayety, for on that night these young collegians entertained their friends at a delightful chafing dish party.

The young ladies concocted delicious refreshments on the chafing dishes and the punch bowl was a popular resort, while throughout the evening the talented young men of the fraternity rendered delightful music with the orchestra they have formed among their own number. This lovely courtesy extended by the K. A.'s will long linger and will remain a happy reminiscence in the minds of the guest who were fortunate enough to be invited to enjoy it. The young people were chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. Watkins.

Judge R. F. Reed Discusses "The Character of John the Baptist."

The devotional committee of the Y. M. C. A. were unusually fortunate in the selection of a speaker for the last meeting. Judge Richard Reed, formerly of Natchez, but now of this city as a member of the Supreme Court. Judge Reed is one of the most entertaining as well as forceful speakers in the State, and besides a man whose spotless character and sturdy Christian manliness stand unmarred above any political agitation. Contact with such a man cannot but be beneficial to the young life, especially to the young man in college, and for this reason Millsaps students are to be congratulated on this opportunity to hear Judge Reed.

The subject as announced was, "The Character of John the Baptist." The speaker began by calling attention to the importance of the subject and the greatness of the man. Perhaps no time in history could have been more trying to a man of personal ambition than the time of John the Baptist. The world is likely to forget this man who gave his life for the cause of the Messiah even before he had seen him, in thinking of the glamor of the years that followed. As John said of the Christ, "He will increase but I will decrease," so it was. But the great character of John did not in the least consider these things.

The speaker first took up the life of John. It is known that the members of his family were good people. No doubt this was one of the great influences of his life. No man can be more surely blessed than by the memory of a saintly father and mother. The parents of John the Baptist not only belonged to the priestly family, but they were good people themselves. The very circumstances of his birth were tokens of the fact that he had come to fulfill a great mission. In his relationship to the Christ, in the fact that his father was stricken with dumbness, in all these were the signs of a life with a special work to perform. Not only in the song of his father but also in the earlier writers was his mission foretold.

The great purpose of his life was. "To prepare the way of the Lord." Just as in the olden days when men prepared roads in order that an Eastern monarch might pass with his retinue through the country, just so did John prepare the way for the coming of the Messiah. His was the task not to do the things that Christ would do, but to remove the obstacles of sin, of ignorance, and of superstition that the words of the Messiah might have their way in the hearts and lives of men. John's message was a message of repentance. To the people of that time it meant even more than it means now. It meant not only a change of life but it meant a change of thought, of ideals, of those things which the people held dearest.

As a preacher John was one of the greatest that the world has ever known. He used no clap-trap method of advertising, did not seek the busy centers but went away into the wilderness; and yet the crowds followed him. Not only the meek and lowly, but all classes of people came out to hear him. The secret of his power in drawing people was the fact that he told them the simple, straight-forward truth. The people were susceptible to the influences of the truth in that day just as they are today.

The speaker next considered the question of why John was great. The first thing of importance was the fact that he was faithful to his mission. While it was a great and glorious mission, yet there were those things about his task that were unpleasant. But not for a moment did he falter. Steadily, with but one purpose in view he marched boldly forward, loving those things which he came into the world to do. He did not depend on himself for strength but kept in close touch with his Heavenly Father from whom he received the strength that would enable him to perform his mission. The speaker told of the possibilities of every young man's life, if he would but allow himself to be used in the way that the Master would have him be.

The Belhaven girls came out in full force last week on two occasions, one being the recital given by the Forbes Piano Company, the other the Glee Club Saturday night. It is useless to say that the Millsaps boys were delighted to have them both times.

Dr. C. F. Reed, who was for seventeen years a missionary to China and at present head of the Laymans Movement in the United States, made the student body an interesting talk upon the customs and habits of the Chinese last Wednesday morning at chapel.

and didn't give them even one single chance to take anything like a clear shot at the goal. The result was that the only two points made by the visitors were made on fouls.

At the beginning of the second half Kirkland, Frazier and Bob Harmon went in and the ball from then on was in and around the Millsaps basket.

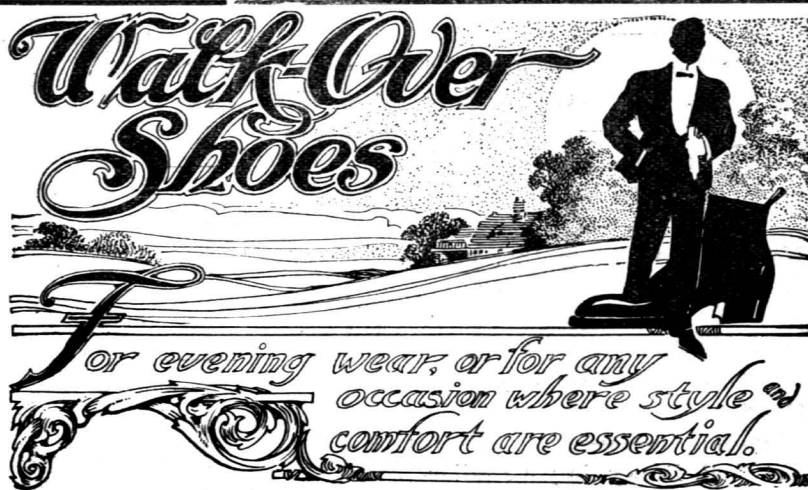

Whatever else may be said about the visitors it must be given them that they were game in spite of the fact that they were slung around, knocked down and run over by the Millsaps, they fought to the end, and the Millsaps rooters got scared whenever they were dangerously near their goal.

The line up for the second game follows:

the auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity.

The Collegians were generally enjoyed. Some parts of the program were pretty punk, but some were unusually good. For instance, Mr. Nichols made a hit with his impersonations as did the quartette with its presentation of the Skeleton Rag. A big surprise was given the audience when Mr.

Nichols, who had left the stage to go to town pretending that he was sick, reappeared in the back of the auditorium, dressed as a backwoodsman, and proceeded to upbraid the players for not giving a better show.

The fourth attraction on the Lyceum Course will be here sometime soon and it is hoped that it will attract as large a crowd as did this one.

BISHOP MURRAH AT HOME.

After a Stay of Several Months in the Orient, He Has Returned to His Native Home.

Bishop W. B. Murrah, who has been on missionary work in China, Japan and Corea for a period of several months, reached Jackson, his home, last Thursday afternoon. It is useless to say that everybody was glad to see him. It is equally useless to say that the bishop was glad to get back. His work in the Orient has been of such a strenuous nature that relaxation from it is bound to be welcome to one who works with the energy that is characteristic of Bishop Murrah.

The bishop's coming was especially gratifying to all Millsaps College students. In the hearts of these there will always linger a love for him, because of the undying interest that he has in their welfare, and his historic connection with the institution. He will never be forgotten as the man who steered her in the right paths in the days of her youth and placed her on that highway of progress on which she is now so safely and surely traveling.

Bishop Murrah talks most interestingly of the great awakening that is now taking place in China. That is the field in which he appears to be most interested. He says that the public school movement is very pronounced. The Chinese are eager to introduce American methods in these schools, and they welcome all Americans who go there with a desire to help them. To those wishing to enter missionary work, Bishop Murrah recommends China as the greatest field of missionary activity. He substantiates what Dr. Reed told us sometime ago concerning this unique people.

About the Japanese the bishop is not so optimistic. They are a shrewd, polished people, but they are indifferent to Christianity. However, they make no open opposition to it.

Baseball

CRACK OF BAT AND BALL SUPERSEDES BASKET BALL—MANY APPLICANTS FOR TEAM—COACH PEASTER ON THE JOB—NINE OF LAST YEAR'S VARSITY RE-TURN—RECRUITS PROMISING—SOME OF THE PROSPECTS.

With the crack of the bat, basket ball loses its charm and baseball easily takes first place. Such will be the case from now on as there are about thirty boys out every afternoon trying to prove their ability to hold down a place on the 'Varsity. For every position on the team there are from three to six applicants, and the man that makes a place will only make it by hard and constant practice.

For first base there are Galloway, Gaddis, Jones and Rucker. Galloway is a very fast man and has had several years' experience in baseball. Gaddis is also a fast man and handles himself like an old leaguer. Jones is not so fast, but he knows the game and is a good hitter. Rucker seems to be rather new at the game but has shown remarkable improvement and is going to shove someone for the initial bag.

For second base there are Fant, Johnson, Hendrix, Backstrom and Frazier. Fant has been showing up mighty good. He is quick, has a good arm and knows the game. Johnson covers the ground around second base with ease. He seems to have played the game for several seasons. Backstrom, Hendrix and Frazier are good players and stand just as good a chance as anyone else.

For third base there are Condrey, Murrah, O'Donald, McClure and More. Condrey is a fast man, has about the best arm of any man on the team, is well acquainted with the game and is a good infielder. Murrah is another man who possesses a great many qualifications. He played third part of last season. O'Donald, More and McClure play snappy ball, and it is not going to be easy to make the place over them.

So far there has been only two men out for shortstop. But these two men seem to be made for that position. They are both active, cover all their territory and throw with great accuracy. They are no other than Holloman and Russell.

Those trying for the outfield are Hathorn, Page, Boyd, W. B. More, Cain, Jackson, Cooper and Brown. The coach will have a hard time picking the best men out of the above mentioned names as they are all just about equal and the best outfielders that ever tried out. In the group are one or two of last year's stars, but they will have to hustle if they retain their places.

The pitching staff will consist of Harris, Ward, Condrey, Jones and Brown. Ward, Condrey and Jones were the mainstays of last year's pitching staff. Harris and Brown are both new men of great promise and are expected to add much strength to the pitching staff.

Millsaps is indeed fortunate in securing the services of Peaster as coach and there is no doubt but that if he has the co-operation and support of the school he will turn out a winning team.

The prospects for a winning team are very bright and all fellows who have the least chance of making it are urged to come out and help Coach Peaster in turning out such a team.

WANTS $50,000 BUILDING.

Hon. J. R. Bingham Sees Blessing in Fire—Commendable Plan to Replace Founder's Hall—Trustees Will Probably Meet Soon.

Much interest is being expressed in what is to be done about the rebuilding of the dormitory. One of the most notable utterances heard along this line were the remarks made recently by Hon. J. R. Bingham, a member of the Board of Trustees who, according to the Jackson Daily News, discussed the proposition as follows:

"This calamity will prove to be a blessing if the Methodists of Mississippi are wise. The trustees should not think of repairing that dormitory. If they entertain such a thought, the hundred thousand and more Methodists in Mississippi should rise up and forbid. The College needs to erect a $50,000 building on that magnificent site facing State Street.

"Founder's Hall was a good building, and the $20,000 due us by the insurance companies will make it as good as new. But nothing less than a $50,000 building will now serve our need, and worthily represent us. Such a structure just now would be worth more to us than an additional $100,000 to the endowment.

"Some visitors recently went out on the car to visit Millsaps College. When they saw the building facing State Street they said: 'This cannot be Millsaps College.' So they returned to the city, confident that the building they saw was far too small for Millsaps College. And they were right!

"Now is our opportunity to begin larger plans for a greater Millsaps. To put that dormitory back like it was would be a greater calamity than the fire which damaged it. Because to do that would put a stumbling block in the path of progress."

Bishop W. B. Murrah, the president of the Board of Trustees, returned recently from abroad and no doubt a meeting of the Board will be called soon to perfect plans for the replacing of the old dormitory.

It is hoped that a majority of the other trustees will heartily endorse Mr. Bingham's plan and Millsaps will soon have another magnificent, substantial building in place of the old dormitory.

BISHOP MURRAH AT HOME.

Bishop Murrah expresses gratification at the situation in Korea. The Japanese are developing the country wonderfully along material lines. The people are very receptive to the gospel.

It is generally hoped and especially so at Millsaps, that Bishop Murrah will be in Mississippi now permanently. Ever since his election to the bishopric, his work has called him from home and, while it is gratifying to everyone that he is honored with the foreign work, they now want him for themselves awhile. It is also hoped that the bishop will be a frequent visitor at the College chapel and a familiar figure on the campus.

If you are thinking of taking a business course, see J. B. Kirkland and get a scholarship at a much reduced price.

WEEMS A BENEDICT.

Prominent Senior Will Not Face Graduation Alone.

Many things of great import and consequence have happened to mark the stay of the class of '13 at Millsaps. Many unusual and singular events that happened during their stay here will be remembered, if not by others, at least by the members of that class. Many deeds that have brought exclamations of wonder and surprise from a watching public have been performed by the members of '13. However, it can now be truthfully said that all of them have been surpassed. Things that before seemed surprising now fade into insignificance. The purport of all of which is the fact that a member of this class, feeling the necessity of aid and encouragement in passing over the shoals of graduation, has taken unto himself a better half.

It was none other than our old college chum, John Wesley Weems, who perpetrated the above chronicled surprise on, we started to say, an unsuspecting student body. But no; to make that statement would be overstepping the bounds of truth, for vague but well formed rumors to the effect that something noteworthy and startling might be expected from the distinguished business manager of our annual had encircled the campus.

These rumors were started by the fact that on last Friday Weems stealthily approached Hobb's Barber Shop and demanded a shave and hair-cut. Active gossips at once got on his trail and endeavored to find out the meaning thereof, but all in vain.

Not until Weems himself phoned the glad news to friends on the campus did the full meaning of his preparations occur to the astonished minds of his fellow students. Then, indeed, did Dame Rumor fall back in a swoon, crying out "the half had never yet been told."

The lady who has taken charge of our college mate for the rest of his life was a Miss Mangum, a most charming girl of Copiah County. The Purple and White adds its congratulations to those of the Senior class and the student body and extends to the newly-weds very best wishes for a long, happy and useful life.

SOPHOMORE PRELIMINARY CONTEST.

Eight Speakers Chosen for Final Contest.

Thirteen sophomores appeared before the faculty last Tuesday evening to try for places in the contest for the Seutter Oration Medal. The contest was a spirited one as all the contestants were well prepared and delivered excellent orations.

This contest always creates a great deal of interest as it is the first contest for which original manuscripts are necessary.

The eight who were chosen for the final contest were: Blewett, Broom, Case, Broomfield, Clark, Cassibry, Henry and Gathins.

Barrie: The Grandissimes, Bookman, 7:401.

The contestants should also by all means consult Poole's Index for 1882-1887 in the State Library under the words "Cable" and "Creole"; the list of references that is given there is a valuable one.

WHAT ABOUT THE DEBATES?

Our attention has recently been called to the fact that not one of our regular debates has been arranged. Not a question for any of the debates has been agreed upon. No date has been set for one. Apparently no one has the matter in charge. Certainly no one is attending to it.

Now, what is the matter with the mid-session debate? It should be at the middle of the session or just as near as possible to that date. Yet, so far as we have been able to learn, not a thing has been done toward getting a question or of arranging a date. Owing to the dullness of the season, right now would be an ideal time for such an event. Later on, when events begin to pile upon each other, it will attract hardly any attention at all. The purpose of the debate to a large extent was to have something in the middle of the session. Those who expect to participate in the debate, those upon whom the societies have conferred the honor of representing them, should bestir themselves and give us something along the debating line in the near future.

Then, there is the triangular debate. What has been done about it? If somebody doesn't take hold of it and get in correspondence with Mississippi College and the A. & M. about a question it will soon be too late to do so. Those who are going to represent us ought to be working on their debates right now. They should remember the excellent record that Millsaps made last session and bend their energies toward keeping it up.

It is a great source of mortification to all loyal Millsaps men that Hendrix College has for two consecutive years put it over us in debate. We all want to win that debate this year. There is some talk of not having it, but this will not suit a great majority of our fellows. Nothing will satisfy them except the overwhelming defeat of Hendrix College. We therefore urge the men who have been placed on this debate to get busy and not to let it fall through.

Let us not forget the fact that oratory and debating are the strongholds of Millsaps. Let us get together on these debates and make this the greatest year that Millsaps has ever had in this field.

MR. BINGHAM'S PROPOSITION.

It seems to us that Hon. J. R. Bingham has just about hit the nail on the head in discussing the dormitory proposition. Attention is called to his utterances on this subject printed elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Bingham is right in asserting that nothing less than a $50,000 building will now serve our needs and worthily represent us. This is true because of the fact that Millsaps today and in the future as she grows and expands will need more commodious and up-to-date buildings than she has had in the past. Then, too, we need buildings of which we can be justly proud. As he suggested, people are disappointed at Millsaps' buildings. We must confess that we ourselves were disappointed when first we saw them. While we have some buildings that are all we could ask for we have not enough of this type. This should not be. Millsaps should be provided with the very best of everything. Above all things else we should have a building facing North State Street that would stand out before the world a fit representative of all those qualities and attributes that in the past have made Millsaps, from a literary standpoint, the equal of any college in the South.

Another point Mr. Bingham brings out is that to put that dormitory back as it was would be a stumbling block in the path of progress. Again we endorse his statement. We venture the assertion that if the present opportunity for bettering the building conditions of the College is not taken advantage of that it will, to say the least, be ten years before the proposition is again taken up. In other words, the opportunity will have been lost and the doors of progress closed for a considerable length of time. We believe that the friends of Millsaps expect some improvements to be made and that they should not allow any such postponement to take place.

Let's make this a time to start a movement for a greater Millsaps and let's take the first step toward that much desired end by placing on Founder's Hall site a building that will weather the storms and blasts of years to come and ever stand sentinel over the College grounds, marking the period that began one of the greatest movements in the history of our beloved alma mater.

ATHLETICS.

New life is beginning to take hold of things on the athletic field. Millsaps field is almost as well populated every afternoon as a well developed ant hill on a warm day. The crack of bat and ball and the shouts of "I have it" fill the air as Coach Peasters' squad of ball tossers vie with each other in an effort to land a berth on the team.

Nothing could please us better. We would that every man in College would take it upon himself to spend two hours on the athletic field every afternoon. This would not only work for the betterment of his physical, mental and moral condition but would mean much towards bettering the conditions of athletics at Millsaps. Nothing could be of more inestimable value to our College than winning teams, that is, clean, manly teams that will win victories in an open, above-board manner on the sheer merits of the players.

This will not be possible until the students realize that their willingness to undergo the necessary training and practice is essential to putting out a winning team. We must realize that we must train and train hard, that Millsaps must not be represented by any team except a team that is trained as well as it is possible for a team to be trained.

Millsaps should by all means send a well rounded track team to represent us at Aberdeen in May. Again, she should put out a baseball team that will win the right of playing A. & M. College on that day. This will be possible if the fellows awaken to their duty and the responsibility thereof and enter into these contests with a determination of succeeding if hard work and practice will do so. Otherwise, we may expect no more than we have gotten in the preceding years of our short athletic history. If the latter case is true we will have only ourselves to blame and instead of cussing the team we should answer the question as to why we as individuals have not done our part.

Men, let's get out and make this a banner year in athletics. Let's send both a track and baseball team to Aberdeen that will bring back the results.

TRACK WORK BEGINS.

Prospects for Coming Season—
Manager Harmon Issues Call for Track Men.

Simultaneously with the crack of ball and bat on the athletic field we hear the crunch of the cinders and the fall of the vaulting pole, all sure signs that spring is here. And this year more than any other, we want to both hear and see not only plenty of such practice on the track but a few State records smashed.

As a coach we have Coach Fletcher, who will long be remembered at Millsaps for turning out such a splendid basket ball team as the now closing season saw. But no matter how good a basket ball coach he is, he is a far better track man, holding at present the Southern Inter-collegiate record for the mile. He was also a star in the quarter and half-mile races. So in the coach we have a "peach."

As to material there are excellent prospects. Howe, the sprinter who has represented us for two years, is back and will soon be up to his old form. Howe is a mighty good man on the relay also.

Kirkland is "right there" as usual. He took the State mile at Meridian in a beautiful race last year, and we are expecting him to duplicate that stunt this year. He is a "hurdling thing," too.

Ott Broomfield will be there with the goods on the half-mile. Ott captured second place in that event last year, which was mighty good for a first year man.

"Big" Henry is also a splendid middle distance man. We are expecting great things of him this year.

Bob Harmon, the pole-vaulter, is expected to smash all records this year in this event.

Kirkland, N. B. Harmon and others are going to do good work in the high jump.

We want all new men to come out and practice regularly. Practice will win. All with plenty of "beef" come out—we need you on the weights badly. All who could "beat everybody in any school" running, come out and get "on your marks." All jumpers, hurdlers or those wishing to learn those events come out every evening at 4 o'clock. If you can't do anything, come out anyhow and hustle up the men who can. The practice will do you good, whether you win or lose.

A dual meet with Mississippi College is planned early in the spring. Other trips are in view. Be sure to come out.

SCIENCE CLUB MEETS.

An Excellent Program Presented Friday Evening.

On Friday evening the Science Club held its monthly meeting in Science Hall. A very excellent program had been prepared by Professor Harrell, chairman of the program committee. The papers and authors were the following: "Botanical Evidence As to the Age of Ox-Bow Lakes," by J. B. Honeycutt; "Some Remarkable Specimens of Ancient Glass," by W. M. Cain; "Asphalt, a Mysterious Material," by Professor Harrell. All the papers were interesting and instructive and especially so was the one by Professor Harrell, since it threw much light on the economical uses of asphalt. Those present seem to have enjoyed the program very much and those absent do not know what they missed and will do well to make it a point to be present next time.

Boys, have your Tailoring done at T. B. Doxey's, and save the special discount which he gives to college boys.

Y. M. C. A.

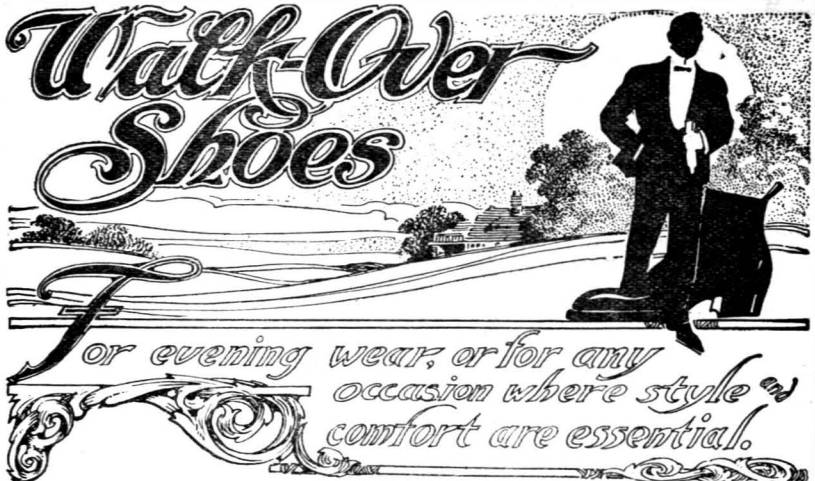

Professor R. S. Ricketts Speaks on "a Rare Old Virtue."

The Association was especially fortunate in having as speaker Professor Robert S. Ricketts on last Friday night. Not only is the Y. M. C. A. glad to listen to any member of the College speak on questions of importance to college men, but it is an especial pleasure to hear our revered friend, the purity of whose life has ever been an inspiration to the students of Millsaps. We are proud of having such a man among us and only hope that we, as members of the Y. M. C. A., may be permitted to follow in his footsteps.

Professor Ricketts had chosen as his subject, "A Rare Old Virtue." He explained that the discussion was on the virtue of "patience," a subject not usually popular when speaking to young people. He spoke of how patience meant to the young life a tiresome period of waiting, hungering and longing for those things in the future; how that the Biblical example of patience, namely Job, was not usually attractive to the youthful mind. But, on the other hand, the speaker said, such a subject needs to be brought before the student mind. In the mad rush of the present time the only ideal held before the eyes of the student contains this spirit of haste, reinforced by an athletic suggestion or illustration that exhorts only to press forward in mad, impetuous haste.

The speaker read a few verses from the first chapter of Second Peter as follows: "Add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity." It may be noticed that patience is here placed in the center of all these virtues, perhaps with some suggestion of the high central part of an arch supporting all the rest, or it may be of the center of an army on which all else depends. Then again, James was quoted where he said: "Let patience have her perfect work." Here is a transformation. Peter tells us of a still patience, James of patience at work. Just here the speaker said that he did not know, but imagined, that James D. W. Howe attended the Presbyterian Sunday School Convention held in Memphis this week as a delegate from the First Presbyterian Church of this city.

Cooper says he don't know what a dilemma is but that it has two horns.

Gee! What a dull season for newspaper reporters and college students!

We wonder which of the professors had the best claim on the little dog that attended chapel exercises Friday morning. He seemed to have a great love for the master of the Department of Chemistry.

Prof. Burton's praises of the boys that he took to the A. & M. on the basket ball trip is but another way of showing what a manly set of boys Millsaps can boast of. May her student body ever be composed of such noble characters!

Well, did you get a portrayal of your likeness in the form of a comic valentine last Thursday?

Some really amusing valentines were received by the shack boys Thursday morning, and these gentlemen had a great deal of fun at each other's expense over these little missives.

Invitations are being received on the campus for the approaching marriage of Miss Ellen Fonderin to Rev. W. N. Thomas. The Purple and White joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy union.

Quite a number of our boys and girls enjoyed a valentine party given by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church on St. Valentine's night. All report a delightful time.

Was it because Prof. E. Y. Burton hardly ever smiles before his Freshman class or because his smiles are so gentle and sweet that prompted the Freshman co-ed to say: "Oh, I had just rather see that man smile than to eat"?

The preliminary contest for the Freshman medal was not held last Tuesday but was postponed until next week.

Dr. Sullivan and Waldo Moore have gone in "cahoot" in the Sophomore chemistry class. Moore keeps time while Dr. Sullivan lectures the class.

We are glad to announce in this issue that one C. Regan has succeeded in finding his lost property. It was found in the possession of one of the assistant professors of Latin, seemingly well pleased with its new master.

Who was the co-ed that was so cruel as to answer Jack Brewer in these words after he had poured out his very heart's love to her, "Really, Jack, dear, you can't expect me to believe you when your very eyes are joking"?

Miss Lester (during a discussion of the theory of evolution in Sophomore English class): "Dr. Kern, did he ever prove that a horse was formerly a rabbit"?

A large number of our students attended an entertainment given by the B. Y. P. U. at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis on Gallatin Street Thursday evening. Games of hearts were participated in, and we feel assured that the hours spent with these hospitable people were very much enjoyed.

Jim McClure sent Saturday and Sunday with home folks at Fayette, Miss.

The literary societies did not meet Friday night because there were no lights in their halls.

Prof. Burton has supplied the baseball team with bats and individual bat bags. Now, boys, get busy and use them.

We were all glad to have R. E. Selby back with us after quite an extended absence but sorry to record the death of his father, which sad event occurred several weeks ago.

AUTHOR'S CLUB.

The members of the Authors' Club enjoyed a lecture by Dr. A. A. Kern on last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Stella McGehee. Dr. Kern discussed with the club the Creoles of Geo. W. Cable in a most interesting manner, and after this the young people enjoyed a most delightful social hour together.

There Is a Great Difference in Tobaccos

V. STEFANSSON

V. Stefansson, the famous explorer, who has recently discovered a tribe of blond Esquimaux in the arctic regions of North-western Canada, says:

"Tuxedo is mild, cool and soothing—just the sort of tobacco I need. Tuxedo goes with me wherever I go."

V. Stefansson.

HENRY REUTERDAHL

Henry Reuterdaahl, famous naval artist and expert on naval construction, says:

"You've got to smoke while painting out of doors in winter—it helps you to keep warm. And a pipeful of pure, mild Tuxedo tobacco makes one forget the cold, and the paint flows more freely."

H. Reuterdaahl.

GEO. RANDOLPH CHESTER

George Randolph Chester, famous author of the "Wallingford" stories, says:

"Why shouldn't a man be willing to recommend a tobacco which gives as cool, sweet and satisfying a smoke as Tuxedo?"

G. Randolph Chester.

Tuxedo is the Mildest, Sweetest, Most Pleasant Smoke in the World, Because—

First—No one but the makers of Tuxedo is willing to spend the money necessary to buy the mildest, choicest, most thoroughly aged, selected Burley tobacco.

Second—No one but the makers of Tuxedo knows how to treat this Burley tobacco so that every bit of pleasantness and goodness remains in the tobacco and every bit of unpleasantness and harshness is taken out.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Tuxedo was born in 1904. Its first imitator appeared two years later. Since then a host of imitations have been born, and are clamoring for your patronage.

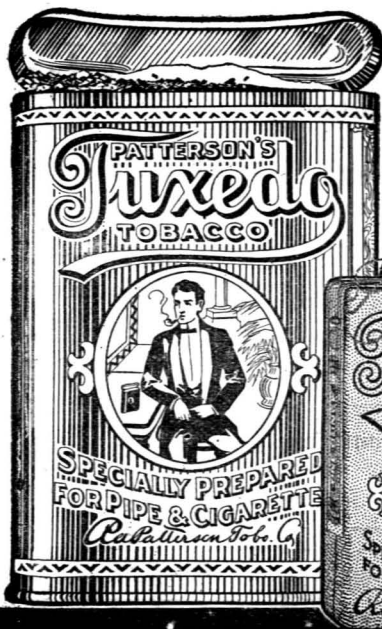

No imitation is ever as good as the original. No amount of advertising, no amount of bluster and bluff, can ever make an imitation tobacco as good as Tuxedo.

Until someone discovers the secrets of the Tuxedo process, Tuxedo will remain without a rival. Those secrets are so carefully guarded that it is practically impossible for them to be discovered.

The greatest men in America—business men, professional men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, actors, sportsmen, athletes, engineers and men in every walk of life, smoke Tuxedo and recommend it as the most enjoyable, most pleasant and most healthful smoke.

If you are not a pipe smoker, you are denying yourself the greatest smoking pleasure known to man. One week of Tuxedo will give you more enjoyment than cigars—and at the end of the week your nerves will be better and your general health will have improved. Try Tuxedo this week!

WILLIAM B. WATTS

William B. Watts, for 27 years Chief of the Detective Bureau of Boston, and now head of the Watts Detective Agency, of Boston, says:

J. N. Marchand, the illustrator, whose "Western Types" have made him famous, says:

"Fill my pipe with Tuxedo and I'm content. You can't beat Tuxedo for mildness and purity."

LAW NOTES.

If you are looking for "one" on the lawyer, how about this?

A prominent minstrel man was a very material witness in a case and the lawyer on the opposing side was anxious to break the force of his testimony. Hence the following:

"Mr. O'Brien, you are in the minstrel business?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," replied O'Brien.

"Is it not a fact that it is a rather low calling?"

"It is, sir, but it is so much better than my father did that I am rather proud of myself."

"And what was your father's profession?"

"He was a lawyer, sir," promptly replied the minstrel man.

The sympathy of the class goes out to Messrs. J. E. and A. B. Johnson. They were called home last Wednesday, because of the sudden death of their father at his home in Batesville.

A. D. Taylor of Brandon has been forced to withdraw from the law class because of failing eyesight. We regret losing him, but hope that the rest will completely restore his failing sight.

Judge Williams' court did not meet as usual last Monday, because of an event of great significance in College affairs. Monday and Tuesday nights were dedicated to Mississippi College and her basket ball team.

Uneasy would fall the gown on the shoulders of Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court if some of our number were as earnest law students as they are ladies' men. If they were, well, they would get his job, Constitution or no Constitution.

Many a man fights "big game" right here in the capital of Mississippi without any spectacular trip to Africa. Some number of our noble class, for instance, have a bout with the "wolf" and a race from that most vicious of native fauna, the bill collector, every day of the week.

Every cloud has its silver lining. On last Wednesday morning as the great I. C. freight depot, with its large store of freight, was burning this truth was brought very concretely before the owners of the burning freight. Some of our own class-mates hurried to the scene and many were the expressions of sympathy and much handshaking was indulged in. It is said that two of the number came from without the city and that another was so imbued with sympathy that he went the entire length of Capitol Street comforting and consoling the people.

We are glad to see our friends who stood the examination recently begin to break into the courts. From Goodman we hear great things, too.

Messrs. Adam, Scarbrough, Hillman and Long went to Gulfport last Tuesday to take a shot at the bar—exam. As yet we have had no report on the outcome but are sure that it will be satisfactory.

DR. SULLIVAN ENTERTAINS.

Delightful Entertainment Given Science Club.

One of the most delightful social events of the session occurred Saturday night, when Dr. Sullivan entertained the members of the Science Club.

Dr. Sullivan and his family are always ideal hosts and especially did they prove themselves such on this occasion.

Many interesting features were introduced to make the time fly quickly. A number of games of rook were enjoyed, after which Dr. Sullivan and his accomplished daughters rendered delightful music, Dr. Sullivan performing on a harp and mandolin, while his two daughters played on the piano and a violin.

Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour, after which the guests took their departure, all declaring that they had had a most delightful evening.

Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. Sullivan, the Misses Sullivan, and Messrs. Lester, Honeycutt, J. B. Cain, W. M. Cain, W. M. Willingham, Kirkland, Howe, Lampton and Bell.

(Y. M. C. A., continued from page 6) meant not only perfection in its own work, but the work of perfecting all things. How many men have failed in the last moments of a great task by not having patience to finish their work! How many boys have failed in their college course for the same reason! In short, patience is the quality that enables us to put the finishing touches on our work. The message of Paul to the Hebrews: "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us," was also noticed. Here is a greater transformation. From a standing patience we come to one working, then here we find patience running. Perhaps this is the hardest thing. It is not difficult to conceive of a person being patient while waiting or even at work preparing for the final race. Paul had in mind, no doubt, the Olympic games, where those racing were forced even in the race itself to be patient, keeping their nerves quiet and allowing no part of the body to be used that was not absolutely necessary in running this great race. The beautiful story of Ben Hur was mentioned in which the story is given of a chariot race. When the others became excited and urged on their horses with whip and shout,

Ben Hur silently held the lines and guided the team. After all, the greatest patience is not in the time of waiting, nor in the long toiling period of preparation, but in the final contest, and he who can have patience in the great race of life is indeed worthy of the victory.

Two noteworthy instances of patient endurance were noted. One was in Motley's tribute to William of Orange. How this mighty, patient statesman bore on his shoulders the burden of a whole nation, and was so universally loved that when he died the little children cried in the streets. Another story was that of Napoleon's marshal, whom he had stationed at a certain point with instructions to hold it until Napoleon had made one of those moves for which he was famous. Time passed and the marshal was wounded. A courier came from the emperor asking how long could the position be held. This leader first replied that it could be held one hour, then two hours, and finally, drawing his wounded body up erect, he said: "Tell the emperor that I can hold this position as long as he wants me to do it."

In conclusion, Professor Ricketts said that he chose to call patience rare because it does not fit in with our common ideals; old because it has small place in our modern haste, and a virtue because nothing contributes more to true manhood and womanhood or is of more importance in the race of life.

PRENTISS SOCIETY.Two Extemporaneous Debates.

The Prentiss Literary Society met in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Friday night and an interesting session was held. Instead of having the regular program, it was set aside and two extemporaneous debates were participated in. This proved to be an interesting venture, as many well brought forward arguments and prophesies were produced on both questions.

Prof. Noble also gave the society a stirring talk on society work, etc. The Prentiss boys, although hampered by the fire and forced to seek new quarters, are doing good work and many things are expected from them in the future.

MILLSAPS DEFEATS MISSISSIPPI COLLEGE

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

Week of Activity on Athletic Field.

Baseball practice has been in full swing during the past week. Upwards of thirty or forty candidates have been out every afternoon competing for a position on the team. Coach Peaster has been keeping them busy, too. Both fielding and batting practice have served to occupy the attention of the coach and players. The batting cage has been fixed up and is helping to enable the fellows to get the practice necessary to get their eye on the ball and swat it.

Competition is so great in most cases that nothing very definite concerning the exact personnel of the team has as yet been determined on. One thing is absolutely certain and that is that Millsaps will put the best team in the field that she has ever gotten out.

BASKET BALL BANQUET.

Major Millsaps Gives Banquet to Basket Ball Team—Bountiful Supply of Food and Plenty of Toasts.

The basket ball team this year has had remarkable success and deserves to the fullest, all the praises it has received. Millsaps is justly proud of her team and everyone realizes that a large per cent of the credit is due to the efforts of Prof. E. Y. Burton and the efficient coaching of Mr. Fletcher.

On last Friday evening this victorious team was elegantly entertained by Major Millsaps at a banquet at the Bon Ton Cafe. During the elaborate dinner, toasts were given, some of which

TIES A. & M. FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP IN BASKET BALL—

MILLSAPS TEAM FINISHES SUCCESSFUL SEASON WITH SERIES OF VICTORIES—HARMON CHOSEN CAPTAIN FOR NEXT YEAR.

There is joy in every heart at Millsaps College. Never before in the history of basket ball at this institution has such support been given to a team as was given last Monday and Tuesday nights. It was proved beyond any doubt that support is what it takes to make a team put forth every effort.

Notwithstanding the fact that we were playing one of the best teams in the state, the games were never in doubt.

In the first game our boys took the lead from the toss-up and, in spite of all the other team could do, this lead was never overcome. Our boys showed themselves masters of every detail of the game and gave one of the prettiest exhibitions of passing and goal throwing that has ever been witnessed on any basket ball court. The work of every man on the team was worthy of being called star ball. Cook and Gaddis, our guards, are undoubtedly the best who have ever worked together in the City of Jackson. Their work far outshone that of the two guards of the opposing team. Kirkland at center simply played rings around his man. From the first to the last, he showed that he was the master of the man from Clinton. He outjumped him and threw more goals. Frazier and Bob Harmon, at forwards, played star ball. They both were guarded by excellent men, but from the way these two youngsters played, it looked as if no guards could keep them from scoring.

The second game was simply a repetition of the first. The Millsappers again outshone their opponents in every detail of the game. The score of the first game was twenty-four to fourteen, and that of the second, twenty-eight to fifteen.

The Millsaps team won three out of four games from Mississippi College, thus showing that Mississippi College can have no claims to the state inter-collegiate championship. This leaves a tie for the rag between A. & M. and Millsaps.

After the close of the season the basket ball team met to choose their leader for next year. The boys, after some serious thinking on the subject decided that Bob Harmon was a man worthy of the honor. The captaincy of a basket ball team is not merely an honor but is also a great responsibility. A coach develops a team before the beginning of the season and advises them through the season, but during the season the success of the team largely rests on the shoulders of the captain. If the team has confidence in the ability of their leader and knows that he will hold up his share of the game and that he will direct them rightly, they will in all probability prove a winning team.

Bob Harmon has been on the team for two years and has played good steady ball. He is not what would be called a sensational player, but always uses his head and comes up with his part of the game. He is every inch worthy of the honor of captaincy and is fully capable of taking care of the responsibilities of the situation.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Cooper and Jones Win First Set.

A very interesting tennis tournament is now in progress at Millsaps. The first games of which were played Monday afternoon between Cooper and Jones and Lampton and McClure. The games were closely contested and resulted in a victory for Cooper and Jones. The winners will play the winners of other sets and decide the championship. The other players who have entered the tournament are Phillips and Moore, W. B., Chrisler, J. D. and R. M., and others whose names could not be secured at this time.

Under the leadership of Prof. J. M. Burton, unusual interest is being taken in tennis this year and the outcome of the tournament is anxiously awaited by the student body. Two college annuals will be given to the winners.

The association is to be congratulated on having as speaker on last Friday night Professor E. L. Bailey. The Y. M. C. Especially do we welcome and enjoy the presence of one whom we know so well as we do Professor Bailey; one whom we know to be interested in us, not only as a Y. M. C. A., but one who is watching our progress in all of our affairs with a great deal of concern.

The speaker had selected as a subject, "Social Service." All who have heard Professor Bailey speak, and those who are acquainted with the great work he is doing in the line of educational advance in this section, can, in some degree, imagine his ability to handle a subject like this. He read as a lesson a part of the thirteenth chapter of Romans. If one part of this short lesson was stressed more than another it was the seventh and eighth verses which read as follows: "Render therefore to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour. Owe no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."

Here the speaker took a rapid review of the past two centuries. He said that every period of time, not necessarily one hundred years, was marked by some characteristic thought which was peculiar to that age. Further, he said, that the philosophy of an age determine the civilization of that age. Here we most heartily agree with the speaker. Therefore let us, as young men, prepare ourselves to go out into the world, both intellectually and spiritually, capable of grappling with the great problems of our time. May we take part in the furtherance of the dominant ideas of the twentieth century.

Beginning with the fifteenth century the speaker briefly mentioned some of the important discoveries. He very ably discussed the characteristic thought of the people of that time. Then taking each century in succession up to the present he likewise discussed the leading events—industrial, political, and religious. The fifteenth century, he said, was marked by the inquisition; the seventeenth by the Elizabethan age of literature; the eighteenth by the French revolution and a great effort for political freedom; the nineteenth by the industrial development. Lastly he mentioned some of the movements of this century such as, "The Peace Movement," and "The Men and Religious Movement." The speaker, in conclusion, said that every war waged was for some selfish purpose, and that these modern movements just mentioned in their final analysis meant nothing more than social service.

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.Galloway's Disapprove of Initiative and Referendum.

The Galloway's held a very interesting meeting in the Galloway hall Friday night. The question for debate was, "Resolved, That Mississippi should adopt the Initiative and Referendum." Both sides were hotly contested and many interesting points were brought out.

The speakers on the affirmative were Willingham and Barrett. Those on the negative: Brown and O'Donnell. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

The impromptu debate proved to be an interesting one and furnished much amusement for the society members and the visitors.

As usual, quite a goodly number of the coeds were present, all of whom were particularly welcome to the meeting and whose presence added much enthusiasm to the speakers.

Bullock was elected as president of the anniversary occasion which event will occur sometime in April or May.

Tatom delivered an excellent oration which was greatly enjoyed by the society.

PRENTISS SOCIETY.Prentiss Boys Would Turn Lyceum Course Over to Athletic Association.

The Prentiss Society held its regular weekly meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall last Friday night. Ruffin, the orator for the evening, delivered an excellent oration and Bending, the essayist, gave the society an essay of the very best type.

The question for debate on account of its local interest proved to be a highly interesting one. It was, "Resolved, That the Lyceum Course of Millsaps College should be in the hands of the Athletic Association." The affirmative was represented by Alford, Perkins and Davis, and the negative by Pierman, Garroway and McKie. The question was decided in favor of the affirmative.

THE RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS.

Our attention has recently been called to the fact that Millsaps has never had a student to win a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford, England, and so far as we know, no Millsaps student has ever competed for this honor. Although it would be useless for us to go into details as to the requirements for the Rhodes Scholarship, a few remarks would not be amiss. As we understand it, Cecil Rhodes established two scholarships to Oxford, England, in each state of the United States; each province of Canada and Germany. These scholarships pay the holder thereof $1500 annually—a sum sufficient in all respects to enable the student to reside at Oxford the greater portion of the time and spend the remaining time in travel on the continent.

The scholarships are obtained by competitive examination and recognition of a man's athletic ability.

We know of no other arrangement whereby a better opportunity is offered a student for acquiring an education of the highest type. Millsaps students should, by all means, be represented among the holders of these scholarships. Her students hold their own and excel in all other competitive contests and it is nothing but right that they should compete and win in this contest. Not only would this be of inestimable benefit to the student who thus takes advantage of this magnificent offer but it would add more laurels to our Purple and White banner.

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Lamar's Have Stirring Session—
McClure Declaims—Case Orates.

The Lamars held an old time meeting Friday night when a large and enthusiastic number of the society members gathered to hear an unusually strong program. President Scott called the meeting to order after which the house was lead in prayer by the chaplain, Selby.

The first thing on the program was a declamation by J. M. McClure, who rendered "Prentiss' first plea at the bar," in a most creditable manner. C. C. Case then came forward with an oration of an unusual type—consisting of a rendition of a comical selection that aroused much laughter among the audience.

The question for debate, although one that has been discussed on many occasions before, proved an interesting one and the debaters showed that they were well prepared for the event.

Patterson and Lusk ably upheld the affirmative side, while Brown and Hillman were on the negative. The question was decided in favor of the affirmative. Professor Harrel was present and made the society a most interesting talk. Professor Harrel, while in college was an enthusiastic Lamar and his presence is always an inspiration to the boys.

A committee was appointed to get up a special program for next Friday night. Some of the best members of the society will be on the program then and the public is cordially invited to be present.

One of the most interesting talks heard in the college chapel this year was that one given the students recently by Bishop Murrain. The Millsaps students are always delighted to see their ex-president and hope that he will come again within the near future.

Many of the boys attended the play given at Bellhaven Monday night.

ENGLISH BOOK PROPOSED— MILLSAPS PROFESSORS AUTHORS.

Dr. Kern and Prof. Noble Working on Book to Help High School English.

Dr. Kern and Prof. Noble have been sending out letters recently with the view of finding out the advisability of writing a book that will correct the number of weaknesses usually found in high school English. They have received many responses from their letters, not only asserting that they had judged the situation correctly and realized the needs of the high school English course, but that the books would be adopted in the school which they heard from.

This book, coming from the pens of such men as Dr. Kern and Prof. Noble, will naturally be of the highest type and will no doubt be a great success from the time the first copies come off the press; and not only means much towards promoting a higher standard for high school English but will help to keep the name of Millsaps before the high school students of the State. We publish below a copy of the letter which they have sent out.

Dear Sir:

From our experience in the teaching of high school English we have been impressed with several weaknesses in the course as given at present.

1. The relation between grammar and composition is not sufficiently indicated. The average high school student in the first year too often regards the two subjects as distinct and does not learn to apply the grammar he has learned in the lower grades, in his study of composition.

2. The study of composition has frequently been theoretical rather than practical. The student studies composition rather than practices it. He learns the forms of discourse and the technical terms of composition without learning how to write.

3. The four-year high school course has consisted of two parallel courses in composition and literature with very little dependence of the one upon the other; in some instances the two subjects have been taught in separate years. Shifting the attention from composition to literature, and back again, leads the student to misunderstand the unity of the two subjects and causes a waste of energy and a disorganization of class work.

4. The securing of a large number of small texts in literature, from time to time, is a constant source of annoyance to both teacher and pupils. Furthermore, the variety of editions of a given classic that find their way into the hands of the pupils, proves a serious hindrance to effective teaching.

5. The more recent texts on practical composition do not furnish enough recitation material.

Having made these criticisms, we have asked ourselves if they might not be met by properly prepared texts. As a result, we have planned a book for first year high school English, which will consist of a brief course in grammar and composition and will be bound with at least three of the texts in literature. Such a book may be sold for less than is ordinarily paid for four small ones and can, we believe, be so arranged as to remedy all the defects mentioned above.

Our idea is to publish a beginner's book in composition and literature that will teach the pupil how to write. Formal rhetoric will have no place. The gap between grammar and composition will be filled and, at the same time, practical use will be made of the selections from literature required for college entrance.

We want to put our plan clearly before the teachers in order that we may find out if the demand for such a book is really as great as it seems to us. We assure you that we shall gladly welcome any suggestions that may be of service to us in the preparation of the book. Will you kindly answer the questions on the enclosed postal card and return it to us at your earliest convenience?

Very truly yours,

ALFRED ALLAN KERN, A. M.,
Ph. D. (Johns-Hopkins), Professor of English, Millsaps College.

STUART GRAYSON NOBLE,
A. M. (Chicago), Headmaster and Professor of English, Millsaps Preparatory School.

PREP RECEPTION.Washington's Birthday Appropriately Celebrated.

On Saturday evening, Feb. 23, the students of the Millsaps preparatory school entertained their friends at their annual reception. Since the brilliant social affair given by these young men last year, all have looked forward to this lovely celebration of Washington's birthday with pleasant anticipation, knowing the enjoyment awaiting them and on Saturday evening the expectation of the guests were more than realized. The building was artistically decorated in the national red, white and blue, and throughout the evening a stringed band furnished delightful music.

In the receiving line were: Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Prof. and Mrs. Huddleston, Mr. and Mrs. Webb Buie, Mrs. W. T. Joyce, Prof. R. S. Ricketts, Miss Bertha Ricketts, Prof. Noble and Miss Eloise Watkins.

Games of different kinds were played, after which came the grand march in which all took part. A voting contest took place in which, after a hotly contested race, Miss Doris Holder was elected prettiest girl; James Riddell, handsomest man, and A. B. Holder, most popular.

Delicious refreshments were served, consisting of punch, ice cream and cake in patriotic colors.

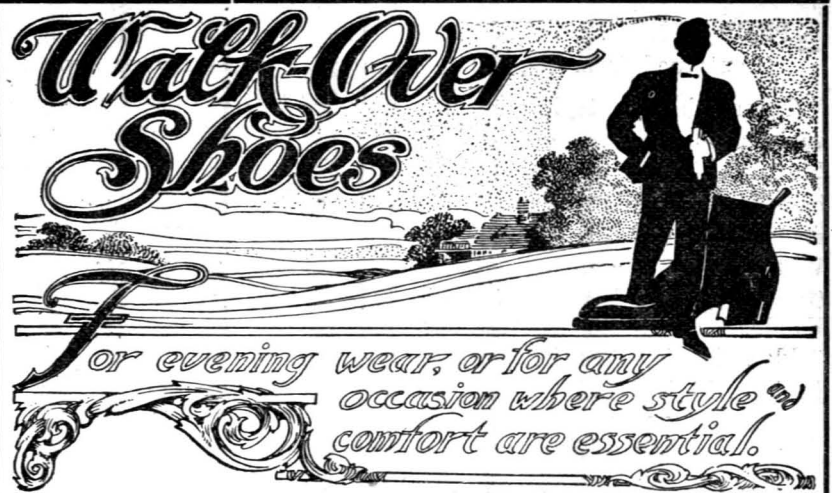

This reception was undoubtedly the most enjoyable affair of the year and one of which these young gentlemen may feel justly proud.

PREP BASEBALL TEAM.Preps Hard at Work—Quin Coaches.

The Preps have by no means been idle on the athletic field during the last few weeks. They have not only been hard at work getting their baseball diamond in shape, but under the direction of Coach Quin and Manager Holder, have been rounding the team into a fast bunch of ball players. Quin, although a member of the team himself, has had so much experience under efficient coaches that he is thoroughly capable of turning out a good team, well trained in all the fine points of base ball.

Manager Holder is arranging a good schedule and a successful season is predicted.

BASKET BALL.Resume of Season's Work.

Millsaps has just ended a season of unparelled success in basket ball. The team disbanded on the night of the eighteenth with the brightest record ever held by a Millsaps team against foreign opponents. It is no little thing for a team to tie the redoubtable A. & M. for the state championship. And, as everyone knows, this is just what the Millsaps team has done.

It is true that the first of the season was not a very successful period for the team, but the wind up that the team made may well blot out the unpleasant memories that the earlier defeats of the season have caused. We pass over without mentioning the severe defeat administered by Millsappers to the D'Lo boys, and call attention to the tie up between our team and the A. & M. team on the latter's ground. Then there came the defeat which our team administered to the team of the Canton Athletes—a team in every respect fitted to play good ball. Last, but not least, was the defeat of Mississippi College whose goat we got three times out of four, having defeated them once on their ground and twice on our own.

When we review the personnel of our team it is not surprising that Millsaps has had a great season in basket ball. Kirkland at center would be a great asset to any team. He has long been recognized as one of the best athletes in school, and basket ball is not the least of his spheres. He is the best all round man on the team, being right there with the goods on both offensive and defensive work. He is a hard player and uses his head at all parts of the game.

It would be hard to find two better guards than Jack Gaddis and "Dr." Cook. This is the first year that either of them have played college basket ball, but both of them have been playing like old timers. Their team work has been a feature of the season. They have been playing together in a remarkable fashion. Not only do they use the team work, but they are both strong, muscular fellows, capable of going up against and if necessary roughing it up with any Goliath that other teams might send against them.

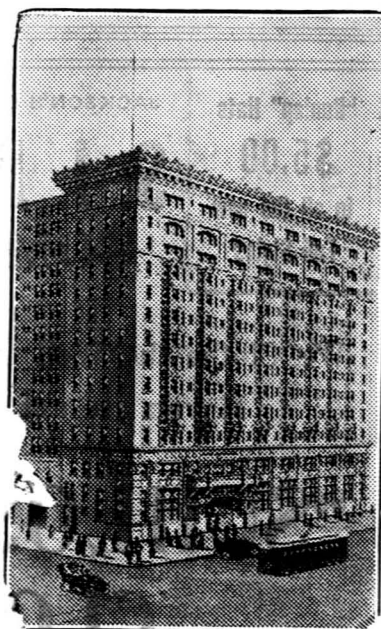

It is to be sincerely hoped that Cook and Gaddis both will be back next year to add strength to our next season's team.

Bob Harmon and Swept Frazier have been doing some phenomenal work as forwards. They are both experienced men and they know the game from beginning to end. Harmon has the record on long shots, while Frazier has been unusually successful in easing them in over the other fellow and throwing foul goals. Harmon has the reputation of being the gamest little fellow ever seen on the field, while Frazier's giant form has always bluffed his opponent.

Coach Fletcher and Prof. E. Y. Burton deserve especial credit for the team that was produced this year, Fletcher for doing the coaching and Prof. Burton for getting him to coach and for his great interest in the team.

Millsaps ought to get out a better team next year than it did this. Kirkland is the only man that will not be back next year. While it will be hard to find someone to take his place and play it as he has, yet we hope that just this thing can be accomplished.

BASEBALL ON THE BOOM

Coach Peaster Making Good—Candidates for Team on the Job.

Baseball, the most interesting and by far the broadest game in the world, is attracting the attention of every fan in the United States.

It is no less the case at Millsaps College. Every afternoon large crowds go out to the athletic field to encourage the boys in every way possible towards getting out a winning team, and by the way every man, who has put forth the least effort, has improved there is no doubt but that the team will play winning ball.

Coach Peaster is fast rounding into shape a good team and it is remarkable how he watches each and every man so closely. He has long ago seen the weaknesses of all the men and shows wonderful patience in coaching them.

The pitchers, Ward and Harris, are showing up fine. They seem to be getting more speed every day, and as to their curves, why they have got the stuff.

Gaddis and Galloway on first are "eating 'em up." They cover their territory with ease and are playing star ball.

Holloman and Murrah are playing all over and around second base. It is almost impossible to knock one by them.

In and around short stop is well filled by Brown. He handles the ball like a ball of fire. Brown is a very clever player and the team expects great things from him.

On third is Jack Condrey. Jack is working out like an old leaguer, and after the season is over here it would not surprise us if he were asked to take the place of Baker of the Athletics.

The outfield is being well taken care of by Jones, Jackson, Hathorn, Moore, Baxtrom and Page.

BOBASHELA NOW COMPLETED

Material in Hands of Publishers—Staff Rests After Labors—Praises Due Staff and Dr. Kern.

Too late! You have neglected the matter a little too long! These are the words that will fall upon your ears if you have not heeded the warnings of the annual staff and had your picture made or submitted your favorite poem or short story with the hope of getting it published. Yes, the work of the annual is closed and the material has not only been collected, but is now in the hands of the publishers, who are fast shaping it into its final form—the completed annual.

The staff after several busy weeks are now very properly resting upon their laurels, proud in the fact that their task is accomplished and that they have rendered a lasting service to their alma mater. That is, the members of the staff who have had the care of the literary productions of the annual. The business managers are by no means so fortunate, as their work in the way of collecting levies and disposing of the annuals, is just beginning.

Scott and his associates deserve unstinted praise for the work they have accomplished. The annual is going to be a beauty and will go down in the history of Millsaps as one of the best that has ever been produced here.

As usual, Dr. Kern has had a great deal to do with the success of the work. He has overlooked the work and has had much to do with the promptness and spirit with which the members of the staff have worked.

PROF. BURTON GOES TO ABERDEEN.

Contracts Signed for Track Meet and Contests—Aberdeen People Enthused Over Coming Event.

Prof. Burton made a trip to Aberdeen last week to perfect plans and draw up contracts for the oratorical contest, track meet and baseball games to be held there on May the ninth.

Prof. Burton reports that the people of Aberdeen are very much enthused over the coming of the contests to that city and that they are making great preparations for entertaining the visitors on that day.

The citizens of Aberdeen are under contract to guarantee six hundred dollars gate receipts at the track meet, and in addition they furnish grounds for ball game, track for track meet, opera house for speaking, a fifty dollar orator's medal and fifty dollars worth of track medals.

They are well fixed to entertain the contests, having an auditorium that will seat twelve hundred people and an excellent place to hold the baseball and track contests.

On the whole the event promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the association. Prof. Burton is arranging with the railroad company for a special train and a good rate is assured, thus enabling all the Millsaps boys to go and show the people in northern Mississippi that they are there to win.

DORMITORY to be REBUILT

Major Millsaps and Dr. Watkins
Let Contract.

Work has just begun on the rebuilding of the prep dormitory and ere long it will be replaced by a building equipped in most every way better than it was before the fire.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees, Major Millsaps and Dr. Watkins were appointed as a building committee and they at once began to lay plans for an early completion of the work.

Although some friends of Millsaps had hoped that there would be some change in the building plans of the Millsaps building, it has seemed best to replace the dormitory along the same lines as it was before.

Although the old structure will be used it will have a new appearance as another wall of brick will be added from the lowest foundation to the top. The inner wood work will be renewed and the building furnished and equipped in the best modern style.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT DELAYED.

On account of the recent rainy weather the tennis tournament has been delayed, but it will be resumed again as soon as the tennis courts become dry enough. The tournament started off with some mighty good games and some equally as good ones are promised for the near future. Prof. Burton says they hope to get all the sets played off within the next two weeks.

Hon. H. V. Watkins, came out to chapel last week to invite the boys to attend the demonstration meeting given to Senator Vardaman at the Century Thursday night.

Dr. H. M. King Speaks on "A Vision of God."

Of the many treats that have come to the members of the Association, none was more enjoyed than the program of last Friday night, when the Rev. H. M. King, of the Baptist Church of the city, discussed "A Vision of God." The speaker is one of the best in the city and is well known to the students of the college, being quite a young man himself. This was his first appearance at the Millsaps Y. M. C. A., but those who heard him on this occasion trust that we shall have the pleasure of hearing him again.

The speaker read first the tenth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, with its story of the visions of Peter and Cornelius, and called attention to the fact that for each of these visions there was a duty straightway to be performed. From this we readily come to the general proposition, namely: That for every vision there is a task, that for every glimpse into the world of inspiration there is enjoined the duty of carrying that glimpse to an unknowing world. Farther attention was called to the thought that God could give to every man a vision if he wished to do it; and that God wishes to reveal himself to men if they will only let him.

The central thought of the discussion was taken from the first verse of the first chapter of Ezekiel: "As I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, the heavens were opened and I saw visions of God." Proceeding, the speaker said that the darkest hour in the history of a nation or an individual, was when they had lost the power of vision. The darkest hour in the history of Israel was this moment when Ezekiel becomes aware that the people of Israel have lost their visions of eternal truth. But, the question comes to us, can God reveal himself to us in this materialistic age in which we live? We can answer only by citing the workings of man's hands such as the phonograph which enables us to hear the tones of men who have been dead for ages past, or on the other hand the wireless telegraph system by which a man in mid-ocean can send messages to either shore. If the creations of imperfect man be of so great power, where shall we place the limit of the infinite power of man's Creator?

Only the men and women in the world who have had great visions, have done noble deeds in the world and have left a noble heritage to it. A vision is the ability to see, to see the possibilities that lie out in the great field of human endeavor. Columbus saw a vision of a western route to an eastern world and coupled with it the achievement necessary for success and gave to the fading flowers of European glory the dazzling grandeur of a new world. Edison saw a mighty vision and set the world throbbing with music. James Watts saw in the simple operation of the steam in the tea-kettle the possibilities of its latent power. Moody saw a vision of a lost world and of a redeeming Christ and so gave his life with wonderful effect to the reconciliation of God and man. Moses was not able to help his people out of the land of Egypt until he had spent forty years in a strange land and there caught a vision of the mighty work which he must do. Paul turned his misdirected zeal from the persecution of the Christians to a lifelong devotion to the cause of Christ only after he had seen a mighty vision.

One important point which time forbade to discuss fully was the voice that came with the vision and the bidding of man to his task. A beautiful story was told of the woman who, as she lay dying, said: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil," since she had caught a glimpse of the greater vision.

The vision and the voice work together for the destruction of self. Shall it not be so in us. May we not answer the world's call for men by laying aside self and yielding to the voice and vision that comes to us, captives of sin by the river Chebar?

All of these men are showing wonderful ability to play the outfield. They are fast, have splendid arms and know the game thoroughly.

With the above mentioned material to choose from we are bound to get out a strong team. Some of the names rank among the best ball players in the state.

Now just a gentle hint to the rooters. Millsaps has one of the best chances, or in fact, the only chance she has ever had to play for the state championship at the M. I. O. A. meet. All she needs is your support in every way, for with this she is bound to win.

LAMAR SOCIETY.

Enthusiastic Meeting.

There is no question but that the Lamar Society held its best meeting of this session, Friday night. President Scott being absent, Vice-President C. H. Blewett presided over the meeting. In response to a request by the President, the Secretary read the program whereby it was found that the Declaimer and the Orator were absent. However, the time that might have been consumed by the Declaimer and the Orator was very well used by the debaters.

The question for discussion was: "Resolved, That the death penalty law should be abolished." Not only is this a well balanced subject, but it is a live subject; one that should not only be considered by a literary society alone, but by the people as a whole.

The affirmative was upheld by Hobbs and Perry; the negative by Honeycutt and Jas. McClure. All of the speakers were well prepared and the speeches that were delivered by them will long be remembered.

Judging from the enthusiasm shown by the members who were present, the Lamars have decided to make up for the time lost in the early part of the session. It is earnestly hoped that every member will attend regularly from now until the close of this session.

The committee that was appointed to arrange a special program has completed a most interesting program to be rendered tonight. The public is cordially invited to attend. The society hopes to give a clear demonstration of the good work it is doing.

"Sister" Harris visited home folks at Vicksburg last week.

GALLOWAYS HAVE AMUSING PROGRAM.

Special Program Planned.

The Galloways did not have their regular program Friday night, however an extemporaneous debate furnished food for thought and merriment to the members who were present.

The debate was on the question: "Resolved, That the horns of a cow are more useful than the tail." It is not often that the Galloways allow their debaters to indulge in debating such a light and frivolous subject, but anyone that heard the speakers on this subject Friday night might easily have wondered why these usually serious students didn't turn comedian and go on the stage. The affirmative was discussed by Melvin Johnson and Jean Morse while Vete Crockett and Silverstein poured forth bombasts of argument for the negative.

Plans for a special program tonight were discussed and the public is guaranteed a most interesting meeting. All the members were requested to bring a lady out to the meeting.

SUPPORT THE TEAMS.

The number of candidates out trying for the baseball and track teams, although not as large as it might be, is good. The determination with which these men are working for a place on the team shows that they have the proper spirit that will enable them to develop into a fast, snappy team.

Coach Peaster is working the baseball boys hard, and in doing so deserves the commendation and support both of the players and the student body at large. He is right in making them work for a place on the team and no man who is not willing to undergo the necessary preliminary practice and training should be given a berth.

This work has as its ultimate end the putting out of a team for Millsaps that will be able, not only to hold its own with other teams, but to defeat them. We believe that Coach Peaster and the boys who are working for the team are going to do their part towards this end. As to whether or not they succeed and the baseball and track teams are a success will be largely with the student body—their success depending on the loyalty and spirit with which the boys back the team with their encouragement and financial backing.

There is no reason why this should not be the banner year in athletics at Millsaps. We started off well by tying A. & M. for the state championship in basket ball and if the fellows will but support the baseball and track teams as they did the basket ball team, we can put the purple and white banner in the forefront in other contests also. Think it over, fellows, and let's do our part.

CULTIVATE THE READING HABIT.

We have heard it said by good authorities that the man who did practically nothing during his college career but learn to play on the football team and form the reading habit, got more lasting benefit from his school life than one who clung tenaciously to the eternal grind of class-room routine. While we are not in any way advocating the abolition of the text-book, yet we cannot help but believe that there is a great deal of truth in the above statement. We believe that a man should take part in athletics because the human mechanism demands a certain amount of fresh air and exercise, and no man's mind can be properly developed unless his body is developed proportionately. In the same way, we believe that no matter how many text-books a man may have studied or how many ologies, or languages he may have mastered, his education is by no means complete unless he has formed the reading habit.

No one will question the benefits to be derived from the reading habit. Stevenson tells us in his essays that he learned to write by reading and imitating the style of others. Shakespeare, Keats, Burns, and so on through the list of all the great writers, were pupils of the same school. Nothing is more developing or broadening to a man's mind; nothing gives him a greater insight into the wonders and mysteries of nature; nothing brings him into closer touch with his fellow-men and nothing will be of more genuine pleasure and essential value to a man in any profession of life than the reading habit.

Reading gives a man the essential note and the right word. Whether he is writing, making a big speech or engaged in conversation, he is hampered unless he has broadened his mind and increased his vocabulary and store of knowledge by having read a certain number of standard authors.

Did you ever notice how some people seem to know everything; seem to always have a good idea to advance on any subject; how they always seem to have the proper word for the proper place as if legions of words swarmed to their call, and dozens of turns of phrases simultaneously bid for their choice? We are sure you have; we meet these people every day. Next time you notice these qualities in a person, just find out if he is not a great reader. The odds are ten to one that your investigation will prove that he is.

But when should the reading habit be formed? We answer, as early as possible. By all means during the college career, for it is an accepted fact that not one man in a hundred forms the reading habit after he leaves school.

We are indeed fortunate in having at our disposal one of the best libraries in the South. Thousands of books have been purchased especially for us. They are ours to use at any and all seasons, and should be read until the covers literally drop from their sides. Yet statistics show that the number of books drawn out per capita by the students is exceedingly small and a number of our students never even think of entering the Library. What is the cause of this?

No doubt some will say that their studies take up all their time and they have no time to read, but this is worse than no excuse. Generally, the man who tells you that he has no time for anything but his studies is one who spends more time getting ready to do a thing than he spends in doing it. He spends as much time lighting his pipe and gazing out of his window as he does in preparing his work.

If you have not formed the reading habit, let us urge you to do so at once. Form the acquaintance of the masters of literature; become familiar with and learn to love and cherish the work of good authors; make books your friends; abide with them and you will find them not only a source of great pleasure and profit, but "a friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

We notice from the Union University Cardinal and Cream, one of the best exchanges that comes to our desk, that the Union students granted their faculty a holiday on Washington's birthday and had a grand parade over town, but that's no sign the Millsappers are going to try it again.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE.

Manager Boswell Gives Out Tentative Schedule.

Although the baseball schedule has not yet been entirely completed and some dates will probably be changed, the Purple and White prints below a tentative schedule that will resemble the final schedule in most respects.

Boswell has had quite a time with the schedule this season as he had one schedule practically completed when the University of Mississippi and Howard College got out of the S. I. A. A. and necessitated the making of new arrangements for four or five series. However, he hopes to have it completed at a very early date and if his plans materialize it will be as follows:

Millsaps Preps—

Jackson League, March 21, 22.
Mississippi College at Jackson, March 27, 28, 29.

State Normal College at Jackson, April 3, 4, 5.

Union University at Jackson, Tenn., April 10, 11, 12.

A. & M. at Starkville, April 15, 16.

A. & M. at Jackson, April 21.

M. U. S. at Jackson, April 22, 23, 24.

Union University at Jackson, April 28, 29, 30.

Mississippi College at Clinton, May 1, 2, 3.

Probably Millsaps and A. & M. at Aberdeen, May 9.

I. C. Enochs '11, of the city, was on the campus one day last week.

SPECIAL EDITION MISS. COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

The editors of the Mississippi College Magazine have just issued at a cost of about $450, a special edition, known as the alumni edition of their magazine. It is gotten out in the interest of the endowment fund which they are desirous of raising.

Congratulations are due them on the success of their work. The edition is one of which they may be justly proud. A short history of the college, portraits and sketches of the members of the faculty and buildings together with strong editorials, and numerous well written short stories and other articles of interest to college students, go to make up what is no doubt the best issue of the magazine that has ever been published.

Judge Albert Hall Whitfield will preach to the class at his residence on Fortification street next Sunday at four o'clock. Let every member of the class come out and hear a real sermon.

Much to the regret of his friends, Judge Harper is still indisposed. It is hoped, however, that he will soon be able to return to Jackson.

Captain Frank Johnston, assistant attorney general, will deliver an address to the class at an early date. His address will deal largely with laws and lawmakers of Reconstruction times.

This is a progressive age. Judge Featherstone got a new conception of the word, "epigram," the other day when some descendant of Ham asked that his epigram be made as short as possible. The judge saw straightway that he was in the presence of a gentleman and scholar. Hence the following: "Epigram?" "Yas-sar, jedge, aint a epigram a short sentence about which we kin giv' considerable thinkin'?" He got thirty days.

P. A. Roper, the efficient business manager of the Mississippi College Magazine, was on the campus recently conferring with Prof. Burton about securing a special train to carry the Millsaps and Mississippi College boys to Aberdeen. They are working on the proposition and no doubt the two schools will make the trip together as usual. We are glad to go with Mississippi College, but here's hoping they won't be able to sing, "Pope Won," again.

Grand Opera Stars Choose TUXEDO

The favorite tobacco of the world's best singers

LEO SLEZAK

Leo Slezak, famous for his singing of the title role in "Otello," says:

"Tuxedo means tobacco superiority. It easily holds first place in my opinion on account of its wonderful mildness and fragrance."

Leo Slezak

PUTNAM GRISWOLD

Putnam Griswold, known to all opera lovers as "König Marke" in "Tristan und Isolde," says:

"A smoke of Tuxedo adds zest to my work. I swear by it and endorse it above all other tobaccos."

Putnam Griswold

ADAMO DIDUR

Adamo Didur, famous bass, well-known as "Marcel" in "The Huguenots," says:

"I've compared Tuxedo with other tobaccos, much to the advantage of Tuxedo. It leads by a wide margin in purity and mildness."

Adamo Didur

THE world's great singers, the bright stars of grand opera, men whose voices are their fortunes, must have confidence in the tobacco they smoke, must choose a tobacco that is mild and fragrant, a tobacco that has no harmful effect on their throats.

Leading singers at the Metropolitan Opera House during the current season — Leo Slezak, Karl Jörn, Dinh Gilly, Adamo Didur, Putnam Griswold, Herbert Witherspoon — find Tuxedo the one tobacco they can smoke with thorough enjoyment and absolute safety.

Tuxedo cannot sting, bite, or irritate the delicate membranes of the mouth or throat.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Skillfully treated under the famous "Tuxedo process," Tuxedo burns slowly, and affords a cool, mild, pleasant smoke.

Leading men in every walk of life testify to the soothing, energizing, helpful influence of Tuxedo. Business men find Tuxedo restful. Authors and journalists smoke it while they write. Doctors enjoy it and recommend it. Lawyers, ministers, and others, use it regularly.

If you try Tuxedo for a month and cut out other smokes, you will find that you are getting the utmost satisfaction and enjoyment possible out of your smoking, and at the end of the month your general health will have improved.

YOU CAN BUY TUXEDO EVERYWHERE

KARL JÖRN

Karl Jörn, who sings the role of "The King's Son" in "Koenigskinder," says:

"Tuxedo is the ideal smoke in my opinion. If you find your energy sagging, try a pipeful of Tuxedo. It's a wonderful bracer."

Karl Jörn

HERBERT WITHERSPOON

Herbert Witherspoon, celebrated as "The King" in "Lohengrin," says:

"Tuxedo is a good, wholesome tobacco with a mildness and fragrance all its own. It adds many degrees to my pipe pleasure."

Dinh Gilly, the famous "Tonio" in "Pagliacci," says:

"Pipe smoking gives added pleasure when the pipe is filled with Tuxedo. Tuxedo provides more keen enjoyment than any other tobacco I know."

PREPS DEFEAT HIGH SCHOOL.

Whitson and Ely Star in Game Which Ends in 18-10 Victory for Preps.

The preps defeated the Jackson High School in a closely contested game of basket ball last week. The game was a good one all the way through, both sides making some spectacular plays and staying with the ball all the time.

The Jackson boys numbered among their number some good athletes—fellows who are good in most any kind of athletic sports and the preps were indeed fortunate in defeating them.

The preps played in better form than they have exhibited on any former occasion this season displaying good team work both in advancing the ball and defending their goals.

The stars for the High School were Ball and Mosely, and those for the preps Whitson and Ely.

The final score was 18-10 in favor of the preps.

The line-up was as follows:

High School.	Preps.
Jones	Ely
Center
Ball	Willingham
Forward
McDowell	Wheeler
Forward
Smith	Whitson
Guard
Mosely	Davis
Guard

Time of Halves—8 minutes.

Goals—Wheeler 1, Whitson 2, Ely 2, Ball 3, McDowell 2.

The baseball team looks like a sure winner and if some people don't look out Millsaps will not only play at the contest but will—you know.

If you are awakened in the wee small hours of the night by hideous howls and noises do not become frightened. It's only the freshmen training for the medal contest.

SPECIAL MEETING TONIGHT

Lamars Will have Interesting Program—Public Invited.

The Lamar Literary Society has prepared a special program for tonight and promises to give something good to all who attend. The Millsaps orchestra has kindly consented to give the benefit of its music, and those who heard it at the Galloway meeting last Friday night know that this in itself will be a treat worth coming for.

The best speakers and debaters in the society have been placed on the program. All of above have proven their ability on previous occasions.

The Lamars are expecting this to be the best meeting of the year and everyone is cordially invited to come and bring a friend.

The following is the program for the evening:

Declaimer—Hillman.

Orator—Boswell.

Debate: "Resolved, That the powers should intervene in the Balkan war."

Affirmative—Olin Ray, J. R. Gathings, J. T. Weems.

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.

Galloways Have Big Night—Special Program a Success—Orchestra Adds Much to Evening's Enjoyment.

The friends of the Galloway Literary Society were given a real treat last Friday night where they gathered in the college chapel to enjoy the special program gotten up by the Galloways to show the public the class of work which they are doing. The Galloways ably demonstrated to the large crowd that was present that they are able to conduct their society and carry out their programs in a strong and commendable manner.

VARSITY SWAMPS HIGH SCHOOL

Practice Game Played On Cold Day—Team Shows Up Well—Many Improvements Noted.

Last Friday afternoon, there was a large crowd out to witness the first practice game of the year for the Varsity team. The game was full of ginger despite the fact that the evening was cold, and that there was a raw north wind blowing across the diamond.

When the dust had cleared away at the close of the seventh inning it was discovered that the Varsity had run up a total score of 17, while the High School had only 1. This score was made in the first inning, when Bernie Smith knocked a long fly, which was caught by the wind and carried over Jackson's head. Before he could recover it, Smith had circled the bases for a home run. There was only one other hit made by the High School and this is credited to Otto Williams.

The Millsappers hit Taylor freely, but not until the fourth inning were they able to circle the bases freely. The only run made up to this time was made on a homer, by Cassibry.

However, in the fourth they manage to get three men on bases, then Jones, with his war club, swatted the ball for a homer. Cassibry followed him with a three bagger and before the slaughter could be stopped three more runs were made. In the fifth inning there was no scoring by either side. In the sixth, however, the fireworks broke loose, the team batted around, and only got out because they were tired running around the bases. They made a total of six runs, while in the seventh three more were made. This making up a total of 17 runs.

The Varsity this year is composed of a bunch of stars, and each one vied with the other in showing their brilliance, but they all worked together with dexterity and skill. It is conceded by all that Captain Cassibry will be the best catcher of college ball in the state. He has a cool head and will handle his men to the best advantage. As for our pitchers, they are the best on the market. The cold weather did not permit an exhibition of their steam and curves, but as it was, Harris struck out thirteen men out of eighteen that faced him, and allowed only two hits, while in two innings Ward struck out five and did not allow any hits.

The infield is faster this year than ever before, this being brought about by the introduction of two fast men there. Brown at short, and Murrah at second.

Galloway at first looked good, he handled everything with ease and was in the game at all times. This makes the third year that he has held the keystone bag against all comers.

At third base Condry showed up well, he handled the ball well and had his eye on the ball, when batting, securing a two bagger.

The race for second base is a warm one between Holliman and Murrah. Both are good men.

The outfield is good this year, two of the old regulars are out there, Jones and Jackson, while centerfield is being contested for by Hawthorne and Backstrom. Both of these men showed up well in the practice game, each securing the same amount of hits.

Too much praise cannot be given to Coach Peaster, who has labored hard with the men. He has shown what a good coach can do with a bunch of raw material. Taking the team as a whole, Millsaps is proud of it. They showed their ability to bunch hits and to work together.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Bishop Kilgo to Preach Commencement Sermon—Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh Delivers Address—Seniors to Participate in Impressive Ceremonies.

Plans are being made for one of the biggest and best commencements in the history of Millsaps. The commencement sermon will be preached by Bishop John C. Kilgo at the college chapel on the morning of June the eighth. Bishop Kilgo is one of the most noted divines in the Methodist church and an orator and minister of great ability.

On the morning of the ninth representatives of the senior class will contest for the senior oratorical medal, and announcements of the winners of other prizes will be made.

The commencement address will be made on the morning of June the tenth by Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Fitzhugh is an orator of well known ability and the student body are looking forward to a great treat in his address. As is known to most of the students he is the senior member of the firm of Fitzhugh and Briggs of Memphis, who have just recently won the celebrated case of bishops of the Methodist Church against the trustees of Vanderbilt University. Mr. Fitzhugh is a brother of Mrs. Bishop Murrah. He also married one of Maj. Millsaps daughters. These two facts make him of particular interest to Millsaps students.

In addition to the above programs the senior class is preparing some exercises that will be of an appropriate character in bidding their alma mater farewell.

The Thirteen Club held a very interesting meeting last Monday night. A volume of college poetry was discussed and greatly enjoyed by the members present.

DR. J. M. SULLIVAN LECTURES ON "A VITAL FAITH."

The Association is to be congratulated on the several excellent lectures we have had this year from the prominent business men and educators of our state. Promptly at seven o'clock on last Friday evening quite a number of the students together with several visitors assembled in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, for the regular weekly exercises. We were very fortunate in having as speaker of the evening a man who plays a strong and active part in the Y. M. C. A. work of our college, and whose daily walk among us together with his daily conversation with us, stand out as a clear proof of his capability and fitness to advise and direct us concerning many of the problems of life—Dr. J. M. Sullivan.

Dr. Sullivan had selected as his subject, "A Vital Faith." He read as a lesson some verses from the third chapter of Titus. If one part of this lesson was stressed more than another it was the third verse which reads as follows: "For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving diverse lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another."

Here the speaker showed that the right sort of pleasure and recreation is a thing to be sought for; but he also made it clear that no one should be a seeker of vain pleasures.

Then taking up the main subject, "A Vital Faith," he pointed us to the high accomplishments possible to him who possesses a strong faith in himself, in his fellowman, and in God. He also showed us that faith is the key to all high aspirations and noble ambitions; that only by faith in the justice of their cause and the purity of their purpose men are inspired to do noble deeds. Through all this was woven the idea and the truth that faith without works is dead. Our cause may be a just one, our faith may be a strong one, but unless we have works, unless we make an effort we shall not accomplish.

In the end, it was made clear to everyone present that he who would accomplish in life must have a strong faith in his ability to accomplish and must also put forth a strong effort toward accomplishing; that he who would be inspired to do noble deeds must have a strong faith in his cause; that he who would live a noble Christian life must have a strong faith in God and the cause of Christianity.

One of the most enjoyable treats of the evening was the delightful music furnished by the orchestra composed of college boys and girls. Those furnishing the music were Miss Edmonds, pianist; Herbert, violinist; Perry, violinist; Capps, cornet; Edmonds,——; Watkins, mandolin.

The program was a good one from start to finish and every one had prepared his part as carefully as he would have done for the anniversary occasion.

The first thing under the head of literary exercises was a declamation by R. T. Henry. Henry was well prepared for the event and declaimed in a most creditable and laudable manner.

F. M. Tatom was then called for as orator and rendered an oration which was entirely in keeping with the excellence of the rest of the program.

The debate was on an interesting subject that is occupying the attention of the world today.

The subject was, "Resolved, that the present revolution in Mexico is justifiable."

Messrs. Morse, Crockett and Broom were the advocates of the justification theory and showed that they had been keeping up with the events and were well prepared to uphold their side.

No less urgent were Broomfield, Harmon and Wroten in advocating the claims of the negative side.

An interesting impromptu debate was then engaged in greatly to the amusement of the visitors present.

The Lamars held no meeting Friday night but joined in in swelling the crowd that attended the Galloway celebration.

Jerry Ryan, whom the old students remember as the winner of the two-mile race here in '11, is captain of the track team at Centenary College. They are arranging for a track meet to be held in Shreveport, La., between the colleges of Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas and Millsaps will probably be represented.

PREPS DEFEATED SATURDAY.

Saturday afternoon Coach Peaster's bunch engaged in a little practice game with the Preps. Coach Quin brought the Preps out with the determination of giving the Varsity a good game and the score indicates that they did so. The score was eight to five in favor of the Varsity. Errors were plentiful on both sides and a great deal of time was taken up by Coach Peaster telling the boys how they ought to do. The Preps showed up well and it is believed that Quin will turn out a good team.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

While we are not given to knocking, we must say that the response given to the appeal to the students to attend the entertainment for the piano fund was about as poor an exhibition of college spirit as we have ever seen.

This lack of interest manifested on the part of the student body, we believe, could have come from only two sources: The one that the entertainment came on a school night when the students were busily engaged with their work; the other that the students neglected to go just through pure and unadulterated laziness. We hope that it was occasioned by the former.

As we said before, these are the only reasons that we can deduce for this condition. It could not have been on account of the character of the performance, for all who have ever heard these gifted people know that anything given under their supervision could be nothing short of the best.

It could not have been on account of the cause, for we know of no more worthy cause for which a student might spend his money. Lastly, it surely was not on account of the price of admission, for if there is a student in Millsaps College who is too close to part from twenty-five cents to promote a good cause and at the same time get the benefit of an entertainment that would ordinarily cost him a dollar, he should be waited on by his fellow students.

Mrs. Watkins has done a great service to the college in buying this piano for us and it is nothing but right and just that we should show our appreciation of her thoughtfulness by helping her in her efforts to pay for it.

We feel confident that the students will respond nobly to any appeals that she may make to them in the future.

ON GENERAL CONDUCT ABOUT THE CAMPUS.

It is not our purpose to try to dictate what the conduct about the campus shall be, but it is the duty and the sphere of every good newspaper to attack the evils that exist in its community. We think that the students of this college are as orderly and gentlemanly as those of any college of which we have any knowledge, more so than those of a great many. But that some things, some objectionable things, things that could be omitted and not take any of the pleasure or benefit from the college life of those who do them, are done here no one will for an instant deny.

One of the evils above mentioned is the habit of throwing peanut hulls on the walks of the campus and on the floors of the buildings. Now, we realize that peanuts are good. The delicious flavor extracted from them is unparalleled in its effects on the organs of taste. And we do not deny that the rich sustenance derived from them is welcomed by the too often lightly fed stomach. But we maintain that the privacy of one's own chamber is the proper place to masticate them. Besides being the proper place, an additional advantage would be that you would not be harrassed on every side by the familiar request, 'Give me a peanut.'

Another objectionable habit is a very old and a very much to be lamented one: that of cutting up the desks and writing on the walls. The objectionable qualities of these are too well known to need discussion. One special phase, however, we wish to call attention to, and that is the habit of writing gibes about the professors in public places. These do not hurt the professors, they are men of too large a caliber to take any notice of them, knowing the only source from which they come, but they do hurt the men who put them up there. They lower them, if not in their own estimation, certainly in the estimation of all their right thinking fellows.

We are here to better and build up ourselves, not to degenerate. It would be pitiable, indeed, if any of us should deteriorate into the tribe of mammals of canine disposition. We don't know what it indicates, but certainly it is almost impossible for any number of Millsaps boys to gather together in chapel or anywhere else on the campus without there being some among them who insist on imitating the familiar sounds frequently emitted by the animals above referred to. This is unfortunate in the extreme. It is especially embarrassing when we have visitors. It is also of some concern to us what our neighbors think about us. We suspect some of them are frequently disturbed from their peaceful slumbers as one can generally hear these sounds at almost any time during the night.

Now, fellows, let's cut these objectionable things out, if not for ourselves, for the love we have for our college.

"A LENTEN RECITAL."

Mrs. Alfred Franklin Smith Gives Beautiful Recital to Millsaps College Boys and Their Friends.

On Thursday night of the sixth, Mrs. Alfred Franklin Smith gave an exquisite recital to a Millsaps College audience in the college auditorium. Mrs. Smith had associated with her Mrs. Willis David Hannah, pianiste; Mrs. Chess Bond Wymond, violiniste; Mr. Albert B. Philp, clarionetist. The audience thus, had four artists before them, and their talent and presence captivated everyone present.

Because of the thought lying back of this recital, the sentiment animating those interested and because of the high grade of talent which made every number a joy and an inspiration, the whole evening was of unusual interest and charm, and the audience was simply carried away with pleasure and enthusiasm. In arranging the program, which was called, "A Lenten Recital," the four-leaf clover was used as the emblem, and in the introductory talk which Mrs. Smith made to the students, she referred to this, and hoped that the musicians were bringing "luck." She said, however, that "luck" might be found by all of them who were willing to work and study and sacrifice for its sake.

Mrs. Smith had grouped her numbers in four "Songs for the day," three "Songs for Eastertide," and in the four "Songs of Pathos," her own arrangement and interpretation of "The Rosary" met with cordial appreciation.

Mrs. Wymond's violin numbers were most exquisite, her Traumerie, especially, finding its way into the hearts of the hearers; and Mr. Philp, always a delightful performer, surpassed himself on this occasion.

It was through the instrumentality of Mrs. A. F. Watkins, the wife of our president, that this recital was secured. The proceeds were used on the payments on the piano which Mrs. Watkins bought for the college sometime past.

The following program was rendered:

SHAKESPEARIAN PLAY.

"As You Like It," to Be Given by Students—Miss Smith and Jack Gaddis Assume Leading Role.

Prof. Noble is hard at work now getting things ready to pull off an innovation in the form of a Shakespearian play.

The well known play, "As You Like It," will be given under the same stage directions as it is played by the Ben Greet players. The entire cast of characters has not been selected yet but Miss Smith will take the part of Rosalind and Jack Gaddis the part of Orlando.

The play promises to be one of the biggest successes of the college year and its presentation is anxiously awaited by the student body and friends in Jackson.

PREP BASKET BALL TEAM ENTERTAINED.

The most delightful evening spent by the boys on the Millsaps prep basket ball team while on their trip was, when they were entertained at the hospitable home of Mrs. J. T. Coney, of Hazlehurst.
Here these young gentlemen were introduced to some of Hazlehurst's charming girls and were made royally welcome. Nothing could have been more delightful than the hours spent in such a manner and the lovely courtesy extended to the team by Mrs. Coney and her daughters is one which will not soon be forgotten.

Although no schedule games have been played yet, the prep team puts up a great deal better showing than it did at the first of last season. With big Pearman on first and little Pearman behind the bat the team will be a great deal stronger than it was last year.

"Cram," for the "specials" are coming soon.

The Authors Club was entertained by Miss Stella McGehee on last Wednesday evening and the meeting was as usual profitable and delightful.

Dr. Watkins (in Logic): "Mr. Weems, what is a phenomena?"

Mr. Weems: "Well, sir, it is something strange like—a cow sitting on a thistle singing like a mocking bird."

Well! Well! No one got sick, and we did have the Lyceum entertainment Wednesday evening. It was simply fine, and was enjoyed by all.

Young Lady (walking down Capitol street with Frazier): "Why, now, don't those oranges smell good."

"Frazier (excitedly): "Yes, let's walk along a little closer to them, so you can smell them better."

Wm. Myers Colmers, of last year's sophomore class, now one of the prominent educators of the state, was on the campus Saturday and Sunday. "Bill" is the same good fellow as of old, and his many friends were delighted to see him. "Kiddus I." Cain left Wednesday for home where he will spend a couple of weeks taking a rest before returning to school to take up his many duties.

The Commercial Appeal of recent date contained the interesting news that "Fish" Rodgers of last year's soph. class, tired of single blessedness, had become a benedict. Congratulations and best wishes, "Fish."

LAW NOTES.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather Judge Whitfield was forced to postpone Sunday's sermon to the class. He will give it, however, on next Sunday, if circumstances permit.

The great and only Jas. Marion Morse, Jr., lawyer et-cetera, was transacting legal business in Jackson the first days of the week. Morse is located at Gulfport and is doing well.

Mr. C. E. Johnson, of Union, Miss., was in the city of legal business Tuesday. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of both law and literary departments of our college and it is gratifying to his old college friends to know that he is rapidly forging ahead.

Much to the regret of his many friends and classmates, Mr. Grady Butler has withdrawn from school. The unfortunate killing of his wife's father last week necessitates his going to take charge of the business. It is not Butler's purpose to give up law, so we shall hear from him again.

As to the Moot Court, we are having very excellent meeting under the guidance of Mr. G. Edward Williams, a prominent Jackson lawyer. Mr. Williams has certainly been generous to the class

A man driving along a street in a North Carolina town was struck by a baseball, receiving injuries from which he died. On the trial of a suit for damages against the municipality it was proved that the village boys had played in the streets for two years without interference. The supreme court affirmed a judgment of non-suit on the ground that the municipality was not responsible for the negligence of its officials, whether or not there was an ordinance preventing ball playing.

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts had a case involving a dog, an ice wagon and an automobile. The auto and the ice wagon were passing on a public highway, bound in opposite directions, when the dog ran out barking at the auto. He went under a wheel and the auto skidded in front of the ice wagon. The ice wagon horse reared and came down on the auto, causing injuries for which the owner of the dog was sued. The trial judge held that the dog was the cause of the injury, and his ruling is sustained by the highest court.

Some interesting points of law from here and there:

The question of whether a juror should be disqualified who does not believe in future punishments or in the Bible has been decided by the Supreme Court of Iowa in favor of the juror. The trial judge in the case of the State vs. Jackson refused to discharge the juror on the ground that because of his religious beliefs he could not take an oath that would be "binding upon his conscience." The court holds that "under our law any person otherwise competent may take an oath and act as a juror, no matter what his religious belief, provided that the oath is in a form which persons who take it regard as binding upon their conscience."

The college baseball team defeated the prep school team in a practice game Saturday. The score being 5 to 7.

BASE BALL SEASON. WILL HAVE A GRAND ATHLETIC RALLY. PREPS WIN DEBATE.

Team Ready for Opening of Season—Jackson League Today, Mississippi College Next Week.

After exerting every effort and at the same time keeping his eagle eye wide open, Coach Harry Peaster has at last rounded into shape a winning team for Millsaps. It is due to his untiring efforts to instruct and the willingness of the boys to learn that he was able to put out a good team, for he has imparted a vast amount of base ball knowledge to the boys. If the team does not hold together after his departure, the blame can not be placed on Peaster, because he certainly has told and showed the game to the boys in every detail.

Such, however, will not be the case, for every man on the team realizes that he is a valuable asset to the team and intends to give everything there is in him towards helping to make a winning team.

Last week the team did not get to practice but three afternoons owing to the fact that it rained nearly every day, but this week the boys have had a hard workout every afternoon and it is remarkable to see how every man has improved.

Next Thursday, Friday and Saturday three games are to be played with Mississippi College, which will mark the opening of the season. Both teams will just be out from under two good coaches and are expected to be in first class shape, which of course, means that hard fought battles will ensue.

The diamond is being overhauled and will be in fine condition. The infield has been worked over and an inch and a half of sand has been added.

Monster Mass Meeting, Bubbling Over With Enthusiasm and Spirit, to be Held Night Before Mississippi College Plays Here—Orchestra Will Supply Music—Call for Every Millsapper to Be Present.

The night of Wednesday, March the twenty-sixth, will be a big night at Millsaps College. Plans are under way whereby one of the biggest, grandest and most enthusiastic mass meetings ever pulled off at Millsaps will take place in the chapel that night.

As everybody knows Mississippi College opens up here on the twenty-seventh for a three game series of baseball and as everybody knows Millsaps, without any ifs and ands about it, has got to win those three games, and every student of Millsaps College who has the least spark of college spirit and pride about him has got to help her do this.

Everybody from the lowest class prep to the most solemn member of the law class must be present at the mass meeting. It is going to be a corker and no one can afford to miss it.

Although the particulars of the meeting have not as yet been arranged it will very probably take the form of mass meetings held in the chapel in former years with the exception that it will be bigger and better than any other held before.

The faculty will be on hand and a number of them will be called on to speak. The members of the ball team will also be given a chance to say a few words. Others will be there with a line of talk that will help to instil spirit into the team and the college in general.

College songs and yells will take up a large part of the evening and best of all the college orchestra will be there to put life and spirit into the meeting with some good snappy music.

The students are looking forward to the occasion with anticipations of a most enjoyable and delightful evening, nor will they be disappointed as this meeting will be worthy to go down in history of Millsaps and remain in the memory of Millsaps students so long as they may live.

Clegg and Golding Victorious

The Millsaps preps pulled off one of the best debates heard in the college chapel this session, on Monday night, when they downed the debating team from French Camps.

Both teams were well prepared for the event and went into it with all their might, but the preps had their adversaries bested at every stage of the game. This was evidenced by the fact that although French Camps got one vote for the debate, Millsaps got every vote for best speech and best speaker.

The program was a most creditable one and the debaters acquitted themselves in such a manner that they might easily have been taken for college debaters.

Prof. Noble acted as president of the occasion, Willingham as secretary and Clark and Bufkin as time keepers.

The question for debate was, "Resolved, That Mississippi should adopt the Initiative and Referendum." French Camps upheld the affirmative while the preps were staunch defenders of the negative side.

The first speaker on the affirmative was Pierson, who made a strong appeal for the Initiative and Referendum on the grounds that it would furnish a more democratic government.

Next came Clegg on the negative, and before he had gone very far it was quite evident that he was not only a speaker of exceptional ability, but that he had a speech that was chuck full of clear, lucid arguments outlined and summarized in a perfect manner.

That Clegg made a fine impression was clearly shown by the fact that two of the judges awarded him best speech and voted for him as best speaker of the evening.

Bennett then came forward for the affirmative and delivered an excellent speech which was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Golding, the last speaker on the negative also proved to be a gun of a big calibre, for he bombarded the arguments of the opposing speakers and added many points to aid in a victory for the negative.

The rejoinders were short and spirited, both sides contesting every point for all that it was worth.

When it was announced that the negative had won pandemonium broke loose and the preps and their college friends literally woke the dead in their effort to show their pleasure, while the victorious debaters were swept off their feet by their enthusiastic friends in their efforts to shower congratulations on them.

As Prof. Noble predicted at the beginning of the contest, the French Camps boys proved themselves formidable rivals and the preps deserve unstinted praise in defeating them.

The French Camps boys, both on and off the stage, made a very favorable impression by their courteous manner and we hope they will come to Millsaps again. Clegg and Golding have demonstrated that they have exceptional talents and much is expected of them when they come up in college.

The result of the debate at C. H. A. could not be had at the time of going to press, but will appear in next issue.

LYCEUM EVENT QUITE A SUCCESS.

Mr. Trip's Performance Highly Entertaining.

On Wednesday night of the twelfth the fourth Lyceum attraction was given before an exceptionally large audience considering the inclemency of the weather. The attraction was a reading by Professor Walter Trip of Dicken's popular novel, "Martin Chuzzlewit."

Professor Trip's large audience was due partly to the great hit he made last year in "Twelfth Night," before the Shakespearean Club of Jackson. Very few who heard him last year failed to hear him this time. Millsaps was interested in him because he is the former teacher of Mrs. Swartz, who has delighted many of us with her own readings.

The performance was all that was expected. In the opinion of the writer, Professor Trip was better in Dickens than in Shakespeare. He was wonderful in making the different characters distinctive. His ability in this capacity was amply demonstrated in his distinctive presentation of the noble character of Tom Pinch and the humorous character of Miss Cherry Pecksniff.

Last Lyceum Entertainment.

The last number of the Lyceum Course took place last night in the college chapel when Chas. W. Newcomb gave a delightful entertainment entitled, "A Unique University," or "A College Course in Ninety Minutes." The entertainment was one of the most laughable and enjoyable seen here in a long time and was roundly applauded by the large audience present.

SOPH EDICT AT UNION: "FRESHMEN, BEWARE."

The sophomores at Union University, in addition to claiming everything contestable in that university and defying the other classes to dispute their claim, have issued the following "black hand" notice for the "verdant" freshmen:

"Beware that you let the foliage of your craniums grow too luxuriantly; the sacred shears are still at their shrine. After due deliberation we have decided a clipped head gives a freshman his proper air of humility, so at first rustle of spring's garments, get to your dens, verdant ones."

The Purple and White adds: "Freshmen, beware the first of April."

The courts of Mississippi had the case of a judge who told a petit jury when it was impaneled that he intended to make the term of court a business term and also intended to make the court self-sustaining. The case of Butler vs. State was appealed because of error by the court in lecturing the jury, on the ground that he advised the jury to convict those charged with crime in order to raise revenue for the county. The supreme court holds that although the judge exceeded his powers, his statements did not justify a reversal of the judgment.

DR. EDMONDS LECTURES AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Splendid Address to Large and Appreciative Audience.

On last Friday evening we had as speaker at the Y. M. C. A. one of the foremost preachers of our city, Reverend Dr. Edmonds, pastor of the First Christian Church, of Jackson.

Dr. Edmonds had selected as his subject, "The Necessity of a School Preparation." He opened his Bible at the twenty-fifth chapter of Mathew, and read as a lesson the parable of the Ten Virgins, five of whom were wise and five of whom were foolish. He read to us how the five foolish virgins who had no oil in their lamps were not admitted to the feast of their Lord, and likened race of life with hands unskilled them unto the man who enters the and mind untrained. Such an one, like the foolish virgins, is defeated e'er he begins.

Here we note that it isn't always the everyday events but, rather, the unusual emergencies of life that test the strength and character of men. Many of us master the easy lessons and grapple with the weak disadvantages, but melt down before the more difficult problems of life. Oh let it not be so! But, rather, let us do both the easy and difficult task for the loudest call today is for men and women who can conquer the strongest evils and mould the disadvantages into opportunities. Here the speaker emphasized the fact that the foolish virgins were denied entrance at the feast because they came too late. Why did they come too late? They came too late because, having wasted their time of opportunity, they were unprepared. Just so in life. Not lack of opportunity, but lack of preparation explains our failures. Then, let us not be as the foolish virgins, but, rather let us, by grasping every opportunity that comes to us, prepare ourselves to meet all the demands of the day.

In the end it was made clear to every one present that he who would live a life worth while must be thoroughly prepared with that knowledge and strength that will conquer disadvantages, for such comes to everyone.

PRENTISS LITERARY SOCIETY.

Splendid Meeting Held Friday Night—Preliminary to Triangular Debate.

The Prentiss Literary Society held one of the most enthusiastic meetings Friday night that has ever been held in the college chapel. The two teams that debated against French Camps Academy and C. H. A. Monday night held a preliminary debate between themselves on Friday night.

The college orchestra was present and furnished delightful music for the occasion. In addition to the numbers originally scheduled many encores were rendered by the obliging orchestra.

To add further enjoyment to the occasion the preps had bowls of the finest and most delicious fruit punch which was served to the visitors.

The program was an unusually strong one and everybody on it proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that they were well prepared for the event.

Miss Elizabeth Watkins delighted the audience with an interesting reading delivered in a most charming and gracious style.

C. W. Alford, as orator of the occasion, then came forward and delivered an excellent oration that was a treat to the many visitors.

The debate exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine well-wishers of the preps. Not only were the men on the debate all good speakers but they were right there with the goods when it came to producing arguments. The question was: "Resolved, That the Initiative and Referendum should be adopted in Mississippi."

Williams and Wooten were on the affirmative, while Clegg and Golding were on the negative. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

We are very glad to have V. H. Sessions, who it will be remembered has been confined to his room with smallpox for several weeks, back at school.

"Skeate" Williamson was in the city recently.

THE MASS MEETING.

We have not had a genuine enthusiastic heart to heart, soul inspiring, patriotic mass meeting this year, and the announcement that such an one is to take place within the near future is an omen of good things to come.

A mass meeting—the kind where the students enter into the spirit of the occasion and fairly bubble over with enthusiasm and college spirit—do more to bind a man's affections to his school than most any other one thing.

In the first place, they create in a man a love for his alma mater that he fails to get elsewhere. They create in him a spirit and enthusiasm over his college's welfare that bubbles up on every occasion where an exhibition of genuine college spirit is needed. They make him want to support the institutions of the college. They create in him a college spirit, not the kind that finds its expression in mere noise and hurrah, but the kind that makes him desire to see his college excel and that makes him desire to have a part in the work that brings his college to the front.

We believe that such a meeting will mean much to our team, just now beginning another season of hard games. They need our support; not only do they need our financial aid, but they need also to hear our college songs and yells and to know that we are with them in body and spirit as they go into battle.

Lets choose a leader for our yells and then lets every loyal Millsaps man not only attend the mass meeting, but gather at every game and with our cheers and encouragements, assure our team that we are with them and that we expect them to win.

ANOTHER PHASE OF COLLEGE LOYALTY.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a complete list of the advertisers in this year's "Bobashela." It is up to every man in college to patronize these firms. Without the aid of these advertisers it would be impossible for us to get out either of our publications. You will find, too, that these men are interested in us. They are the men who put up the prizes for the track meet contests. They are the men who give work to Millsaps boys and aid them in every way they can.

We don't know why it is, but the fact remains that we are not able to get as many ads as other institutions. Take Mississippi College, for example. They always have about twice as many ads in their annual as we have. This seems paradoxical when the fact of the location of the former institution is considered. There is a reason for it and we believe we have discovered it. In talking to several different business men in Jackson who advertise with Mississippi College and who do not advertise with us, the writer has been told that the reason for it is that the boys from Clinton patronize their advertisers and the Millsaps boys do not.

We know that it is a fact that those fellows pay more attention to this proposition than we do. They not only post their advertisers but they announce their names in chapel, and when they come to the city, they call on the men who help them out with their publications.

We should never fail to buy our goods from our advertisers and should always take care to let them know where we are from.

SEASON TICKETS.

If you want a chance to show your college spirit you can not do so better than by buying a season ticket to the ball games.

Owing to the small number of season tickets sold last year and the consequent loss thereof, it was thought best not to offer season tickets this year. However, in response to a number of appeals from the student body the management has decided to offer the tickets.

Now this means just this: The students will be offered the opportunity of buying tickets to the ball games at less than the one-half the customary price and if we cannot sell a ticket to practically every student of the college it will be a losing proposition to offer the tickets. The tickets are offered for the good of the student body and the management expects the students to take advantage of the opportunity to get tickets at half price and buy enough to justify the sale of same. If they don't do this, as we have said before, it will prove a losing proposition and the association will end up the season in debt.

Let us appeal to every Millsaps student to show their college spirit and pride and at the same time benefit themselves by taking advantage of this opportunity and aiding the association.

LAMARS POSTPONE

SPECIAL MEETING.

In order that the preps might have a clear field for their debate last Friday night, the Lamars, realizing that the preliminary contest would be of inestimable value in aiding the preps to win over their competitors, very courteously postponed their special meeting.

BASE BALL.

Millsaps Again Defeats High School in Practice Game.

The ball team engaged in a little practice game Monday afternoon with the Jackson High School. The most notable feature of the game was the listless way in which the Collegians played. Only once did the High School have a chance of winning and that was in the fourth inning when the score was 3-2 in their favor. In the first of the fifth, however, the Collegians seeing that runs were needed got the proper "pep" into their playing and with a bunch of hits including a three bagger by Condrey, they ran up four score in about as many minutes.

The High School boys were game to the last and fought hard all through the game.

"Big Foot" Jones captured the batting honors, getting four hits out of five times up.

Coffy and Brady got two base hits for the High School team.

The Merchants Association of Shreveport, La., are planning to have a grand track meet in that city on May 1, 2 and 3. All the colleges of Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, have been invited to participate. Millsaps will doubtless send a team to compete and bring back some of the trophies.

The track team is doing excellent work under Coach Fletcher and Manager Harmon expects to make a good showing both at Shreveport and at Aberdeen.

for a banquet for the association during commencement. A committee consisting of Prof. G. L. Harrell as chairman, Miss Hemingway, and Mr. W. F. Logue, was appointed to work this up. The exact date has not been set for the banquet but, as was said, it will be sometime during commencement. Every member of the Association is expected to be present, consequently we may expect to see a great many old Millsaps men here at commencement time. Several matters of importance will come up before the Association at this time.

Another important matter taken up at last Thursday's meeting was the matter of buying a lens for the observatory. Mr. Robert Ricketts, president of the Association, and Prof. G. L. Harrell were placed on the committee to work this up. This should be a matter of interest to every Millsaps man, as a lens will give him a great deal of pleasure and benefit when he becomes a senior and studies astronomy. Prof. Harrell is behind this movement and, on this account, we feel sure that it will be successful. Prof. Harrell deserves a great deal of credit for the interest he is manifesting.

Wm. Coates

THE tobacco you now smoke you consider "better tobacco than you ever smoked before." Naturally, you kept trying until you found a "better" one.

But it stands to reason that since there is a difference in tobaccos you may be missing still greater pleasure in a still better smoke—in the BEST smoke, in fact.

We know that Tuxedo is the best smoke because we know that no better tobacco leaf grows, and that no process of treating tobacco leaf equals the Tuxedo process.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

We know that Tuxedo is made of the BEST tobacco—rich, mellow, perfectly aged Kentucky Burley. None better can be bought, because none better is grown.

Tuxedo is pure tobacco, through and through—handled under the cleanliest conditions.

It is treated by the famous original "Tuxedo process" for removing the sting and bite of the natural vegetable oils.

Tuxedo was born in 1904. Its first imitator appeared two years later. Since then a host of imitations have sprung up.

No other tobacco can give the unique pleasure of Tuxedo because no other maker has yet been able to equal the Tuxedo quality!

Only by smoking the original can you get complete satisfaction in pipe or cigarette.

LOCALS.

Special examinations have been "the order of the day" this week.

We are glad to report that Mrs. R. S. Ricketts, who has been ill for several days, is rapidly improving.

Someone wants to know just what Prof. E. G. Burton said when he heard that the preps had defeated the Varsity?

Brother Lewis, the oldest living member of the Mississippi Conference, conducted chapel exercises and made a highly interesting talk to the student body one day last week.

Isn't it time for the students to organize and elect cheer leaders for the Mississippi College games next week? Lets get up some enthusiasm. We've got to get their baseball goat, too, you know.

We regret to report that "Bish" Murrah has been confined to his bed for several days from an attack of lagrippe. He is now improving and, in all probability, will soon be out on the baseball field again.

We hear that Mrs. Hull, the popular wife of our former president is soon to be a visitor on the campus. We can assure her of a glad welcome from every boy on the campus, especially those who knew her best during her two years stay among us.

John Vettle, of the city, who has for the past several years held a position in the U. S. land office and who took the law course at Millsaps last year, is going to Chicago in June to pursue the study of law in the University of Chicago.

Gilbert Cook, a graduate of Millsaps and a brother of "Dr." Holloman Cook, paid a visit to his brother last week. Cook is principal of the High School at Lake, Miss., where he is held in high esteem. We are always glad to hear of Millsaps men making good.

Judge Thomas L. Bailey has announced his intention of settling in Meridian to practice law. Bailey is one of the leading members of the law class, is endowed with qualities of leadership and organization and would be a great asset to any community in which he casts his lot. The Queen City may well be proud of his choice.

A letter from Rocoe Berry brings the information that "Ros" is going to study law next year. He is at present principal of the Shelby Graded School at Shelby, Miss. Roscoe says the people up there hate to give him up but that he must follow the call to the bar. Here is hoping that he will be as successful in this as he has in his former undertakings.

Hon. Samuel B. Lampton, the distinguished president of the senior class, made a business trip to his home in Tylertown the latter part of last week. Mr. Lampton, on being interviewed by a reporter of this paper, reported a successful trip. He says that the people in that section of the state are making rapid preparations for the coming-crop. The signs are hopeful.

HIGH SCHOOL MEET WILL BE HELD ON APRIL 19.

Prof. Burton has been actively engaged in getting out literature to the various high schools concerning the Mississippi Interscholastic Oratorical Contest and Track Meet to be held here on April 19.

Plans are being devised whereby this meet will be made bigger and better than ever before. Encouraging reports have been received from a number of schools and everything points to the most successful meet in the history of the association.

A full writeup and prospectus of the meet will appear in an early issue.

'VARSITY VS. LEAGUERS.

Millsaps Breaks Even with Jackson League Team—First Game Easy for Collegians—Harris' Pitching the Feature—Jackson Turns the Tables in Second Contest.

Last Friday evening, our 'Varsity played rings around the Jackson Leaguers, to the tune of 14 to 1. Our boys out-played them at every stage of the game, and were never in danger of losing the game.

Every one of the boys had his batting clothes on. They simply slaughtered the ball; they knocked it from one corner of the field to the other, and then some more.

Holliman, Cassibry and Jones were especially active with the stick. Holliman secured three hits, two of which were three-baggers, and the other was a two-bagger. Cassibry secured a home run, a three-bagger and a two-bagger, while Jones hit for a three-bagger and two two-baggers.

All of the boys deserve credit for the manner in which they whaled the "pill."

Some of the old Leaguers have not seen that ball yet, because they did not get a chance to get a peep at it, while George Harris was on the mound. He served them a variety of shoots and curves, but they came in such a mixed variety that they could not tell what was coming next.

Only four men reached first base and one of these was caught off first base. Harris caused twelve of the mighty Leaguers to whip the air; they connected for safe hits only three times, and of these only two could be called clear hits.

There was a good sized crowd out to root for the boys, and this should be the case at every game; Prof. Burton and Manager Boswell walked around with a very satisfied air while some of our visitors from Clinton did not think the League was trying to play.

Y. M. C. A. AT SEVEN-THIRTY TONIGHT DR. KERN WILL SPEAK ON "THE WHITE LIFE," MUSIC BY THE FISK JUBILEE QUARTETTE. THE MEETING IS FOR MEN ONLY.

HIGH SCHOOL MEET SET FOR THE 18th OF APRIL

Third Annual Meet of the Mississippi Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association to Be Held April 18—Big Representation Expected.

The 18th of April has been set as the date for the meeting of the Mississippi Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. As usual this will be held under the auspices of Millsaps College. Millsaps is offering more in prizes this year than ever before. She is going to give a Twenty-Dollar Gold Medal to the winner of the Declamation Contest, and Gold Medals for first places in the athletic events, and Silver Medals for second places. Chamberlain-Hunt Academy now holds the Trophy Cup which will be given to the team winning the highest number of points. The Cup becomes the property of the team winning it for two successive years.

Beginning next year, Millsaps proposes to organize in each County a County Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. These Associations will constitute the membership of the State Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. Only winners in the County Meets will be eligible to enter the State Meet. The management of the Meet will then pass from the control of Millsaps to that of officers elected by the Association.

Two years ago at the suggestion of Prof. S. G. Noble, a number of schools met here in a very successful Meet. Last year the number of invitations was increased, and a much larger Meet was held. This year a still larger number of schools have been invited and there is no doubt but that the Meet will be a great success.

Millsaps College assumes all the responsibility for the Meet and furnishes free $70.00 worth of medals for the winners in the various contests. All that the competing teams have to do is to place their teams on the field at the proper time. Millsaps will have everything ready for the meet. The programme for the day will be as follows:

TRACK EVENTS.

10:00 o'clock A. M., on Millsaps Field.

Events—

| 4. Pole Vault. | 8. Broad Jump. |

There will be two games of base ball in the afternoon; the teams playing will be Jackson High School, Canton, McComb City, and another team to be selected.

The Declamation Contest will be held in the College chapel at 7:30 P. M.

The students of the College are looking forward to the day with anticipations of a great time as the entertainment of this event is always a big day at Millsaps.

HENDRIX DEBATE.

Subject Announced—Weems and Morse Preparing for Event.

The debate with Hendrix College is looked forward to by Millsaps students with a great deal of interest because of the fact that in the two contests heretofore Hendrix has gotten our "goats." This year we are sending two debaters of exceptional ability to "mix it up" with them and it is confidently predicted that Millsaps will be the victor.

The subject debated will be, "Resolved, That Woman Suffrage Should be Adopted in the United States." Weems and Morse represent the College and have the negative side. The debate will be held at Hendrix this year.

This game shows the College what a fine team they have, and it is conceded by good judges that Millsaps will win a majority of her games. Everything shows that this is the best team ever turned out by this College, and we believe that it will win the State Championship at Aberdeen in May.

The poor showing of the Leaguers was due to the fact that they were not in good condition.

Summary.—Two base hits: Cheney, Jones, Cassibry, Harris, Hathorne, Jackson, Holliman. Three-base hits: Jones, Holliman (2), Home-runs: Cassibry. Hits off Harris, 3; off Henrich, 5; off Fitzen, 11. Double-plays: Holliman to Brown, to Gaddis; Henrich to Erwin. Hit by pitcher, Condrey and Hawthorne. Struck-out by Harris, 12; by Henrich, 1; by Fitzen, 2. Time, 1:30. Umpire, Fletcher.

The second game ended in a different tune from the first; nevertheless, our boys played good ball and deserve a great deal of credit for their showing. The game was played on the League ground. Promptly at 3:30 the game was called with "Plowboy" Ward on the firing line for Millsaps, while he was opposed by Faircloth, the premier pitcher of the League.

There was a large delegation of the boys down, but not as many as we should have had.

Our boys secured as many hits as did the law-makers, but they were not able to make the hits when they were needed. We had 2 bad innings the third and seventh, some of the boys forgot to cover the bags, while there was one or two costly errors made also.

Millsaps opened up the game at the bat, but was unable to get a man on first base; in her turn the Jackson team made one score.

They doubled this in the second inning, while Millsaps was unable to get a man to first base.

The third inning was the hardest on Millsaps because it was then that Jackson ran up a total of six scores; this was due to the fact that some very costly errors were made.

Millsaps was not able to score until the fifth inning, when they made two runs on four hits; if we had not had some defective base running we would have made more runs in this inning.

There was no scoring by either side until the seventh, when Millsaps secured one, while Jackson in her turn, ran up her score three more, making a total of 12.

Millsaps had a rally in the ninth

GALLOWAY SOCIETY.

Galloways again in Session—Silverstein Declaims and O'Donnell Orates—Interesting Debate Decided in Favor of the Affirmative.

The regular weekly meeting of the Galloway Literary Society was held in their hall last Friday night. A large crowd, composed of members and visitors, was present to enjoy the evening's program.

The declaimer for the evening was Silverstein who rendered an excellent declamation, after which the Orator, O'Donnell, came forward with an oration which was well prepared and which he delivered in a most pleasing and commendable manner. The question for debate was, one of special interest to the people of today. It was, "Resolved, That the President's Term Should be Increased to Six Years." Moore, Hutton, and F. M. Tatom upheld the affirmative, and Cassibry, Keister and N. B. Harmon, the negative.

Both sides were well prepared and brought forth many convincing arguments for their side, but the judges, after deliberating for quite a while on the matter, rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative.

After the regular debate an excellent impromptu debate was engaged in.

Don't fail to attend the Y. M. C. A. tonight. Dr. Kern has a message that will interest every Millsaps student.

THE INTER-SCHOLASTIC MEET.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an account of the third Annual Meet of the Mississippi Inter-scholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. Millsaps being the founder of this Association, is naturally proud of it. It has grown in extent and importance far beyond the expectation of its founders. As it has increased in importance its good to the College has also increased. We know of no better way of advertising the College than through this Annual Meet. It brings boys here from all parts of the State contiguous to us.

We are glad to have these boys come here and see for themselves the advantages they would derive by coming to Millsaps to school. We are glad to have them come here and hold these contests on our magnificent athletic field. We are glad to have them come in contact with our students, for we feel that our boys will evince such college spirit and show such a loyal attitude toward the College and its affairs that the visitors will be caught in by the enthusiasm of the thing and induced to come here next session or some time in the future.

It must not be understood, however, that Millsaps is doing this thing from an entirely selfish motive. Indeed, one of its main motives is to create a helpful athletic spirit throughout the State. The advantage which will accrue to her as a consequence of her interest is a secondary matter. As evidence of this fact, Millsaps proposes to organize an Association in each county and then to turn the control of the State Meet over to officers elected by the county organizations.

We want to do all we can to make the Meet this year a glorious success. With the experience we already have from the former ones, we believe we can surpass in this one anything we have had in the past.

As we have said before, we are glad of the opportunity of entertaining this Meet; we are glad to welcome these visitors to our School and hope that during their stay here they will feel perfectly at home and that when they go away they will carry with them a better understanding and appreciation of the merits of Millsaps College.

TRACK PRACTICE.

Track Men Rounding into Shape—Manager Harmon Confident of Winning Team—Personnel of the Team.

Coach Fletcher is fast rounding out a crack bunch on the track. Practice goes on regularly, and some "stars" are already developing.

Although no men have yet centered down to each special event, some are showing up to be well qualified for several things.

Big Henry is doing splendid work on the distances. He has a long, powerful stride, and is "rangy" enough to stand the strain. He will probably be in the mile or the half.

Ot Brownfield, on the middle distance, is also showing up well—far exceeding his work last year. Ot has a clean stride and has recently developed a lot of speed, which helps him a great deal in the quarter and half. We are sure counting on him.

O'Donnell and Capps are also working on the distances, and for new men are doing remarkably well. Capps, especially, is showing up finely in the two-mile event.

Kirkland has hit his old stride on the mile, and with a little more training will be able to take another mile event at the State. Kirk is working on the hurdles, too, as are Clifford and Howe. Both these last are also fast rounding into good quarter milers as they are both large enough to stand the pace. In fact, with these two, and W. S.

Tatom, Moore, Silverstein, and others, we expect to get a good relay team out.—And every man on that has sure got a third-place medal at Aberdeen waiting for him,—maybe a first!

In the field events, the Harmon brothers are on the vault and high jump. Bob Harmon is showing good form on the vault and N. B. on the jump. Clifford, Broomfield, and Big Harmon are also on the broad jump.

Work is now going on with the discus, shot and hammer. Kirkland is doing his usual way, and Big Kirkpatrick is "throwing away" the shot and hammer.

Early in April our field day will come, at which time fifty dollars worth of prizes will be competed for. And there is a chance for the "stars" to go to the big tri-state track meet at Shreveport. So come out and get busy. And let all that are now coming out keep on,—"the prize is near."

Dr. Hutton Lectures on David Livingstone — Association Enjoys Lecture on Famous Explorer.

We are proud to say that the Y. M. C. A., of Millsaps College, is an institution that daily grows firmer in its foundations, broader in its reach, and more efficient in its work. Promptly at seven o'clock on last Friday evening, quite a number of the students, together with some visitors and members of the faculty, assembled in the Y. M. C. A. hall for the lecture which had been announced. The speaker of the evening was a man who is known throughout our State both as a preacher and an educator of the strongest and most efficient type—Reverend Dr. Hutton, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Jackson. Dr. Hutton has lectured to us before and we know him not only as a qualified and forceful speaker, but as a man who is interested in the educational progress of our State at large.

Dr. Hutton had selected as the subject of his lecture that missionary of world wide and well deserved fame,—David Livingston. And he answered the question of the missionary's real greatness when asked "Where are the triumphs of David Livingston unknown—where have the wonders of his success not reached?" The speaker stated that the two main elements that show strongly in any man's life and character are heredity and environment.

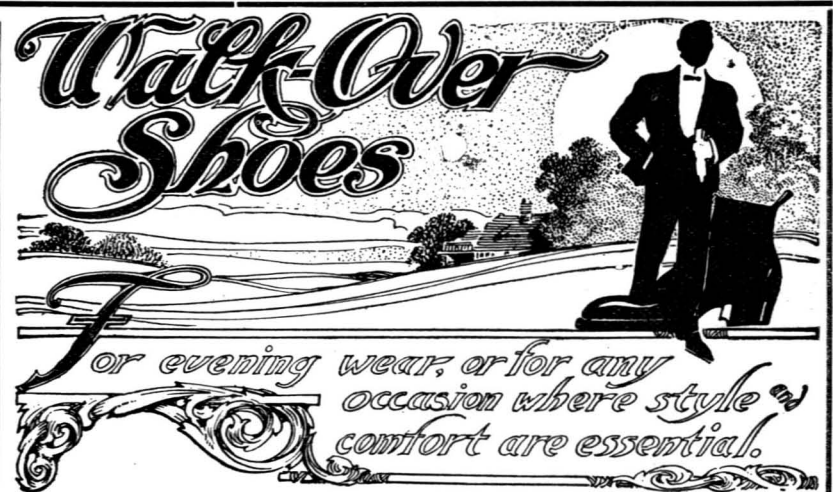

Considering the heredity of David Livingston we see, as the speaker has said, that he was the son of poor and honest, and devoted parents, who taught him the lessons of manliness and godliness by living before him a life of honesty and worth. Imagine, if you will, even-tide in the Livingston home; see the father, a god-like man, as, with his children about his knee, he reads from the Bible the old, old story of Love and Faith, and then goes down in prayer to his God. By this ye may know from whence David Livingston was inspired to brave the perils of a heathen continent and spread the knowledge that gladdens the souls of men.

Neither was the environment of our hero such as predicted a college education or any dignified achievement. The Livingston family was poor and David had to work every day. But he was made of that stuff that masters circumstances; so we see him, with an open book in his spinning room, studying while he worked. No one who labors with such an effort and such a determination, can fail; so very soon we see David Livingston at college preparing himself to go as a missionary to Africa. To Africa he went, and there spent his life, striving to uplift the minds and souls of men.

The accomplishments of Livingston in Africa are too many to be recorded here, but the tongues of a world gladly speak the triumphs of his cause.

Then, tracing the life of David Livingston, we see that it was a success. Why was it so? Surely it was because that man entered into his work with knowledge, a determined will, and a definite pur-

IMPORTANT EVENT. MISSISSIPPI COLLEGE TEAM TAKES TWO. P. AND W. TRIUMPHS

Annual Revival to Begin Tonight.
Dr. Sullivan's Class Taking Great Interest.

The annual revival meeting will begin tonight under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. This is without a single exception the most important of all the events of the session. For many years it has been the custom to have such a meeting and the good that they have accomplished cannot be estimated. Some of the most effective preachers of the county have at various times held these meetings, and the religious atmosphere of the campus has never failed to be greatly brought up by their efforts.

The meeting to begin tonight will be conducted by Rev. Herbert B. Watkins, the nephew of our president and an alumnus of this institution. Mr. Watkins has long been recognized as one of the leading members of the Mississippi Conference, and as an effective speaker he is equal to any man in the state. He is greatly interested in Millsaps College, and his heart is deep in the work that he Manifestation of Boys Appreciation of His Work in Athletics.

The members of the Millsaps College Athletic Association, to show their appreciation of what Prof. Burton has done for them in Athletics, presented him with a beautiful monogram sweater after the game Tuesday morning.

Too much praise can not be tendered Prof. Burton for his work in athletics and this sweater is but a slight token of the boys' appreciation of what he has done.

"Bill" Bailey made the presentation speech and Prof. Burton was too much moved to reply.

HARRIS WINS FIRST BUT INJURY TO ARM PREVENTS HIS GOING IN AGAIN—WARD PITCHES LAST TWO.

Big Crowds Attend All Games—Greatest Demonstration in History of Athletics at Millsaps—Condrey Gets Three Hits First Game.

The first game between Millsaps and Mississippi College was a thriller. The spectators were in the highest state of excitement during the entire game. The game Friday evening at the league park, was a pitcher's battle between Harris for Millsaps, and Brooks for Mississippi College and once in which the Purple and White triumphed. Harris out-pitched his rival; he cut down twelve men, allowed only four hits and walked one; while Brooks struck out ten, allowed eight hits and two walks.

Millsaps' team had her boys with her and they showed their appreciation on every occasion that presented itself. This rooting goes a long ways towards winning a game, because it gives confidence to our own boys and discourages the players on the opposing team.

In the first inning there was no scoring by either side.

In the second Mississippi failed to score, but when Harris came to the bat for Millsaps, we all looked for something. He delivered the goods by reaching first. Cassibry took his run, went to third on a sacrifice by Hathorne and scored on a wild peg to third.

Mississippi College started something in the third. The first man up struck out; the second went out at first. The third man, however, walked; and the fourth was safe at first. Dale, the catcher for Mississippi brought both men in with a two bagger.

In her half of the third, Millsaps rallied and secured two more runs. With the bases full, Harris got a single which brought in one man, while Hathorne followed with a single and brought in the winning run.

There was no more scoring the rest of the game. Millsaps received a thrill in the eighth, when Cassibry secured a long three bagger, but their expectations were short lived for Lipsey, the crafty third sacker for Mississippi had concealed the ball and when Cassibry stepped off, he put the ball on him.

Bobashela Team Demolished and Faculty Snowed Under—Belhaven and High School Add to Crowd.

There are major league ball teams and minor league teams. There are base ball games and then more baseball games, but the climax of all baseballdom was reached on April Fools day when the Purple and White team demolished the Bobashela aggregation and mopped up with the Faculty team.

Ty Cobb's, Roger Bresnahan's Larry Lajoie's and Honus Wagner's names are all Denis. The old baseball gods are dead and their places have been filled by the stars that compose the Purple and White team.

In the first game the Purple and White beat the Bobashela 7-1. Davis pitched a great game for the Purple and White boys and was master of the situation at all times. The Purple and White boys hit the ball freely and won in a walk.

In the second game the faculty started off by getting four scores in the first inning, but their joy is here to do. We predict great results from his efforts.

Those present were: Prof. E. Y. Burton, Cassibry, Harris, Ward, Gaddis, Brown, Holliman, Murrah, Condrey, Jones, Hathorne, Jackson, Backstrom, Boswell and Broom.

Mr. Watkins will be assisted by Mr. O. C. Seevers, who will lead the singing. Mr. Seevers is a great singer and will add greatly to the pleasure and the benefit of the meeting.

Dr. Sullivan, who is greatly interested in the meeting has gotten his Sunday school class in line to do good work during the progress of the meeting. He has a membership of one hundred and five; thirty members more than he has ever had in this class. In his lecture to the class last Sunday, Dr. Sullivan put it squarely up to the members that it is their duty to take the leading part in the meeting and to use all their influence in bringing their fellow students to Christ. It was agreed as a result of this talk, that the whole class should have a prayer meeting and last night was set for this. The class was largely represented and it is hoped that the meeting will be productive of much good.

The revival will last over a week. It is hoped that every boy in school will be at every sermon.

SECOND GAME.

The second game of the series was taken by Mississippi College. Stringer was on the mound for Mississippi and strung the scalps of twelve of our boys on his belt.

Ward worked well for Millsaps. He kept his hits scattered. Mississippi College should not have scored until the ninth inning. The first two runs being made on some costly errors.

Our boys worked well, but they were unable to connect with Stringers benders. Holliman was the only one to secure a hit.

The game was a snappy one from start to finish, not only because of the grim struggle between the two teams, but this was enlivened by the yelling of the two colleges. Mississippi came over strong for the second game and their rooting together with those of the Millsaps boys was almost deafening.

THIRD GAME.

Monday evening the grand stand at the League Park was packed by rooters for Millsaps and Mississippi College. Millsaps rooters together with Belhaven occupied the stand directly behind the catcher, while Mississippi College with Hillman Girls sat further down the stand.

There was constant cheering by both sides, and if one crowd was not cheering, their team on the other side was.

Millsaps pulled off quite a novel thing in the rooting line. In the fifth inning every one of the crowd pulled a whistle and the racket they raised was something awful. This seemed to have its result because Capt. Cassibry knocked a single, stole second, went to third on a fielder's choice and came home on a long sacrifice hit by Brown.

Mississippi College came at Millsaps hard in the second inning when two runs were made. Both of these could be credited to errors however and not the hitting of Mississippi team.

In the third inning Mississippi made three runs, two of these were due to errors. They could not made any connections again until the seventh inning.

This is the inning every one went up in a balloon, players and spectators. After Mississippi had made about four or five runs, their clown went to the far end of the park and secured a goat, which had Millsaps colors on it. The clown then essayed to lead the goat through the grand stand, followed by all the goats at Mississippi College. Millsaps, rightly, would not stand for any such proceedings, and formed a line to keep them from coming any further. When the line met there was considerable joshing and jolting by both sides. It ended by a certain co-ed—who is very loyal to her Alma Mater—securing the colors off the goat. The Mississippi boys were driven to their end of the stand.

Another feature of the game was the all round work of Pitcher Brooks of Mississippi College. He struck out ten men; allowed three hits, while he, himself, secured five hits out of six times at the bat; two of these hits were for three baggers.

Millsaps' team was somewhat crippled by Harris hurting his arm, and Jones spraining his ankle, both of these men are regulars and it necessitated putting in some new men. At the opening of the eighth inning Brown went in the box and let Mississippi down with one run for the other two innings.

Dr. Kern Speaks to Large Audience. Victrola Adds to Excellence of Meeting.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock on last Friday evening, quite a number of the young men of the student body together with some members of the faculty assembled in the Y. M. C. A. hall, and listened to a very interesting and pointed lecture by Dr. A. A. Kern, of Millsaps College. Before beginning his lecture, Dr. Kern favored the audience with several delightful Victrola selections. These were enjoyed very much.

When the music ceased the speaker came forward and announced as his subject "The White Life." Hereupon he entered straightway into a very plain and pointed discussion of the worth of cleanliness and purity in the life and character of men. After speaking briefly of the temptations that come to young men, he stated that vain pleasure and worldly dissipations are not worth the sacrifices which they necessitate. By citing his audience to several instances of men, who, by excessive indulgence, have wrecked their lives and become useless, the speaker showed clearly that only an hour of excessive indulgence may result in a lifetime of weakness and uselessness. He showed us further that the worth of a man and the manhood of a man depends upon the cleanliness and purity of his character and life. It has been said that the strength of a man is directly proportional to the strength of his nerves. It has been proved that excessive indulgence breaks down the nervous system of every indulger. Thus, we see that he who indulges in vain pleasures and worldly dissipation cannot be strong. Then, knowing that he who has not manly strength cannot play the game of life in a manly way, and knowing that the cry today is for men of manly strength, let us keep ourselves purely clean by mingling with no unclean thing.

Life is a game that insofar as purity and cleanliness are concerned every man plays as suits himself. If you are impure or unclean in your life it is only because you, by your thoughts and deeds, have made yourself so. For this you alone are to blame. Not your friend, but you alone can make yourself a pure and clean man.

was quickly turned to grief when in their half the Purple and White boys made five. The faculty could not connect with Davis' curves after the first inning, while the P. & W. team rolled up a sum total of 14 scores.

The High School and Belhaven students cut and came out to watch the games.

In addition to the regular games there were races between co-eds, High School students and a general medley of athletic events.

LET EVERY BODY PLAY BALL

What chance has Millsaps to win the state championship in base ball this year? Stop, think, and let determination fix and become inflexible that if success is not ours no student shall be at fault. We have a fighting chance and no institution should ask more unless it has no pluck. A little pep and the bull dog spirit and we will fight not in vain.

But at the outset, remember that success is not up to the team alone. Even major leaguers play better ball with solid and spirited support from the home fans, and a college team likewise but more so. Get together fellows, every man behind the team, every man believing in it, standing by it, and fighting for it to the last ditch. If at first we should meet reverses fight all the harder to turn defeat into victory. If success comes at first guard against overconfidence as you would a thief in the night.

We owe the team more than good wishes. We should attend the games, pay the gate fees gladly as money constitutes the "sinews of war," and exhaust every effort to swell the crowds, and when the umpire calls "play ball," get in the game and let our boys know we are right there with them to the end.

We want the base ball championship of the state, we want success in our intercollegiate contests all along the line, and the only sensible thing to do is to go after what we want. It will never be handed to us on a silver platter, and of this we are glad, for no true sportsman wants unearned laurels. The climax will be at Aberdeen in May, and now is the time to qualify for this occasion. Our success may be barred before we get there unless we put up a stubborn fight in all the preceding games. We have a fighting chance to get there and if we win this struggle we will then have a chance to get the big trophy. But this is certain, the best the state has in college base ball will have to be met there. Our grand athletic rally has caused the fighting spirit to grow among us. Let us perfect the organization of the fans to back the team so that in the strength of unity of purpose, effort, and spirit, we may breathe the breath of life into this fighting chance.

Then, too, think of the joy victory would bring us after a fight for red bloods only! The Purple and White banner waving triumphantly in heaven's breezes! The glad announcement that to Millsaps goes the championship! Is not the end worth while? Herculean effort may be demanded of us, but let the Millsaps spirit so thrive and wax strong that the doubting Thomas will be conspicuous for his absence, and the despised knocker will scamper off among the "shapes and shrieks and sights unholy" where he belongs. These driven away by this spirit, there will be left a bunch of fighters who will gladly seize the fighting chance and rally around our team until all is lost or victory is ours. Our basket ball team tied the A. & M. College for the state championship, and it only remains to go after the big game at Aberdeen believing that if we "fight to the end, Millsaps wins."

HOPEFUL SIGNS.

The large number of students at the Y. M. C. A. meeting last Friday night is a very hopeful sign indeed. When the fact that Millsaps had just won a great baseball game and rejoicing and celebration were in the air and in everybody's mind is taken into consideration, the signs are still more hopeful. It shows a healthful condition in religious affairs. It bespeaks a high moral atmosphere. It shows that the boys who come to Millsaps College are not the kind of boys who forget the Bibles that their mothers gave them on leaving home and forget their duty when they get here. In short, when the students of a College win a great game of ball one afternoon and turn out, players and all, to the Y. M. C. A. that night, the influences at that College are bound to be the best and no parent need be afraid to send his boy to that college.

For the above reasons, we are hoping a great success for the revival meeting that begins here tonight. We believe that it will be the greatest meeting held here in a long time. The field is ready for the harvest and we believe that the reaping will be great.

There is a more general manifestation of interest in the meeting than it has been our pleasure to observe since we have been at Millsaps. With such a condition and manifestation, why can't we have the greatest meeting ever held here?

It is needless to urge the students to attend these meetings. They have always done this, and there is every reason to believe that they will do so this year more than ever before. Millsaps College students always respond to a great cause and certainly this is the greatest cause that we could possibly be interested in.

We would especially urge the officers of the association and the ministerial students to be on the alert. It is to them that the students are looking for leadership in this cause. This is one time that all prejudices of every kind should be laid aside and everyone work for the One Great Cause.

KAPPA MUS ENTERTAIN.

Delightful Evening Enjoyed by Many Friends of the Sorority. Event at The Mississippi Club Rooms a Decided Success.

On Thursday evening, March 26, the charming young ladies of the Kappa Mu Sorority of Millsaps College entertained their friends at an elegant reception at the Mississippi Club. The rooms were made very attractive, decorated in the sorority colors of white and green, while the walls were gay with college and fraternity penants.

Over two hundred guests were present and the hours were filled with mirth and gaiety, while here and there among the guests were these lovely young hostesses who knew so well how to make their guests enjoy the hours to the full-ests.

Delicious ices in white and green were prettily served while the punch bowl was a popular resort through the evening.

In this reception the Kappa Mus have given their friends one of the most delightful evenings of the year and one which will stand forth among the social affairs of the year as an exceptional success.

MASS MEETING.

Enthusiasm and College Spirit Prevails — Students, Faculty and Players Speak on Athletics—Resolution Unanimously Adopted.

The mass meeting held in the college chapel last Wednesday night was one of the most enthusiastic and best attended meetings ever held at Millsaps. From the time that the first group of boys assembled it was apparent that things were going to happen and from that time on things kept livening up until it seemed that the boys would literally tear the roof off the house, so great was their enthusiasm, and the expression thereof.

Promptly at seven-thirty, Scott called the meeting to order, after which Boswell came forward and after a few well chosen remarks, introduced the following resolution:

"Be it resolved that Millsaps shall defeat Mississippi College three games of base ball, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and that every Millsaps student shall be present and aid the team in the victory by their enthusiasm and support."

After this resolution was introduced many of the students were called upon to express their opinion of it, whereupon, among others, Dr. Watkins, Wroten, Moore, Ray and Cain, came forward and in most enthusiastic terms endorsed the idea of our team winning the games. College songs and yells were interspersed among the speakers, making the occasion all the livelier by this expression of college spirit.

After the above speakers, the students called for the players to come forward and give the boys some expression of their feelings. Cassibry, Harris, Ward, Gaddis, Holloman, Murrah, Con-drey, Brown, Jones, Hathorne, Jackson and Backstrom all came forward and asserted that they were determined to do their best to win games for their alma mater.

Well, really, fellows, did you ever take a "special special" on economics?

Hiram G. Patterson spent several days of last week with relatives at Monticello.

Mrs. D. C. Hull and little son, Rodger, visited Prof. and Mrs. E. C. Burton this week.

Lock McLaurin visited home folks at Vicksburg last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Ranch of the A. & M. was here Friday and Saturday in the interest of the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Connerly of Mississippi College, visited friends on the campus Wednesday evening.

C. D. Havens, one of our popular law students left for his home at Daisy, Friday evening.

Luke Neill, '10, principal Madison High School, attended the ball game Friday and Saturday.

We are very glad to have Marshal Quin, who was injured in Prep. C. H. A. game last week, back at school.

Prof. E. Y. Burton was absent from College two days of last week working in the interest of the M. I. T. A. at Aberdeen, Miss.

Rev. F. H. McGee has been confined to his bed for several days suffering from a severe case of erysipelas. We wish him a speedy recovery.

"Bill" Murrah, '08, visited home folks here Saturday and Sunday. "Bill" is now practicing law in Memphis and is doing well. We wish him success.

R. J. Jolley, who has just finished a very successful term as principal of the Stamper High School, returned to college Tuesday and resumed his studies. He will finish this year.

Quite a number of the boys and several of the Professors, attended the Kappa Mu reception at the Mississippi Club last Thursday night. All reported a delightful evening.

LAW NOTES.

Up in Tennessee the courts are the first aid to many in trouble. Last week a lonely husband had his wife returned to his home by a writ of replevin. And thus it is that justice finds a way.

"Senator" Tolbert has gone to the penitentiary for an indefinite time. It is gratifying to all his friends, for he has a good position there.

After his ordeal at Greenwood, Mr. J. Andrew Blount went over to Charleston for a short period of rest. We trust that he will return greatly rejuvenated.

Mr. L. Bryan Dabney has returned to his home in Vicksburg where he will be associated with his father in the practice of law. We wish for him the fullest measure of success.

"Doctor" Carter has returned to his Louisiana home after a very arduous season of work. There is no member of the class but that hopes to see the "Doctor" become the Pelican State's greatest barrister.

Now that the examinations are off, wouldn't it be a good idea to clear off that Moot Court docket? There are several important cases pending. Miss Sallie Rebecca Honeysuckle's affections were trifled with by that artful J. Andrew Blount and she has not yet had reparation for the same. Surely it is time that she have her cause of complaint heard.

If President Wilson acts in accord with a petition that has come up to him from the Ohio Valley, President John Patterson, the sentenced head of the Cash Register Company will not serve his year in the Federal penitentiary. His conduct during the recent terrible disaster through Ohio and Indiana shows that he has a great heart. It is fortunate for him at this time when everybody was knocking that an opportunity was given, to show that he is genuinely great and magnanimous. Let the president pardon him or hold up the sentence pending good behavior.

Sidney Bufkin was visited by his two brothers from Hazlehurst last week.

PREPS DIVIDE WITH C. H. A.

Fondren Pitches Team to Victory in First Game—Preps Blow Up in Second.

On March 25, the Millsaps Prep Baseball Team met the fast C. H. A. bunch from Port Gibson and mashed their faces in the mud. For some time, it seemed that on account of the inclemency of the weather, the game would have to be postponed. The rain stopped about game time, but the grounds were very wet. Nevertheless both teams put up some nice fielding exhibitions and the Preps' victory was largely due to the wildness of Anderson, C. H. A.'s pitcher.

The features of the game were the home run of Quin and the all round good fielding of both teams. The Preps demonstrated that they have an excellent team and may be reckoned with when it comes to considering the Prep championship of the state.

The following shows how it was done:

In the second game C. H. A. came back with a vengeance and administered an adverse dose to the Preps.

The serious accident to Quin in the early part of the game seemed to take all the 'pep' out of the Preps as C. H. A. had no trouble in defeating them, hitting the ball at will, which coupled with too many errors and a few exhibitions of the ivory brought the score above what it should have been.

The following is the story in detail.

PREP LOCALS.

The Prep Team will leave on a trip to Port Gibson on the 8th of April. Three games will be played with C. H. A. and three with St. Aloysius College at Vicksburg.

We are delighted to hear that "Coach" Quin is doing so well, and will be back in the game when we leave for Port Gibson.

J. N. McNeill was called home to the bed-side of his mother, who has been quite sick, at Vinegar Bend, Ala., this week. We sincerely hope she is much improved by this time.

After the players had all had their say, Scott called for a vote on the resolution introduced early in the evening. The student body as one man arose and gave their unanimous endorsement of the sentiment expressed in it.

On the whole the meeting was a most enjoyable affair and created much college spirit among the students.

VARSITY ON TRIP.

Team Goes to Jackson, Tenn., and Starkville, Miss.

The Varsity baseball team left Wednesday morning for a trip to Jackson, Tenn., where they expect to play three games with Union University and then drop down to Starkville and take on A. & M. for a couple of games. The boys were all in high spirit on leaving and expect to win a majority of the games played while away from home. Prof. E. Y. Burton accompanied the team.

Double Header Played Each Day—League Team Gets Millsaps' Goat—Millsaps Wallops State Normal Team—Fondren, Condry and Brown Each Annex a Victory—How They Did It.

On April third, Millsaps played double headers with the League team and the Mississippi State Normal College. Although they were unable to beat the League, they mopped up every time with the Normal squad.

Millsaps was somewhat crippled after her last game with Mississippi College, and did not have any pitchers to work in this series. So Capt. Cassibry secured Fondren, the crack pitcher of the Preps, who performed creditably and showed that he will make a good pitcher for the college next year.

The double header on April the first resulted as follows: League, 5; Millsaps, 2. Millsaps, 11; Mississippi State Normal, 3.

In the game with the League team, the Leaguers furnished the Collegians a battery, and the Leaguers were unable to score until the sixth when Denson eased them over and let them make five runs.

With the exception of this inning, both pitchers performed well; they had their shoots working fine, and each team supported their pitcher in major league fashion. Brewster and Cheney were in the Jackson line up, while De Jean and Denson were in Millsaps uniforms.

In the second game which was the first of the series with the Normalites, Millsaps scored four runs in the first inning, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and four in the eighth. Holmes, the shortstop of the Normal team, thought that he could check our boys from batting in the eighth, but they knocked him as hard as they had Cox.

Jones, Hathorne and Cassibry for Millsaps, each got two hits, while every member of the team except the pitcher, got one or more runs. The State Normal boys seemed to be out classed at every stage of the game.

The score was as follows:

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Great Good Being Done by the Revival Meeting—Rev. Herbert Watkins Doing Great Preaching—Rev. O. C. Seevers Delights All With His Singing.

The meeting begun last Friday night under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., has been and is still making great progress. Never before have the students manifested such wholesale interest in a revival. They have been attending regularly and have seemingly been taking great interest in the proceedings.

Following the custom, the faculty has shortened each period to forty-five minutes, thereby getting through with the regular school work by twelve o'clock, at which time the morning service in the Y. M. C. A. Hall begins. In his talk to the students, in announcing this program, Dr. Watkins stated that while there was no rule requiring the students to attend these services, and no punishment to be inflicted if they did not attend, yet the faculty expected, in consideration of the arrangement, that each and every student attend the services. This expectation has been fully satisfied as the students have been almost universally attending.

Rev. Herbert Watkins has been doing some hard, strenuous and effective preaching. His every sermon has told, has taken effect. His preaching is fine and, we are glad to say, it has been getting the results. Not only is Mr. Watkins a good preacher, but his personal work is remarkable. He is making a great personal hit with the boys.

The singing, conducted by Rev. O. C. Seevers, has been exceptionally good. Mr. Seevers has a fine voice and is very happy in his selection of songs. The attitude that he has taken as one of the boys, has been very advantageous to the work that he has been doing. He is a good mixer, knows every boy on the campus already, and can call many of them by name.

One of the best things that has been done toward making the revival effective, has been the development of the praying spirit. Every evening immediately after seven o'clock, a great number of the boys have been meeting for a ten minute prayer service in one of the boy's rooms. This has been doing great good.

We do not know how much longer the meeting is going to last. We hope, however, that it will keep going as long as good is being done.

We have been reliably informed that we are to lose one of our very popular ministerial students, in the personage of Robert C. Edwards, in the near future. Edwards will depart at once for Beaumont, Texas, where he has accepted a position with one of the leading theatres of that city.

SECOND EASY FOR MILLSAPS—CONDREY

PITCHES GOOD GAME.

The second game of the series was an even more decisive defeat than was the first one. Jones and Cassibry were both wearing their batting clothes. Jones secured three hits out of five times up for a single, a double, and a triple, while Cassibry secured three hits out of four times at the bat. They were for a single, a double and a triple. There was a total of thirteen hits gotten by our boys. Mississippi Normal used two pitchers trying to stem the batting tide, but the last pitcher fared no better than the first one.

Condrey pitched this game and put up a fine exhibition of ball. He kept his hits well scattered and did not try for any strike out record.

THIRD GAME—MILLSAPS PLAYS INDIFFERENTBALL BUT NOSES OUT AHEAD.

Millsaps won the third game of the series despite the great number of errors which she made.

Cox pitched a good game for the Normal. He struck out six men and allowed nine hits. Brown pitched for Millsaps and had the Normal boys at his mercy at all times. This was the only game in which the Normal had a chance to win. If it had only rained in the seventh inning they would have, because they were six to Millsaps four at that time. In the eighth, however, Millsaps managed to push four more runs over the plate.

THE MIGHT OF LITTLE COURTESIES.

From time to time strangers come within our gates and our friends and loved ones visit our campus. They leave Jackson with some kind of impression of Millsaps College, either beneficial to our reputation and prestige or injurious thereto. That this is true there can be no controversy. We refuse to believe for a moment that any member of our faculty, Board of Trustees, or student body, could entertain any intention of producing an unfavorable impression on visitors. But we should cultivate more and more a spirit of college hospitality so that it will manifest itself so strongly when visitors come and visiting teams are with us that they will leave believing that it permeates our very atmosphere, if possible.

We sometime think individually that a stranger is nothing to us and that we are not individually bound to extend courtesy to him. Again we get so busy with attention to our duties and so absorbed in the various activities of college life, that we some times neglect to manifest the hospitality we feel for the visitors. And sometimes feeling runs high in a ball game and we cannot easily lay this down when off the field. This should not be prevalent among us and we know that Millsaps men are too big hearted and broad gauged to intentionally neglect or mistreat any one, for all who come here can be made, if they are not already, our friends. Millsaps has made wonderful strides in her career and forged rapidly to front rank among Southern colleges, but the possibilities that lie before her have not been touched. By making a friend and booster of every visitor we can do much to increase our enrollment and even our endowment.

So let us cultivate the habit of making the strangers within our gates feel such warmth of greeting and treatment as will make them come back again, and spread our fame wherever they go. Little marks of attention that show the spirit of college hospitality will work wonders in our favor and should never be neglected by any of us.

SPRING TENDENCIES.

The spring tendencies are making themselves manifest. The mocking bird is singing under the beautiful green tree and the co-ed with her wooer is sitting under the same tree—talking. The hitherto energetic Freshman and the buoyant Sophomore are now languidly creeping to their classes, while the Junior is emitting sighs of relief that there is not much more of this. The Senior, soon to be crowned with laurels green and feeling the glory of his position, is ashamed to show the season's ordinary effect upon him. It is hard, though, to keep from manifesting the lazy, drowsy, flemsy, sleepy feeling of spring—we all love the soothing effect, however much we strive to resist it.

Then, too, we are all longing for our customary spring activities. The farmer boy, who is among us, is longing to get back to the old farm and pull the bell cord over Beck's back while he gently articulates the familiar "Gee, har, fool." The merchant boy is longing for the old corner store where he can get upon the oaken counter, lay his head on the friendly stacks of calico stripes and read the baseball news. The boys of leisure are longing for the old haunts back home, some for the shade of the great oak behind the barn, where he slips out and reads "Diamond Dick" and "Buffalo Bill," others for the fishing rod and shot gun, with both of which instruments on his shoulder and "Teddy" following at his heels, he goes scampering off to the shady creek bank.

All of us are asking in our souls "How long?" Outwardly, tho, we will keep on our usual calm demeanor. We will go about our daily business, our studies and other duties with our customary diligence. Not only this, but we will work harder still, for we realize that the end is nigh and we know that everybody, those interested in us here and the people back home, are looking to us to finish fine. We have been running a good race. We have plodded on while others were giving up in despair and dropping out of the race. No, not one of us will give up now. We will cross the line; maybe not ahead of the rest, but certainly, we will cross the line.

THE DORMITORY AGAIN.

We note with pleasure that an effort has been made to interest the alumni in securing a lens for the observatory. We wish this movement success, and hope the lens will be speedily secured and be available for the students' use.

There is, however, a greater need felt by the college than this and one harder to satisfy. The need has been ably presented through the columns of the college weekly to the two conferences of this state. The task is great at this time but the good resulting from its performance goes to the very growth and vitality of Millsaps College in the future. We refer to the need for a dormitory for college students which from our standpoint, is an absolute necessity, and that in the near future. This I am sure is realized by all the friends of the college, and only discussion of means and ends is in point now.

First, as to the end sought. We are forced to conclude that only a thoroughly modern and up-to-date dormitory fully adequate for our growing needs should be built, and as to what would be its cost, we admit, we are not competent to say, but considering the demands that will be made upon the college dormitory facilities and their vital necessity, and also the principal, that to be in keeping with the original idea underlying the founding of the college, that of placing Millsaps on an absolutely solid basis, we can not agree with some or any of the published estimates so far made. It would seem to us that the cost of such a dormitory as would meet the future as well as the present demands could not be less than $75,000. Certainly, if a cheaper building should be decided upon and if it be at all practicable to include in the plans for same a provision for its future enlargement, this should be done. In such small compass, it is not possible to enter into any detail as to the reasons supporting this view, but they must be plain to one who has looked the matter over somewhat carefully and who entertains hopes of continued growth for Millsaps.

Second, as to the means. We think it is a self-evident proposition that all the friends of the college must get together, if the need for a dormitory is supplied, in such substantial manner as indicated above. So it follows, that the alumni will find a work to do and the end sought is well worth the serious attention and aid of every loyal alumnus. It matters not who leads if enough follow in the movement to raise the necessary funds, but somebody should take the matter up and all should take part in pushing it to success. Nor would it be, it seems to me, much harder, to raise $75,000 or more, than to raise only half that much. For if the building is to be a cheap one many of our best and wealthiest friends will feel like the end does not justify a great contribution and so they would not give as much nor as freely as they would to something that builds on a broader basis for greater and more far reaching results. There is also an enthusiasm that grows up about a great undertaking, as we all know, that does not attend smaller ones. We offer these few suggestions for what they are worth, sincerely believing that if the alumni association should formulate, or even aid in the solution of, plans that would bring about the erection of a dormitory adequate to the present and future needs of Millsaps College, the association would have more than justified its existence.

LAMARS MEET.

Anniversary Set for May 2.

The Lamar Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday night, but on account of the fact that there were no lights in the hall they were forced to dispense with the regular program and hold a short business session in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

The first Friday night in May was set as the time for the Lamar Anniversary and a committee was appointed to request Judge Reed to act as outside speaker for the occasion.

After a number of other business matters had been taken up and disposed of, Pres. Scott declared the house adjourned.

The Prep team lost last Monday for Port Gibson, Miss., where they engaged in three games of baseball with C. H. A. While up here some weeks ago the two teams divided a series of two games and the Preps are hopeful of getting a better handout on the trip. Prof. Ricketts went with the boys.

Wonder if the Bobashela and Faculty teams have gotten over the defeat administered them by the "Hoodlums"—at least, they haven't said anything more about playing us again.

Co-eds—An open invitation not to study.

Let every Millsaps student be at the meeting tonight.

J. D. Crisler visited home folks at Hattiesburg last week.

Mr. Floyd Loper of Lake, Miss., was here on business Saturday.

Prof. Lin is away from the college at present on a business trip.

Freshman—I came to Millsaps for—I believe I have forgotten.

Better write home for your check before your reports go out, boys.

We regret to record that James McClure has been on the sick list recently.

Dr. M. W. Swartz filled the pulpit at Pleasant Hill for Bro. McGee last Sunday.

"Big Foot" Jones has a new pair of shoes and leather has risen ten cents a pound.

Bro. Barrett reported that Savage sent in a Mississippi College fellow's collar to the laundry last week.

Prof. E. Y. Burton is absent this week with the team, much to the regret of the little Freshman.

J. T. Weems filled the pulpit of the First Church of Canton for the Rev. Guice last Sunday morning.

Jim McClure says his "drop" was not working last Saturday when the Preps defeated the Freshmen.

The many friends of Rev. F. H. McGee are rejoicing over his speedy recovery from a very severe attack of erysipelas.

Cole Burns, a former Millsaps student, now of Mississippi College, spent Sunday on the campus with friends and frat mates.

The Willingham boys returned to school Monday from their home at Eupora where they have spent several weeks recuperating. Both are much improved in looks and in health.

The Right Reverend Tom Ferguson, who was at one time a very popular student at Millsaps visited friends on the campus Saturday and Sunday.

Ed Livingston, formerly of Millsaps, and now a member of the senior class at the University, visited friends and frat mates here Saturday and Sunday.

Hon. J. B. Kirkland spent several days last week at D'Lo, Miss. Kirkland is being congratulated on securing the principalship of that school for next year.

"Bill" Colmer spent several days on the campus with friends last week. "Bill" has just completed a very successful year of teaching.

J. B. Cain returned to school Monday after an extended visit to home people at Dead Lake, Miss. We are glad to note that he is much improved in health.

If you hear strange noises in the chapel when you are passing there after night, don't be frightened, it is only the "Millsaps Dramatic Club" practicing.

Say, fellows, what about that Campus League again this year? Last year the league was a howling success and furnished no little amusement for the baseball fans while our Varsity was away. Why not appoint some managers and have a series of games at once?

News comes to us of the continued improvement of Bullock, whom it will be remembered has been very sick with typhoid fever for the last three or four weeks. We hope that he will have a speedy recovery and that he may soon be able to return to school to resume his work.

Quite a number of the boys went down to the Edwards House last Friday to see the "Heap Big Injun," James Thorpe. All members of our Varsity team looked on him with envious eyes, and it is even rumored that Jackson said he had rather be "Jimmy" than Woodrow.

Coach Fletcher Putting the Boys Through.

The track team is doing some excellent work. All the fellows are showing up well. Coach Fletcher has quite a bunch out every afternoon and judging from the way the boys are training and the determination they are putting into their work, Millsaps will no doubt put out a track team that will far surpass any that has ever represented her. The distance men are gaining in wind and strength daily; the pole vaulters and jumpers are smashing records every afternoon; the sprinters are quickening their stride every day; the weight men are getting in rare form and somebody had better look out next May.

Y. M. C. A.Ray Leads Prayer Service.

On account of the nearness of the annual revival, the Y. M. C. A. did not have a regular meeting last Friday night but in its stead the students gathered together and had a most interesting and uplifting prayer service.

One of our own boys, Olin Ray, acted as leader of the service. He read a chapter from Luke, after which he made a few well chosen and appropriate remarks on the text, "I am come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Ray was very fortunate in his selection of a subject as at this time no more appropriate one could have been found. Ray handled the subject in a very beautiful manner and his talk, together with the prayers that went up for the meeting, made a very fitting and appropriate beginning for the meeting which was to follow.

HOLIDAY TODAY.

Mississippi Interscholastic Oratorical Athletic Association Meets Here Today. Large Crowd Here—Big Time Expected.

The Mississippi Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association holds its third meeting here today. The students of the college have long been looking forward to this day. The faculty has granted a holiday and everyone is expecting to have a good time.

There are many schools represented. A great many that have not participated heretofore have come in, and there are boys here from all parts of this section of the state to take part in the meet. It will be remembered that Chamberlain-Hunt Academy took the trophy cup last year. The other schools seem determined that she shall not have it again this year.

Great preparations have been made for this meet. Pursuant to

SHAKESPEAREAN PLAY.

Practice Well Under Way—The Cast Completed—Valuable Assistance From Mesdames Watkins, Swartz and Pfiefer.

The date for the presentation of the Shakespearean play, "As You Like It," which Prof. Noble is getting up, has not been definitely set, but Prof. Noble has assured a reporter of this paper that it will be given not later than May 6th. Very probably May 5th or 6th will be the date. There will be at least two performances, one at the Natural Amphitheater which Prof. Noble has discovered somewhere north of the college grounds—the other will probably be at the Pythian Castle. There are nightly practises in the college auditorium, and the players are fast becoming perfect in their different parts. They are playing it just as the Ben Greet players and 900 I. I. & C. GIRLS AT ABERDEEN ON FRIDAY, MAY, 9TH. 2100 COLLEGE BOYS WILL BE THERE TO SHOW THEM THE TIME OF THEIR LIVES.

ON TO ABERDEEN

May 9th to Be Biggest College Day in History of State—Aberdeen People Making Great Preparations—Everybody's Going—
I. I. & C. Girls to Be There—Millsaps in Full Force
—Boswell to Win—Track Team to Win
—Big Time Expected.

Contest day on May 9th at Aberdeen is going to be the biggest day for the colleges of Mississippi in the history of the State. Everything is tending to make it so. The historic City of Aberdeen is leaving nothing undone which can help in making the big crowd of people who will gather there have a good time. This is the first time that it has had the privilege of entertaining the colleges and the people are doing their best to see to it that their city, after May 9th, shall have the name of being the best city in the state for such an affair. They are anxious for every college boy in the state to be there. They also want the alumni there and all the friends of the different colleges. In fact, they would like to have all the people in Mississippi there if it were possible to get them there.

We understand that the boys from all the colleges are going to turn out in full force. This is right. We hope it is so. There is nothing we enjoy more than to see a fellow stand up for his college no matter what college he belongs to, and this is the one supreme time when every boy in a college should take pleasure in manifesting his loyalty.

We understand, too, that the I. I. & C. girls are all going to be there. Mr. Whitfield, pursuant to his usual liberal course, has announced that all the girls may go who wish to. We know that all of them want to. Therefore, they will all be there. We are glad of it, too. It will help out wonderfully. The Aberdeen people want them and it goes without saying that the college boys want them.

Speaking for Millsaps College, the boys from here are going in full force. There won't be a half dozen left behind. They are all making their arrangements to that effect now. They are going up there to do two things certainly, another, probably. One of the certain things is to see Boswell win the medal, the other is to take the majority of the honors on the track. The probable thing is to play a game of baseball with A. & M. College to decide which of the teams is the champion team of the state. If they don't play this game they are going to root for one or the other of the teams which do play it.

You will notice that we said that Boswell is going to win the medal. This statement was made after due consideration. He won last summer at Crystal Springs. The man whom Boswell defeated there from the University was chosen to represent the University

OUR REVIVAL.

A Week of Worship—Strong and Helpful Sermons—A Reawakening of the Spiritual Life of the College.

During the entire part of last week there was conducted at the college the annual revival services of the Young Men's Christian Association. In many respects this is the most important event of the year.

Even in a church college, whose greatest mission is to further the cause of Christ, there is much need of a genuine revival of the old-time religion in the hearts and lives of men. Studying and discussing, as we do, the great things of the Gospel of our Lord, there is always a danger that we shall come to look upon religion as a pleasing and acceptable theory and forget that it is the power of immediate salvation in our own lives.

There have been two sermons each day by Rev. H. B. Watkins, one at twelve o'clock in the morning and the other at seven-thirty at night. Bro. Watkins is himself a young man, and not so far away from his college days at this institution and more especially for this reason has a message for each and every college student. His sermons were clear-cut presentations of the old, old gospel, appeals to each and all to choose the better way, and, having chosen the christian life, to exemplify it by closer walks with our Redeemer and to live nearer to the ideal as it was in Christ. There was brought out the duty and privilege of more holy living. No attempt was made to avoid a discussion of sin with its awful consequences, yet through each and every sermon pervaded the spirit of the love of Christ and the great compassion of the Son of God for a lost and dying world. The sermons alone with no attending circumstances would have been sufficient to have uplifted men and brought them back to duty.

OUR REVIVAL.

The singing has been of the first order, undoubtedly the best had at Millsaps in a number of years. Rev. O. C. Seevers is not only a master of the art of song but he is also a man with whom it is delightful to be associated. His solos were excellent and very much enjoyed. His attentive training of the choir showed forth in the last days of the meeting by the excellent song service of each day. A number of songs were given by a quartette made up from Harmon, R. H., Millman, Johnson, Alford, Watkins, A. F., and Broomfield.

The attendance has been unusually good in spite of certain handicaps. Quite a number of the student body including the baseball teams and several members of the faculty have found it necessary to be away during the time. Yet the student body on the campus and faculty came out in full force while the friends of the college came out loyally so that the attendance for each service was very gratifying.

One helpful feature of the services was the prayer service held just preceding the regular preaching hour at the room of some student. There were quite a number of men gathered each night to pray and find strength for the revival.

In regard to the results we feel that we can truthfully say that the spiritual life of the college is stirred as it has not been for some time. Practically every student has been impressed with the importance of Christianity in college life. Every christian pledged himself to a better life, some who had fallen by the wayside took up their cross again while others found for the first time Christ as a personal Saviour. For the final results time, yea even eternity alone can tell, but for the present the spiritual life of the college has been wonderfully blessed and strengthened.

HOLIDAY TODAY.

his usual course Prof. Burton has left nothing undone which would help in making the meet a success. He is to be congratulated on the big crowd of boys that he has here today.

This is the last year that Millsaps College will have this meet directly in charge. Next year Millsaps proposes to organize in each county a County Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. This association will constitute the membership of the State Interscholastic Oratorical and Athletic Association. The management of the meet will then pass from the control of Millsaps to that of officers elected by the association.

The programme for the day is as follows:

Track Events.

10:00 o'clock a. m. on Millsaps Field—Events:

1. 100-yard dash.
2. High jump.
3. 220-yard dash.
4. Pole vault.
5. Low hurdles.
6. Shot put.
7. One-mile run.
8. Broad jump.
9. Relay race.

There will be two games of ball this afternoon; one between the Millsaps Prep. team and Canton; the other between Jackson High School and McCómb City.

The Declamation contest will be held in the college chapel tonight at 7:30.

It is hoped that all the visitors will have a good time.

SHAKESPEAREAN PLAY.

are using the Ben Greet instruction books. The costumes have been ordered and will be the same as those used by the Ben Greet players.

The different parts have been assigned to the following, and they have all kindly consented to take them.

Rosalind—Miss Hortense Smith.
Celia—Miss Norma Long.

Phoebe—Miss Elizabeth Watkins.

Audrey—Mr. Keith Williams.
Orlando—Mr. Jack Gaddis.

Oliver—Mr. Frank Juliene.
Touchstone—Mr. Survetus Love.

Crockett.

Jacques—Prof. S. G. Noble.
The Duke—Mr. M. F. Clegg.

Silinius—Mr. W. S. Pearman.
Corin—Mr. Nat Golding.

Jacques De Buys—Mr. Alexander Watkins.

Adam—Mr. Keith Williams.
Amiens—Mr. Robert Harmon.

William—Mr. M. L. Mansell.
Forresters—Messrs. N. Johnson and S. B. Bufkin.

This is indeed a good cast. Prof. Noble should be congratulated on being able to secure the services of Miss Smith. She will play Rosalind to perfection. One would imagine Rosalind being one just such as she, with fine physis and an abundance of natural beauty.

Miss Norma Long is recognized as one of the leading and most brilliant students of the art of acting in the city. She will have the added advantage of training by Mrs. Pfeifer, formerly Miss Elise Williamson who, it will be remembered, played the part of Celia when the Coburn players presented "As You Like It," here two years ago.

To those who have seen Frank Juliene act it is necessary to say nothing, but to those who have not had this pleasure, we will say that he is the best amateur actor in the State. He and Miss Long have been asked to take these places on account of their experience.

Prof. Noble, who is a good student of Shakespeare, will make a great success as Jacques. His general attitude naturally suggests the philosopher and we have no doubt but that he will play the part of the philosopher to perfection.

All the characters have been

ON TO ABERDEEN.

over the man who is going to represent that institution at Aberdeen. This ought to show that the Crystal Springs man is the better speaker. It is generally conceded by the Mississippi College boys who have heard Boswell that he has their man out-classed, and to their praise, be it said, when you hear a Clinton fellow make a statement of this kind, you may know there is something to it. Everybody agrees that the A. & M. man won't be in the race so far as a chance of winning is concerned. So, by a process of elimination and on the demerits of the other representatives, our man is destined to win. But this is not all we claim for him. It is not only by his opponent's demerits, but on account of his own merits that he is going to win. He is a speaker of exceptional ability and he has written a speech of exceptional brilliancy and worth.

As to winning on the track, there is another article in this issue which sets forth our reason for believing that Millsaps' team is going to win honors on the track.

As for that probability, although Mississippi College has one game on Millsaps, yet the latter has a good chance of winning out over the Clinton boys in the next series. The Millsaps team has been steadily improving, and will be in much better condition when next it meets Mississippi College, than it was at the former meetings.

SCIENCE CLUB MEETS.

Interesting Program—Dr. Sullivan and Lester Address the Meeting.

The Science Club held a very interesting meeting last Friday afternoon. The program was one of the best of the year and the attendance was good. Much interest was manifested in the proceedings, Dr. Sullivan made an instructive talk on the Sweden Valley Ice Mine, a peculiar phenomenon that Dr. Sullivan intends to take up with the Geology class a little later on.

A feature of the meeting was the demonstration by Herbert Lester of an electric induction coil made by the senior physics class from material gathered from around the college.

The club promises some more interesting meetings soon.

Gene Morse spent last week in Gulfport where he went as a delegate to the Sunday School convention.

well chosen and we believe the play will make a great hit. Prof. Noble has been very fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mrs. Watkins, Mrs. Swartz and Mrs. Pfiefer to help him in training the different characters for their parts.

RESOLUTIONS.

William R. Harper, Lawyer, Scholar and Christian gentleman, has responded to the final summons. In the death of Judge Harper, we have lost an able, faithful and painstaking instructor; the legal profession, one of its most gifted members; the State, one of its best citizens. Although a very modest man, his great and sterling qualities always won and held the esteem of those who knew him. His loss is a distinct blow but we submit in faith, knowing that he has fought the good fight and gone to receive a valiant fighter's reward.

Therefore, be it resolved, That we feel keenly the loss of our instructor and friend.

Second, That we extend to his family our most sincere sympathy in this their great sorrow.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the class, a copy sent to the bereaved family and a copy be furnished to the city papers.

NOTICE.

On account of the absence of Editor Boswell last week this issue was gotten out by Associate Editor Scott.

THE REVIVAL.

The revival meeting has come and gone. The faculty and those among the students who are directly interested in religious work, have been looking forward to this event with much anticipation. Now they can rest with a consciousness of work well done. For never was work more earnestly or more diligently done.

We would not undertake to estimate the good that was done by the meeting. Such things cannot be estimated. There was good done, of course, that none knew not of. The secret, silent influence often times is the most lasting. One good that was done by this meeting might creep out ten years from now in the most unexpected place. If there is anyone who is disheartened because we did not have as great a revival as he might have hoped for, let him put aside his disappointment and remember that not half the good that was done has been seen.

There is one suggestion that we have to make. Now that the meeting is over, let not the work stop. Indeed, the most effectual work can now be done. There never was a successful revival if the work for good was stopped when the meeting stopped. Let the good work keep going.

AN EFFECTIVE COLLEGE SPIRIT.

There has been more genuine college spirit manifested at Millsaps this year than ever before in its history. Everybody has been pulling together. There has been less knocking and a more general desire for the welfare of the college than ever before.

This spirit has not failed to get results. We notice improvement on all sides—in every phase of college activity. Great strides have been made toward furthering the athletic interest; there has been a more general interest in oratory and debating; and, above all, the class-room work has been most excellent.

This college spirit has done much, but there is a yet greater task ahead. Millsaps must show up at her best at the contest in Aberdeen. She must have that medal, and she must have track honors, and, if she should play the championship game with A. & M., she must have it.

Every Millsaps man believes in Boswell. They believe that he is going to win the medal. The task, then, of this new-born college spirit is to back him up; let him know that it is with him and believes in him. This will help a great deal. Let us begin to meet and practice for the cheering on the 9th of May.

We believe, too, that the track team is going to win more, a great many more, victories this year than ever before. Let this spirit get behind the track men and urge them to run and jump as they never dreamed of doing.

Another great task that this spirit has to perform is to put it into the heads of the boys on our team that they can put it all over the Mississippi College team when next they play it. They can do this very thing, too. It is no pipe dream. The practice that the team has had, the victories that it has won, makes this entirely possible. Let every Millsaps man now resolve that he will go to Clinton when the team goes and help it win those games.

F. T. S.

If there is anything in dreams Millsaps college baseball outlook is most prosperous. Sam Lampton had a dream one night last week to the effect that in the games we have scheduled with Mississippi College our team had taken the first two games by large scores. The next day according to Lampton's dream it was suggested that the Senior class play the Mississippi team. The game was called on account of darkness with Millsaps Seniors thirty-three scores ahead of the Clinton boys. At any rate Sam's a mighty good dreamer.

TRACK PROSPECTS.

Good Work Being Done on the Track—Fletcher Doing Fine Coaching—Victory Almost Assured on May 9th.

The track team has been doing some good, hard work, during the last few days. All the boys who are trying for the track are showing up well. There has been a big bunch out every afternoon and judging from the way the fellows are training and the determination they are putting into the work, Millsaps will no doubt produce a track team far superior to any that has ever represented her. The long distance men are daily gaining in wind and strength; the weight men are getting in good form; the pole vaulter and jumpers are doing better every day; the fast men are getting faster.

Coach Fletcher announces it as his opinion that Millsaps is going to take not a few honors on May 9th. There is no reason why this prediction should not be fulfilled. Millsaps men have always been just as good as any of the rest, and all they have needed was the proper training. This Fletcher has lost no means to give them, and his own capacity along these lines has made his work doubly affective. It will be no little honor for Fletcher if he puts out a winning team, and this, as has been said, he is doing his very best to do.

We hope for him much success. We hope that when we come back here from Aberdeen, we will bring back track honors that we had never dreamed of and we do firmly believe that our team will win some signal victories.

All of Millsaps faculty, boys and girls, were delighted by a visit on the campus a few days ago from the Lewis girls, Flora B. and Eleanor. These two young ladies were co-eds during the two preceding sessions, and while here were very popular. There is a warm place in the hearts of all the students for them and a visit from them will always be welcome. While in Jackson they were the guests of Miss Stella Byrd on West Capitol street.

The financial status on the campus has been greatly impaired by the recent advertisement of the street car company that they would sell twenty tickets for one dollar. Indeed, the authorities of the college have been thinking of petitioning the company to take off this rate, as it has been the cause of more of the boys going down town.

PREPS LOST TWO TO C. H. A.

Good Ball Played on Both Sides —Preps Have Hard Luck in Third—Good Time Reported by All.

The Prep School Base Ball Team returned Thursday from a three days trip to Port Gibson.

Although the Preps failed to capture any of the games, the trip was enjoyed immensely by all.

One of the most delightful events of the trip was an entertainment given to the base ball boys by Miss Skipwith of Port Gibson. Prof. Ricketts accompanied the team and also reports a most pleasant trip.

The first game was won by C. H. A. by a score of 5-2. This game proved very interesting from start to finish.

C. H. A. lead off with a run in the second inning. With two men down M. P. S. put two men over the plate in the third inning.

The game then proceeded swiftly and without an error up to the seventh inning, when C. H. A. scored three runs.

Although M. P. S. succeeded in getting two men on bases in the eighth inning they were unable to score.

C. H. A. scored another run in the last of the eighth, leaving a final score of 5-2.

The following is the line-up for this game:

M. P. S.

B. Pearman, c.
W. Pearman, 1b.

The second game went down to C. H. A. to the tune of 4-2.

Up to the fifth inning neither team was able to score. In the first half of the fifth M. P. S. scored one run.

In the last half of the fifth C. H. A. succeeded in tying the score. M. P. S. again scored one run in the first of the seventh, and it looked as if things were coming their way. In the last half of the seventh several errors were made along with a hit and C. H. A. slipped three runs over. M. P. S. failed to score in the ninth.

The line-up follows:

M. P. S.

B. Pearman, c.
W. Pearman, 1b.
Quin, 2b.

The third game was by far the best of the series, although it was called just before the completion of the seventh inning. Had the seventh inning been completed, however, M. P. S. would have carried off the honors of the day.

Both teams were determined to win, and played fast and errorless ball.

In the last of the fifth inning with the score nothing to nothing, C. H. A. succeeded in filling the bases. With no one out they seemed to think they had a cinch, but disappointment awaited them. Taylor came to the rescue by striking out the next two men that faced him. The third man was caught out on a land drive to center-field.

In the first half of the seventh the first man up was thrown out at first. Quin followed, however, with a hit for two sacks. Davis followed Quin with another two-bagger and Quin scored. The next man up sacrificed Davis to third, but from there he was unable to score.

In the last half of the seventh, with the score 1-0 in M. P. S.'s favor, and C. H. A. at the bat, with two men down and two strikes and one ball on the batter, the umpire called the game on account of rain.

Following is the line-up:

JUDGE REED TO SPEAK.

Has Accepted An Invitation from the Lamars to Speak at Anniversary.

We are glad to announce that Judge Reed, a member of the Supreme Court bench, has been invited by the Lamar Literary Society to be the outside speaker for their anniversary occasion, and that he has accepted.

Since Judge Reed's advent into the City of Jackson he has made many friends, but among no set of people has he made as many friends as he has among the students of Millsaps. This is because he has manifested such an interest in them. He has responded to their every call; has lectured to Dr. Sullivan's Sunday school class; has addressed the Y. M. C. A. and in many other ways has shown his desire to serve them. The announcement that he is going to speak will no doubt attract a large crowd.

The date for the anniversary, as has previously been announced, has been set for Friday night, May 2, one week before the contest at Aberdeen, the purpose being to give Boswell, who is Anniversaryarian, an opportunity to deliver his contest speech publicly. It is hoped that every student in college will be there so that they may see how badly Boswell is going to mop up with his adversaries at Aberdeen.

Frank Scott is Anniversary Orator for the occasion. With three such distinguished speakers as Boswell, Scott, and Judge Reed, the anniversary ought to prove a great success.

Those who attended the revival services enjoyed the singing of the college quartette. We hope this is a permanent organization.

Skeate Williamson was on the campus last Saturday and Sunday. He is now traveling for the Morrison Coal Co., with headquarters at Jackson.

We were glad to see Judge Reed of the supreme court out one night last week to one of our revival services. It does us good to know that men like him are interested in us.

Prof. J. Reese Lin reports an agreeable consummation of the business which he left here to attend to. He also says that his physical condition is much improved.

Miss Birdie Grey Steen has actually seen the Millsaps Goat which it has been rumored was daily grazing on the Mississippi College campus. She says it has the Millsaps' colours attached to it's tail. Some of our most militantly inclined co-eds have suggested that all organize an expedition and go over and rescue it.

Harmon (Talking of the Shaw House ball team): "Who will be our pitcher?"

Big Henry: "Frazier ought to be, because he has plenty of 'Steen."

The boys were glad to see Bro. Smith of the First Methodist church out so frequently to the services of the past week. Bro. Smith is a staunch friend of the college boys and he is quite popular among them.

Dr. Kern went down to Brookhaven last Friday to officiate in a track meet. He spent Saturday and Sunday as the guest of Hodgie Henderson of Magnolia. He reports a splendid time and says that Henderson is doing fine work in Magnolia where he is principal of the schools. We are always glad to bear of the success of our Alumni.

Anyone attending the suffragette convention on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week no doubt enjoyed something very fine. We understand that the speech by Miss Jane Linfield, Millsaps '13, on "Suffrage from the Standpoint of a Co-ed," was especially good.

Ben Foster left last Monday afternoon for Lexington, Ky., where he has gone as delegate from the local chapter to the Pi Kappa Alpha convention which is now being held in that city. Foster is a former student of Transylvania University in that city, while Ben's conscientious scruples will not permit him to indulge in the spirits of the kind for which that land is famous, nevertheless we predict that he will be able to report a good time.

No. 27

JUDGE REED WILL PROBABLY SUCCEED JUDGE HARPER.

Students Much Elated Over the Prospect.

Judge Richard Reed, of the Supreme Court, will probably succeed the late Judge Harper as a member of the law faculty of Millsaps College. This will not be definitely known until the board of trustees of Millsaps meet in June. The election of someone to fill the vacancy will then take place and it is quite probable that Judge Reed will be selected.

It is known that the authorities of the College are anxious to secure the services of Judge Reed in this capacity. Judge Reed has signified his willingness to accept the position. It now remains up to the board of trustees. It can be confidently predicted that this body will be only too glad to have so distinguished a jurist connected with the college whose destiny they have in their hands.

The students of the college are very enthusiastic over the prospect of Judge Reed's being connected with the college. On several occasions since the death of Judge Harper the writer has heard prominent members of the student body express the hope that this thing would come to pass. Now that there is a very great probability of its doing so, it is needless to say that they are elated.

The election of Judge Reed to this place would mean a great deal to the college and especially to the Law Department. With Judge Whitfield and Judge Reed, both lawyers and judges of supreme ability, as instructors, the Millsaps Law School would be qualified to do excellent work and could offer the best of opportunities to law students.

The Purple and White sincerely hopes that the Board of Trustees will elect Judge Reed to this place and that he will accept.

Lamar Anniversary Tonight

Interesting Program—Judge Reed to Speak—Boswell to Deliver Contest Speech—Scott to Speak—Music Provided—Large Crowd Expected.

The Lamar Anniversary will be pulled off tonight. The exercises will be held in the college chapel.

The Lamars have been very fortunate in being able to secure the services of Judge Richard Reed, of the Supreme Court, to deliver an address. To those who have heard Judge Reed it is needless to say anything. To those who have not, we will say that there is a great treat in store for them if they take advantage of the opportunity and come out to hear him tonight. He is a pleasing and forceful speaker and always has something of interest to say.

Another feature of the occasion will be Boswell's speech. Boswell is Anniversarian and will deliver his contest speech tonight.

Scott is Anniversary Arator and will deliver a speech worthy of the occasion.

Music has been provided for the occasion. The public is cordially invited and it is hoped that a large crowd will be present.

ANNUAL FIELD MEET.

HOWE WINS FOUR FIRST PLACES—EVENT A GREAT SUCCESS—THE WINNERS AND PRIZES.

The annual field day and track meet was held on Millsaps field last Tuesday afternoon. Despite the fact that the meet occurred on the same day as a ball game with Union University, which was played at League Park, a large and enthusiastic crowd witnessed the various contestants compete for the different prizes which had been offered.

From a standpoint of records and the all round showing of the track team, the meet held Tuesday was by far the most successful of any ever held at Millsaps. Not only were the local records broken but in several instances were the state records of last year surpassed.

Of the individual men Howe won more points and made a better showing than any other. He entered four contests and won four firsts and also helped his team mates win the relay race. Robinson, Robert Harmon and Kirkland each won two firsts while Frazier, Nolan Harmon and Clifford captured one first each.

Here follows a list of the events, the prizes, the givers and the winners:

100 Yard Dash—$4 pair shoes, given by Tom Harris. Winner, Howe; second, Brumfield; third, N. Harmon. Time 11 seconds.

Shot Put—Box candy, Rhodes Drug Store. Frazier, first; Kirkland, second; Clifford, third.

Faculty Relay Race—Box cigars, the Monarch. Won by Nobles, Kern and J. M. Burton, over E. Y. Burton, Harrell and Sullivan.

2:20 Dash—Six pair socks, Magee-Hawkins. Howe, first; O'Donnell, second; Edmonds, third.

Broad Jump—Solid gold tie clasp, Carl J. von Seutter. Harmon, N. B., first; Silverstein, second; Clifford, third.

Co-ed Race—Tie between Miss B. Y. Steen and Miss Linfield.

Quarter Mile Race—Box cigars, Ford's Drug Store. Howe, first;

GALLOWAY ANNIVERSARY.

A Delightful Demonstration of Work of the Society—Crockett, Wroten and Broom Speak.

One of the most delightful occasions of the year was the anniversary celebration of the Galloway Literary Society last Tuesday night. These events are always of the very highest order as it is on this night that the societies hold their most important public meeting of this year and strive to make it the best by electing the very best speakers of the society to represent them. The Galloways were fortunate this year in having to represent them speakers who are distinguished as among the best, not only in their society, but in the entire school, consequently the public came to the meeting expecting much, nor were the fondest hopes of the most fastidious doomed. DATE FOR SHAKESPEARIAN PLAY SET.

"As You Like It," Will Be Presented Tuesday, May 6—To Be a High Class Performance.

The Shakespearian play, "As Lou Like It," which Prof. Noble has been working on for sometime, will be presented on Tuesday, May 6. There will be a presentation on Tuesday afternoon and another either on Tuesday or Wednesday night.

There is no doubt that this will be a high class performance. The best talent of the college community and of the city, will be in it. There has been faithful practice for the past six weeks, and every part will be presented perfectly.

All lovers of Shakespeare will be delighted with this play. The place of the presentation, the Natural Amphitheater, north of the college, is an ideal place for such an affair. It is one of the most beautiful situations in or about Jackson.

ed to disappointment. The speakers went beyond the expectations of their friends and reached heights of eloquence and brought forth thoughts with such clearness that it is apparent to every one that this occasion must surely have surpassed all former ones. With such speakers as Crockett, Wroten and Jim Broom, it could not have been otherwise.

Brumfield acted as president of the occasion and his grace and ease in welcoming the visitors and introducing the speakers did much to make the event a successful one.

The first speaker on the program was S. L. Crockett, than whom there is no better speaker in school. Crockett has won oratorical fame since he entered school by carrying off both the freshman and sophomore medals and winning a place as alternate to the college oratorical representatives, this year. He had chosen as his subject, "The Gem of Dixie," and his effort was one of the greatest orations of the year. A direct appeal to the men of Mississippi, it touched a responsive chord in the heart of all the listeners and the rounds of applause that followed the speaker showed that this popular speaker had more than pleased his audience.

Dorsey Wroten, as Anniversarian, came next and it needed only the announcement of his name and sub to insure the audience something good. Wroten is also afflicted with a reputation as an orator, and its an exceptionally good one, too. Wroten won both freshman and sophomore medals and is this year the college's representative to Mississippi Chautauqua Assembly at Crystal Springs. With such a speech and such a speaker, success is almost certain to crown his efforts there and another chautauqua medal added to Millsaps' already long list.

Wroten spoke on the subject, "The Growing Thought of the Twentieth Century." He had developed it in a most thoughtful and lucid manner, and speaking in his easy, graceful style, he easily captured the audience and held them throughout his talk.

If good things had proceeded they were not by any means exhausted when it became time to announce the outside speaker for the evening. It is customary to get for this important position some eminent divine or prominent citizen who has made a mark in the world, and in Dr. E. F. Edmonds, pastor of the First Christian Church of this city, they had such an one. Dr. Edmonds chose as his theme efficiency and developed it in a logical and thoughtful manner. His speech was a direct, straight forward, heart to heart, appeal to young men to so prepare themselves and equip themselves that they will be ready and able to fight the good fight. His talk was greatly enjoyed by those present and the Galloways are to be congratulated on securing him to address them on this occasion.

The Galloways are much elated over the success of the meeting and its success will aid them in many ways.

SOPHOMORES SPEAK; BRUMFIELD WINS.

The annual oratorical contest of the sophomore class took place in the college chapel last Monday night. As this is the first contest in which these young men have been engaged in which original orations were required, the outcome was anxiously awaited. All the speakers were ready for the occasion and spoke as if each had previously determined that he would be there at the final count. The speeches, most of which were on popular subjects, proved to be orations of the best type and showed much originality and thought on the part of the various authors.

After due consideration, the medal was awarded W. O. Brumfield, who spoke on "The Call of Progressivism—Democracy." Brumfield handled the subject in a masterful way and is being warmly congratulated over winning such a distinguished honor.

The other participants in the contest and their subject were:

K. M. Broom, "Mississippi's Greatest Need."

W. O. Brumfield, "The Call of Progressivism—Democracy."

C. C. Case, "Duty Measured by Opportunity."

N. L. Cassibry, "Eulogy on Lavararola."

J. R. Gathings, "The Tendency of History."

R. T. Henry, "The Confederate Spy."

O. G. Crout, the crack pitcher of the prep varsity, has been forced to leave school on account of his eyes. His absence will be greatly felt by his team mates as well as the entire prep department.

No more popular man has ever attended Millsaps, and he carries with him the best wishes of the entire student body. We expect him to do great things.

Everybody is cordially invited to come out to the Lamar Anniversary tonight.

Last Sunday's issue of the Daily News contained the announcement of the approaching marriage of an old Millsaps student—that of Swep Taylor to Miss Janie Rice of Charleston, Miss., which event will take place on the fifth of June.

STAY TO COMMENCEMENT.

It has been said that one of the most noticeable things which a visitor sees when attending our commencement is the small number of students who remain for the closing exercises. There is not doubt but that too few of our students stay during the commencement season and this lack of interest on the part of the students is a most deplorable and regrettable one.

We believe that a student who leaves before the last of the commencement exercises is over, leaves before he has gotten all the good out of his college year, for he misses the most enjoyable and helpful events of the session. Of course, it is natural for us when our examinations are over and the days are getting hot to want to go home, but then when we consider the good things in store for us, we should be patient and take time to reap the full benefits from them.

One of the reasons we should during commencement is the fact that if we are not participants in any of the various contests ourselves, the fellows who are, need and are entitled to our presence and encouragement. They are working in order that they may bring glory not on themselves alone, but on their college as well, and it behooves those who have not been so industrious as they to support them.

In the next place, we have the opportunity at commencement to hear eminent divines and celebrated men whom probably we shall never have the opportunity of hearing again.

These men have prepared their sermons and speeches especially for us—college men. They come here to talk to college men and they bring us truths and messages that we cannot afford to miss. Not only should we broaden ourselves by staying and hearing these distinguished men because of our own self betterment thereby, but because they come to speak to us and are entitled to our presence. We should be here to show them that we appreciate the efforts they are putting forth in our behalf.

Then another thing: Commencement is a season of joy. No classes are to be met, no examinations stare us in the face, but freedom without a care and without a trouble bids us enjoy ourselves to the fullest. It is a period of recreation and rest from school work. It is a time when one has time to mingle with his fellow students and to learn them better ere the separation, probably forever. Why not stay and enjoy this season then?

The coming commencement promises to be one of the most notable in the history of the college. No better speakers could have been selected than Bishop Kelgo, who will preach the commencement sermon, and Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh, who will deliver the commencement address. They are both men of exceptional ability and their presence assures the success of the commencement occasion.

Let us then, have a great crowd of students to stay this year until the very last day. Let not a single man go home before June the tenth. We feel confident that each and every man who remains will count the time well spent.

BEAUTIFY THE CAMPUS.

We see no reason in the world why the campus should not be made more presentable than it is. It is very easy to understand why we can't have some more fine buildings, such as a one hundred thousand dollar dormitory or a ten thousand dollar gymnasium. We can see why more departments are not created and a great many other things done which would tend to build up the college but, as we said above, there is no excuse for not beautifying the campus.

The natural beauty of our campus is most abundant. The scenery on the western side of the grounds is as pretty as can be found on any campus in the South. On the eastern side toward North State street the campus is capable of unlimited improvement.

It would be a great deal better to have a stranger who comes here to go away and say that we have a pretty campus, than to say we could make a pretty one of it. A person's first impression of a place is the most lasting.

It might not be possible to do nearly all that could be done toward beautifying our campus, but we could keep the weeds mowed down and the trees trimmed. Likewise, we could have some comfortable benches made and put under the shade trees.

DR. WATKINS OUT OF TOWN.

Has Gone to Dallas to Southern Educational Conference of the Methodist Church.

Dr. A. F. Watkins left last Saturday for Dallas, Texas, where he has gone to attend the meetings of the general board of the Methodist Church. He is a member of the Board of Missions in which he is greatly interested.

Dr. Watkin's especial interest was the Southern Education Conference of the Church which began on the 28th. He is making an extended stay as he will not be back until May 11th. We hope Dr. Watkins is having a pleasant trip.

FRESHMEN DECLAIM.

Millsaps Medal Hotly Contested—Johnson Wins—Eight Speakers Acquit Themselves Well.

One of the best freshmen oratorical contests ever pulled off at Millsaps was held in the college chapel last Friday night. Eight contestants who had successfully passed the censorship of preliminary judges, marched up and rendered declamations that would do credit to a Cicero or a Demosthenes. All the young men were well prepared for the occasion and spoke with all the ease and grace of "old timers." Well did they all acquit themselves and so close indeed was the decision that the public anxiously awaited the announcement of the fortunate winner. The announcement was made last Monday night and the medal awarded to Malvin Johnson who spoke on the subject, "The Nation's Danger."

Dr. Sullivan, chairman of the committee on public entertainments, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers.

The following is a complete list of the speakers and their subjects:

E. L. Hillman, "Blenner hasset."

R. C. Edwards, "The Confederate Soldier."

Melvin Johnson, "The Nation's Danger."

T. L. Carraway, "Bishop Galloway."

L. H. Hendrix, "Sir Phillip Sydney."

O. D. Hutton, "America's Mission."

James McClure, "Spartacus to the Gladiators."

MILLSAPS DEFEATS M. U. S. WARD INVINCIBLE.

On account of the weather only one game of the series was played with M. U. S. Last year Millsaps took three games from the Memphis boys, so they came back this year to get revenge. But they were unable to connect safely with Ward's benders and their hopes were smashed. At no time was the game in danger as the fielding of Millsaps was perfect and Ward allowed only three safties during the entire game. The game started off as if it would be an excellent exhibition, but the heavy hitting of Millsaps and the loose playing of M. U. S. soon proved that M. U. S. was a little out of her class. The game was stopped several times on account of light showers but this did not mar the pleasure of a single fan as the times of intermission were very short.

McCall pitched a good game for M. U. S., but he was hit when hits meant runs.

The M. U. S. boys are a good, clean set of boys, and although a prep. school, they put up a good fight and were game until the very last.

The feature of the game was Ward's pitching.

HENRY WINS MOREHEAD MEDAL.

A. & M. College Wins Sophomore Debate.

The annual debate between speakers of the sophomore classes of Millsaps and A. & M. College was held in Moorehead, Miss., last week. Henry and Cassibry were the Millsaps representatives, although they lost the decision, Henry was awarded the medal for having the best speech. Both he and Cassibry acquitted themselves well and although they lost we feel sure that they put up a hard fight for the decision.

The question debated was, "Resolved, That the law passed by the last Legislature, that corporations cannot own and acquire land in Mississippi for agricultural purposes, is just. Millsaps upheld the affirmative.

UNION EASY FOR FOR MILLSAPS.

Millsaps Again Wins Series— Harris and Ward Work Fine —Second Game a Batting Bee for Both Teams.

Millsaps again succeeded in wresting a series from Union University last Monday and Tuesday. Although the third game of the series had not been played at the time this paper goes to press, the Millsaps boys were confident of taking it also. The Union boys came over from Clinton Sunday and from the remarkably close games which they put up with the Clintonites the Millsaps were not expecting to do much romping on them. However, the boys got started and since they got started they decided to keep the good work going and take as many as possible.

Harris Invincible in First.

In the first game Harris was master of the situation at all stages of the game, holding the Unionites to five scattered bingles while his own team mates were busy securing a total of twelve safeties, netting nine markers, as against one for the visitors.

The Union bunch use three pitchers, but none were effective, the locals batting the ball when hits meant runs.

The Millsaps boys all played jam up ball. Two pretty catches, one by Holloman, the other by Gaddis, who made a double play unassisted, featured the fielding, while Condrey and Jackson gathered the hitting honors, each getting three hits out of three times up.

Tobacco that is Good for Your Nerves

JOEL HILLMAN

Joel Hillman, proprietor of the famous "Harvey's" restaurant at Washington, D. C., says:

"Tuxedo is a good, wholesome tobacco, with a mildness and fragrance all its own. It adds many degrees to my pipe pleasure."

Joel Hillman

TUXEDO actually soothes the nerves. It is just mild enough to keep your nervous system in poise, your muscles in tone. Unlike other tobaccos, Tuxedo burns cool and slow. There cannot be a speck of irritation in a pound of Tuxedo.

Great singers smoke Tuxedo just before a performance. Public speakers testify as to its soothing influence. Doctors recommend it to smokers whose throats are delicate.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

One reason for its superiority is the unique "Tuxedo process" by which all the unpleasant features are eliminated from tobacco.

The other reason is that Tuxedo is made from the best tobacco grown—the choicest, mildest, mellowest leaves of the highest grade Burley tobacco.

Tuxedo is widely imitated—but no other manufacturer has succeeded in making a tobacco as good as Tuxedo.

Go to your dealer today and get a tin of Tuxedo. It will give you the greatest pleasure and satisfaction that money will buy.

There were two colored men talking in loud tones at the other end of the railway platform, and we walked down to hear what the row was about. One of them was a deacon in a colored church and the other was a drayman. The former was flourishing a paper in his hand and saying:

AGENT QUICK TO SEE POINT

Dog's Collar Revealed Character of Tenants and They Couldn't Rent the Flat.

References which appeared satisfactory had been placed in the hands of the renting agent, who was on the point of declaring them unnecessary, owing to the genteel appearance of the applicants for a flat, when suddenly he exclaimed:

"By the way, I'm sorry, but I don't believe I can let you have that flat, after all. It's been spoken for."

When the possible tenants had departed indignantly, the agent said:

"Do you know what made me change my mind so suddenly? It was their dog's collar. In lifting the little fellow up to pet him I read the inscription on his collar. It was engraved with four different addresses, all of which had been put on since last tax day. Three of the addresses had been scratched out, and if they had secured my flat another would have been scratched out and a fifth added by day after tomorrow. A dog's collar marked like that shows that his owners don't stay in one place long enough to get a new plate on his collar between moves, and I don't care to rent to transients."

Altogether Beyond Him.

A leading New York newspaper once sent a man to cover the big Baltimore fire. He was a specialist in what some one has termed "marshaled adjectives," and he was depended upon to impart the necessary "color" to the leading story on the great conflagration. With him were sent a half dozen other men to get the detailed facts.

The descriptive writer fell in with a party of convivial spirits, and as the fire kept spreading and relentlessly eating into the vitals of the business section of the city he kept moving from saloon to saloon with his friends. As soon as one was burned out he moved on the next. Needless to say, no descriptive matter from his pen was seeping into his New York office from the wires.

The managing editor was frantic and began to bombard Baltimore with a series of frenzied telegrams. By some rare good luck one of the messages reached the descriptive writer. It read:

"Why are you not sending descriptive story?"

The reporter scribbled a reply and gave it to the boy. It read.

"Can't write anything. Fire baffles description."

Greedy Sanders MacHoot.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, on account of the 100 per cent. increase in the price of gasoline, plans to supply the automobilists of the Hub with motor oil at wholesale rates.

"Greed," said Mayor Fitzgerald the other day, "greed is the sole reason for the rise in gasoline. That is admitted frankly. Well, such incredible greed as that reminds me of Sanders MacHoot of Peebles."

"Sanders, have another drink," a friend said, entering a bar, where MacHoot was just tossing off a glass of whisky.

"Na, na," answered Sanders MacHoot. "I winna hae anither, but ye can pay for this if ye like."

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI, FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1913.

No. 28

BOSWELL WINS IN M. I. O. A. Millsaps Joyous Over the Great Victory.

Again Millsaps has been returned the victor in the Mississippi Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest; again has the Purple and White banner waved triumphantly over the emblems of the other institutions and her orator crowned with the first honor in this contest of contests. Genuine wholesouled rejoicing reigned supreme over the Millsaps campus when it became known that Boswell had been declared the winner.

The contest was one of the best held since the organization of the association, and Millsaps is especially fortunate in plucking the first honor in such a hard fought contest.

Millsaps' strongest adversary proved to be Mr. M. E. White, of the State University. White spoke on "The Panama Canal and the South," and when he sat down things were not particularly bright for Millsaps. However, not only was Boswell's speech named "The Man of the Hour," but he himself proved to be the man of the hour in the oratorical contest, for as one of the judges afterwards expressed it, "he had only spoken a few moments when it was apparent to every one that he was far above his competitors in delivery and it was only a question of how the manuscript judges had served it, as to whether he would win or not."

Hardly had the master of ceremonies announced that Boswell won when the enthusiastic Millsaps boys cheering and yelling leaped to the platform and raising the winner to their shoulders carried him in triumph through the principal streets of the city.

Boswell has won for the college one of the greatest honors it is possible for any student to win and he is being warmly congratulated on his success both by the students and the friends of the college.

Boswell's winning gives Millsaps eight firsts and three seconds

BASEBALL AVERAGES--SOME DOPE ON THE PLAYERS

PLAYERS FIELDING AND BATTING AVERAGES--HARRIS AND CONDRY LEAD BATTING, CASSIBRY AND GADDIS FIELDING--HARRIS WINS MOST GAMES.

The Purple and White has just completed figuring up the averages for the players of the baseball team. From the table it will be seen that out of twenty games played Millsaps won ten and lost ten, giving her an average of .500 which, considering the class of teams she went up against and her youth in the athletic line, is very good.

Harris leads the batting averages with an average of .406, which is something that anyone might well be proud of. For the regulars, Condry leads with an average of .388 with Cassibry next, with .362.

Cassibry lead the fielding averages with .971, with Gaddis second with .958. Gaddis accepted the most chances, taking 198 during the season. Cassibry came next with 174 and Holloman third with 107.

For the pitchers, Harris won four and lost two; Ward won two and lost five; Condry won two and lost two; Brown won one and lost one.

MILLSAPS WINS OVER HENDRIX.

Scott and Morse Victorious in Intercollegiate Debate.

The joyous news comes to us from Hendrix that our representatives, Scott and Morse, were successful in the debate against that college on last Monday night. This success is particularly pleasing to Millsappers, since Hendrix has defeated us in two former debates. The Hendrix boys have demonstrated that they are good debaters and the Millsaps boys real-

TRACK MEET.

Harmon Smashes Southern Record—Other Places Won by Millsaps.

The Millsaps boys had to remain content with last place in the track meet but they were consoled by the fact that Mississippi College only beat them three points and that R. Harmon pulled off a stunt that was not duplicated by any other contestant in the meet—that is, he broke the Southern record for the pole vault. To do this he had to vault over the pole at a height of 11 feet, 3 1-2 inches, which we claim was going some.

Harmon had all the other contestants outclassed in form and everything else and his winning was evident from the first. Harmon received much praise and many congratulations for his skill and Millsaps is proud of the record he made.

The other points made by Millsaps were all on second and third places. A. & M. was master of the meet at all occasions and hardly gave Millsaps and Mississippi College a look in.

The other points won by Millsaps representatives were as follows:

220 yard dash—Holloman, second place.

Half mile—Brumfield, second place.

Mile—Robinson, third place.

High hurdles—Clifford, third place.

Low hurdles—Kirkland, third.

Relay—Millsaps, second place. The relay was run by Brumfield, Clifford, Kirkland and Howe.

Considering the strength of the A. & M. team and the crippled conditions of our team, Millsaps came out fairly well and it is hoped that her men will be in the fight stronger than ever next year.

The commencement for the preparatory school will take place several days preceding that of the college department.

ized that they were up against a hard proposition. Hence, for these reasons Scott and Morse deserve special commendation and praise for the clean cut victory which they scored over Hendrix.

The question debated was, "Resolved, That Woman Suffrage Should be Adopted." Scott and Morse had the negative side. Both men had excellent speeches on the subject and it was no surprise to Millsaps students to hear of their victory.

Scott was a member of the debating team that won over A. & M. last year with the same subject.

Both speakers are receiving the congratulations of the student body and friends over the successful result of their efforts.

The speakers were royally entertained while in the Arkansas city and report a delightful trip.

We regret very much to record the death of one of Millsaps most prominent alumni—Dr. W. W. Catchings, of Georgetown. The sad event occurred at his home in Georgetown recently. The Purple and White extends deepest sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

SHAKESPEREAN PLAY.

Pleasing Presentation of "As You Like It."

On Tuesday afternoon and evening, May 6, the local cast of "associated players" staged what is probably the best local talent show that has ever been pulled off at Millsaps or even in the City of Jackson. On account of the rainy condition of the weather it was impossible to have the play in the open air as had been previously arranged, so the troupe adjourned to the college chapel, where a large and enthusiastic audience witnessed the performance.

The costumes which had been procured for the occasion were all very appropriate and added much to the success of the play.

The actors were all good—each one carrying out his or her part with the same ease and grace as might one of the Coburn players. The leading characters were especially strong and showed that they were thoroughly capable of handling in a most acceptable manner the different parts assigned them. Miss Smith, as Rosalind and Jack Gaddis, as Orlando, covered themselves with glory.

Crockett as Touchstone, made a big hit with the audience. All the other players acted well their parts and deserve much credit for the success of the play.

Prof. Noble was highly gratified over the outcome of the play and is being warmly congratulated over its success.

The entire cast of characters was as follows:

Rosalind.....Miss Hortense Smith
Celio.....Miss Norma Long
Orlando.....Mr. Jack Gaddis
Phoebe.....Miss Elizabeth Watkins
Andrey.....Mr. Keith Williams
Oliver.....Mr. Frank Julianne
Touchstone.....Mr. S. L. Crockett

SENIOR SPEECHES.Day Set On Which Faculty Will Hear Seniors.

The date for the seniors to charm the faculty with their senior orations has been set for May 20. On that day every member of the senior class, "loaded for bear," will assemble on the chapel rostrum and prepare to turn loose the flood gates of oratory and pour forth broadside after broadside of eloquence and convincing arguments.

The faculty after careful deliberation will announce the names of those speakers who will be permitted to wake up the neighboring populace on the Monday of commencement week.

No doubt all the seniors have been laboring earnestly on their respective orations and will give their audiences something well worth listening to.

Y. M. C. A. TONIGHT.Dr. Kern Will Talk, After Which the Annual Election of Officers Will Be Held.

It is important that every member of the Y. M. C. A. be present tonight. The first thing on the program will be a talk by Dr. Kern in which he will tell the students something about the summer conferences. It is hoped that a number of Millsaps students will attend these conferences this summer, and they should be out to hear what Dr. Kern has to say on the subject.

The next thing will be what is probably the most important event of the whole year—that is the annual election of officers. It is earnestly desired that as many of the members as possible be present to participate in this important duty.

The meeting will be called to order promptly at seven-thirty.

MILLSAP'S SPONSORS.

Millsaps was well represented at Aberdeen in the way of sponsors. Both Miss Edmonds, the oratorical sponsor and Miss Buck, the track team sponsor proved to be ideal ones, adding much inspiration and grace to the occasion. These two, with Mrs. Watkins as chaperon, formed an ideal party and the wonder is that Millsaps didn't win more than she did. Others in the party chaperoned by Mrs. Watkins were Misses Lowther, Steen and Anderson.

One of the most beautiful homes in Aberdeen was thrown open to the party for the day through the generous hospitality of Mr. Gay, one of Aberdeen's most prominent citizens.

ALUMNI BANQUET.Special Program at Chapel and Banquet Planned for Alumni During Commencement.

Prof. Harrell, together with other members of a committee of the alumni is working up plans for a home coming of the alumni during commencement. Although the details of the programs have not as yet been perfected, there will probably be a meeting in the college chapel held on Monday night during commencement, with a special program and a banquet at one of the leading hotels immediately afterwards.

From all indications it appears that a goodly number of our alumni will be present for the event and the venture is almost assured of a great success. A full outline of the plans will appear in an early issue.

COMMENCEMENT COURIER.Interesting Daily Will Again Make Its Appearance During Commencement.

The editorial staff of the commencement courier are preparing to make the coming number the best in the history of this paper. The staff is a good one and they are capable of carrying out their determination to make it a lively, up to the minute paper in every respect. The Purple and White wishes it the very best of luck.

The staff is as follows:

G. H. Moore—Editor-in-Chief.
W. M. Cain—Associate Editor.
Miss Janie Linfield—Social Ed.
J. B. Kirkland and H. H. Lester—Reporters.

F. H. McGee—Bus. Managers.
J. D. Wroten and J. B. Honeycutt—Assistant Bus. Managers.

Now is the hour for the one great effort of your year's work; for the goal post (final examinations)—is in sight.

EXAMINATIONS.

There's no rest for the wicked. Lo and behold examinations are upon us. Tuesday next marks the entrance of the seniors' waterloo, while those of the under classmen follow one week later. Busy days they will be, too, for then the midnight oil must be burned and wasted time and opportunity must be paid for. Those of us who have lived the life of ease and pleasure unmindful of our classroom duties, either through negligence or from an over-burden of outside work, must then pay the fiddler by boneing, grinding and cramming. The neglected work must be gotten up, for the laws of the examination room are as pressing as the most binding laws of any monarch. The examinations must be passed and in an honorable manner.

Our honor system is too well established in the minds and habits of our students to permit of any thing short of honest, conscientious work in the examination room. There must be no traitors in our school. Our system demands that every student pass or fail, on his individual merit. This is as it should be. "Those who dance should pay the fiddler." If we waste our time to such an extent that we are unable to cram in enough to pass, we should bust. It is not the square thing to the other fellows for us to pass unless we have done the work.

We rejoice that this sentiment prevails at Millsaps. We rejoice that our students have time and again, by word and deed, put themselves squarely on record as being heartily in favor of the honor system. Let us maintain this high standard. Let not a single student, during the coming examinations, do anything that will reflect on the honor, either of himself, the honor council or the school.

OUR BALL TEAM.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a summary of the doings of the ball team. While the averages are not such as would indicate that we are champions of the S. I. A. A., we believe that our team deserves warmest congratulations for the showing which they have made. Of course, owing to the short time which has elapsed since we have been permitted to indulge in inter-collegiate games and go out of our own back yard to play, we are as yet handicapped to some extent in the athletic line, but we confidently believe that Millsaps is fast working up to the point where she will be able to put out a state championship team. Although defeated, truly, "we mourn not as those who have no hope." As we have said before, we cannot expect to put out a winning team in one year, or even two or three. We must keep plodding onward and upward, backing the team in every possible manner and never putting any team in the field except a well trained one.

Fellows knowing good ball players should talk to them and convince them that Millsaps is the place for them and then when we get them here make them realize that they should stay here the four years.

Too much praise cannot be given Prof. Burton for his work in athletics. He is the man behind the gun and what we need is a student body that will catch some of his spirit and work for a winning team. Let's all do something for next year's team. Talk it up during the summer. Let the people know that we are going to have some team next year and come back next session prepared to do your part in putting out a winning team.

THE 1913 BOBASHELA.

Again the year book, The Bobashela, has made its appearance, and again the staff is being warmly congratulated over the successful outcome of their hours of toil and labor. It is indeed fitting that the staff of '13 should be showered with congratulations for they have wrought well and the product of their labors is destined to go down in the history of Millsaps as one of the best annuals ever gotten out.

The senior class deserve credit for the spunk which they showed in putting up the necessary guarantee. The business managers deserve credit for the conservative and successful way in which they have thus far conducted the financial end. The editorial staff deserves credit for the unexcelled manner in which they have gathered up, created and moulded together the material which has gone to make the annual the beautiful, finished product which it is. We feel sure that the student body and all the friends of the college highly appreciate the excellent manner in which the annual has been gotten out.

The Bobashela is the one book which in after years, will turn a student's thoughts back to the days spent at his alma mater. It will not only carry his thoughts back to the good old college days, but it will bring before his eyes scenes and faces that will grow dearer as the years go by. In this way The Bobashela will be of inestimable value to him and provide him with many a pleasant hour in the years to come. This being the case no students should be without a copy. The business managers are now disposing of the books and we would urge every student in school to procure one at the very earliest possible moment.

SOCIETIES WILL MEET.

Interesting Session Promised by Both Lamars and Galloways.

Both the literary societies will hold their regular weekly meetings tonight. Owing to the fact that so many things have happened on Friday night for several weeks past they have been unable to meet. The meeting tonight will be an interesting one in both societies as they both have prepared a good program and in addition have a number of important business matters to take up.

BOBASHELA OUT.

Millsaps Year Book Makes Its Annual Appearance—Congratulations to Staff on Success of Publication.

The Millsaps College, 1913, Annual, The Bobashela, has just made its appearance and is the joy and pride of all who have seen it. The business managers have been busy all week disposing of them. The annual is one of the best ever gotten out in the history of the college. It is full of live, interesting material from beginning to end.

It is enclosed in a handsome leather back, embossed with a big "M" on the outside cover, which gives it a neat substantial look. Among the special features are the Class Prophecy, by Miss Smith, and the short story entitled, "The Love Affair of a College Professor." Both are extra good and deserve the attention and praise of all the annual's friends.

The editorial staff and the business managers are to be warmly congratulated over getting out such an excellent publication. They have given the college something of which she may be justly proud, and they deserve unstinted praise for the successful product of their many efforts.

The annual is dedicated to Prof. R. S. Ricketts and is a fitting testimonial of the appreciation and affection which the students feel towards him for his long and useful life spent largely in the interests of Millsaps College.

DR. WATKINS RETURNS.

Extended Trip to Methodist Institutions.

Dr. Watkins returned to school Monday greatly to the delight of the student body. Dr. Watkins has been absent for several weeks and during that time has had a most delightful and enjoyable trip. He has been visiting some of the largest and best Methodist schools in the South.

From Jackson Dr. Watkins went to Shreveport, La., where he visited Centenary College. From there he went to Dallas, where he saw laid the corner stone of the new Southern Methodist University, a school with an endowment of $1,000,000, and the biggest Methodist school in the South. While in Dallas, Dr. Watkins attended a meeting of the Board of Education of the Southern Methodist Church.

Next, Dr. Watkins went to Georgetown, Texas, to visit Southwestern University, another Methodist school with seven hundred students. From there he went to Fort Worth, to visit still another Methodist institution, this one being the Polytechnic Institute of Fort Worth.

On his return, Dr. Watkins again stopped at Dallas to attend a meeting of the General Board of Missions.

The President says that he had a most delightful and enjoyable trip but is glad to again get back and mingle with the boys and attend to his duties at home.

Mark Guin, '11, was one of the old Millsaps boys who came over to the contest, to see Millsaps win.

Dr. Paul Kern, of Nashville, spent several days of last week visiting his brother, Dr. A. A. Kern.

C. E. Johnson, '10, who is now practicing law at Philadelphia, Miss., was here for the Lamar anniversary.

Boyd Campbell, '09, principal of the Eupora High School, visited friends and frat mates here Thursday a week ago.

The Willingham boys enjoyed a visit of their father, Mr. W. J. Willingham, of Eupora, last Monday and Tuesday.

Prof. Lin went to Hattiesburg the latter part of last week to be present at the Teachers Association, held in that city.

John Weems, '07, a prominent merchant of Shubuta, visited friends and fraternity mates on the campus Thursday.

Rev. R. C. Edwards filled the pulpit of the Methodist church at Terry last Sunday, and delivered two good sermons to large and appreciative audiences.

That victory over Hendrix looks mighty good to Millsappers. Specially since Morse and Scott got an unanimous decision.

Miss Annie Bessie Whitson, '12, who has just finished a successful year of teaching in the Louisville High School, is at home to the delight of her many friends.

Scott and Morse returned Wednesday afternoon from Arkansas, where they defeated the strong debating team from Hendrix College.

Dorsey Wroten was called up in the northern part of the state last week to conduct the funeral services of one of the members of his work up there.

Dr. Bernard, one time student of this college, and now one of the leading dentists of the city, spent several hours Monday evening with friends on the campus.

Stanley Hinds, Edwin Trice and Street Hinds, of Tupelo, and "Red" Phillips of Booneville, former Millsaps students, were present at the contest.

George Hyer Moore, one of the most prominent members of the senior class, made a business trip to Tylertown and Magnolia the latter part of last week.

The Harmons were strictly in it at Aberdeen. Bob Harmon smashed the Southern record for the pole vault, and Harman Boswell ruined three schools chances at the medal.

Well, well, we wonder what became of the large baseball with "Championship 1913" printed on it, which Mississippi College took to Aberdeen. Condolences, grieved ones.

Emanuel Allbrittain, of last years' freshman class, who has been teaching at Benton, Miss., this session, passed through this city Monday en route to his home at D'Lo.

The friends and frat mates of Jack Condry regret very much that he has been forced to leave school on account of his eye. We hope that he will soon be all right and will return to school next year to play ball for us.

FRED. CLARKE

Fred Clark, famous manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, says:

"I'd advise every ball player to smoke Tuxedo. I do, always. I know of no other tobacco that gives the satisfaction that Tuxedo does."

Fred B. Clarke

HUNDREDS of the snappiest ballplayers in the country—the clean-cut athletes who provide Americans with their greatest outdoor relaxation—are cheerfully endorsing Tuxedo. This is the kind of endorsement that carries a convincing punch.

These men have to keep "trained to the minute" all the time. The game—even the pennant—may depend on a single moment's play. They cannot afford to take chances in their training.

So when they smoke, they smoke Tuxedo.

They know Tuxedo is a mild, pure tobacco, full of energizing qualities. It can be smoked all day with pleasure. It will not bite the tongue; it burns freely and smoothly, giving a cool, sweet smoke.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

is in a class by itself. It has many imitators—but in the pipe it has no equal. It is made of the best selected Burley tobacco, the finest that Kentucky grows, ripened, cured and aged until it has reached the tip-top of mildness, mellowness and sweetness. Then it is treated by the original "Tuxedo process" which takes out all the sting so it cannot possibly bite—even if you should smoke it all day long.

You simply cannot buy better tobacco anywhere; and if you will try Tuxedo today, you will see why these men are so fond of it.

"Tuxedo appeals to me more than other tobaccos; it's so remarkably mild and soothing. Easily my favorite smoke."

Jack McInnis, star first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, says:

THE PHI ZETA RECEPTION.

Mrs. Burton's Home Thrown Open to the Friends of the Sorority.

On Wednesday evening, May the 14th, the Phi Zeta Sorority of Millsaps College entertained their many friends at an elegant reception at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. E. Y. Burton on Fairview Avenue.

No more charming hostess could be found than the Phi Zeta's patroness, Mrs. Burton, who assisted by the young ladies of this sorority, showed their guests every courtesy and entertained them graciously. The hall was decorated in red while the parlor in pink made a lovely back ground for the bevy of lovely young girls who formed the receiving line. In the dining room, however, the skill of these talented hostesses reached its climax. For the table was lovely in the green and gold of the sorority colors, while throughout the whole room the color scheme prevailed. In the refreshments this color scheme was again daintily shown, the ices, cakes and mints being in green and gold.

The punch bowl was presided over by Nellie Clark and Margarite Watkins, while the door was opened for the guests by Anna Margarette Burton, Eleanor Gene Sullivan and Emmie Lou Patton.

Until a late hour these young people enjoyed the hospitality of the young ladies mingling together with that unrestrained joy and gaiety which is characteristic of Phi Zeta affairs and which always assures their success.

TRACK CAPTAIN ELECTED; BRUMFIELD CHOSEN.

At a call meeting of the track team last Wednesday morning the annual election of Captain for the next year was taken up. After a close race Brumfield was declared the fortunate man. Brumfield has been on the team two years and is developing into a good track man and will no doubt make the team an excellent captain.

Rev. C. H. Ellis, of the Mississippi Conference, conducted chapel exercises Wednesday morning and made the student body a very instructive talk on "College Honesty."

We regret very much to hear of the death of Mrs. Honeycut, Dr. Sullivan's aunt, which sad event occurred last week.

C. B. Brown, our varsity short stop, returned to school Monday after a week's visit to his parents at Columbia.

It seems to us that the Mississippi goat was again "got" last Friday. In fact it looks as if A. & M. and Millsaps combined had completely demolished that little animal. Crow, Mississippi, crow.

Well fellows, next Monday will be the day of all days, for then hostilities will start up. Here's hoping we may all be able to proclaim, "We have met the enemy and he is ours."

Stranger (after meet): "Who was 'chief goat getter' here on May 9th?"

Aberdeen Citizen: "I don't know, but it surely was not Mississippi College."

Boys, have you gotten your copy of the annual yet? It is a beauty and you will surely want one.

Examinations are almost here, likewise, the hot weather, and the two don't go together very well.

Mrs. Joyce returned Friday from Gulfport, where she spent last week with friends and relatives.

Dr. Sullivan (in Geology): "Mr. Cain, what era do the Eocene, Miocene and Pliocene periods come in?"

W. M. Cain: "I don't know, Doctor, the thing is, they come in that part of the book that I haven't seen."

MID-SESSION DEBATE.

Friday Week Set for Event.

The long delayed mid-session debate is at last an assured thing and the date has been set. Next Friday night is the chosen time. As usual the event will occur in the college chapel and a large audience is expected. The debate has always been one of the most interesting events of the scholastic year, as it is the only debate in which the two rival societies measure arms. Besides the decision, there is awarded a medal for the best speech. Both decision and medal are always hotly contested for.

This year the debate promises to be of especial interest, as good speakers have been chosen by both sides. They have carefully worked out their arguments and a good, warmly contested debate may be expected.

The question for debate will be, "Resolved, That Vast Accumulations of Wealth are Detrimental to Society." The Galloways, represented by Messrs. Robert Harmon and Knox Broom, will have the affirmative, while the Lamars, represented by E. L. Hillman and C. H. Blewett, will uphold the negative.

The public is cordially invited to be present.
